PEDIGREE INSIGHTS: OLMEDO

Olmedo | Scoop Dyga

by Andrew Caulfield

History has an intriguing habit of repeating itself, with the latest instance concerning the former Aidan O'Brien champions Giant's Causeway and Declaration of War.

Giant's Causeway retired to Coolmore after ending his career with a highly admirable neck second to Tiznow in the GI Breeders' Cup Classic on dirt. He was transferred to Ashford Stud after only one season in Ireland, but his Irish crop contained the Classic winners Footstepsinthesand and Shamardal.

The curtain also came down on Declaration of War's career after he had been narrowly beaten by Mucho Macho Man and Will Take Charge in the Breeders' Cup Classic. He too was to spend one season at Coolmore before being transferred to Ashford, and he too has now sired a Classic-winning son in his Irish crop, with Olmedo following in Shamardal's footsteps in winning the G1 Poule d'Essai des Poulains.

Declaration of War's racing career hadn't been quite as stellar as Giant's Causeway's but both won the G1 Juddmonte International and both earned champion status. Both also proved themselves equally effective over a mile and a mile and a quarter, with Declaration of War gaining his first Group 1 success when he took the G1 Queen Anne S. at Royal Ascot. With Declaration of War winning two Group 1s, as opposed to Giant's Causeway's six, he stood his Irish season at €40,000, compared to Giant's Causeway's IR100,000gns. Cont. p3

TDN Q&A: PIMLICO TRACK ANNOUNCER DAVE RODMAN TALKS PREAKNESS STAKES

BALTIMORE, Md - TDN Senior Editor Steve Sherack caught up with track announcer Dave Rodman as he gets ready to call his 28th straight GI Preakness S. at Pimlico Saturday. The native of New Orleans has been the voice of Maryland racing since 1991. Undeclared GI Kentucky Derby winner and 'TDN Rising Star' Justify (Scat Daddy) is slated to arrive at Pimlico Wednesday afternoon.

Q: What did you think of Justify's Derby win and what's the excitement level like with him heading to Baltimore shortly?

DR: He ran his race and answered all the questions that the doubters had. He looks like he's going to be odds-on in the Preakness and it's very exciting to have a horse of his quality coming into the second jewel of the Triple Crown undefeated. I'm anxious to see him in the flesh given the good-looking video I've seen of him training since the Derby. Cont. p5 (click here)

INTO MISCHIEF FILLY FASTEST AT FTMMAY PREVIEW 8

A filly by Into Mischief breezed a quarter-mile in :21 3/5 while seven juveniles were clocked one furlong in :10 1/5 during the first of three under-tack previews for the Fasig-Tipton Midlantic Sale Tuesday.

A direct comparison of the achievements of their respective first crops is therefore somewhat unfair.

Also, it wouldn't be realistic to expect Declaration of War's first juveniles to be as precocious as Giant's Causeway's. While both horses were unbeaten at two, Giant's Causeway was a Group 1 winner ranked the second-best juvenile in Europe, whereas Declaration of War had his line cast in much quieter waters by his then trainer Jean-Claude Rouget. The son of War Front didn't make his debut until Nov. 10, when he decisively won a newcomers' race over 1 1/16 miles on Pornichet's all-weather track. Then in mid-December, he trounced the opposition in a Class D contest over 7 1/2 furlongs of Deauville's all-weather track.

It was these full-of-potential displays by Joseph Allen's homebred colt that brought him to the attention of the Coolmore partners, who bought into him and had him transferred to Ireland. Unfortunately, he didn't race again until September and he tackled nothing more demanding than a pair of Group 3s on his return, confirming his aptitude for all-weather tracks when he landed the Diamond S. over 1 5/16 miles.

At this stage Timeform rated him 116p, but his exploits as a 4-year-old bumped that up to 128. In other words, Declaration of War improved from two to three and again from three to four, in much the same way that his sire War Front had done during his three years on the track. Cont. p4

This partly explains why the parallels between Giant's Causeway and Declaration of War began to diverge at the end of their first year with runners. By the end of 2004, Giant's Causeway had three group-winning 2-year-olds to his credit, including Europe's unbeaten champion 2-year-old Shamardal and his fellow future Classic winner Footstepsinthesand. In the process, he landed the title of champion first-crop sire, an achievement which sent his fee soaring from $75,000 in his fourth season to $200,000 in his fifth.

Declaration of War's start was quieter, although Olmedo helped turn the spotlight on him by achieving 'TDN Rising Star' status on his impressive debut. Olmedo also failed by only a short head to land the G3 Prix des Chenes and finally came out best of the colts in Happily's G1 Prix Jean-Luc Lagardere.

There were also good efforts in Europe from his daughters Actress (a Group 1-placed Group 3 winner) and Eirene, while his American runners included the Grade III-placed Irish Territory. The Pulpit S. success by Speed Franco came in December, after Declaration of War's 2018 fee had been set at $25,000--a reduction of $10,000 from last year.

With Olmedo and Speed Franco becoming group/graded winners this year to increase Declaration of War's total to three, there is good reason for thinking that Declaration of War's fee may be heading upwards before too long, though there has inevitably been a bias towards turf performers from his Irish crop.

It will be fascinating to see whether this bias continues with his first American crop, which averaged over $100,000 off a fee of $40,000. I see no reason why he shouldn't sire smart performers on both surfaces. After all, he showed top-class form on dirt and turf, as well as winning three times on all-weather tracks, and his pedigree contains plenty of accomplished dirt performers.

His dam Tempo West was a half-sister to Union Rags, a GI Belmont S. winner who has four Grade I dirt winners from his first two crops.

This dirt/turf debate is probably irrelevant to Olmedo, who seems to be ideally suited to a sound surface which allows him to quicken impressively. He was well-bought for €100,000 as a yearling. His family once did sterling work for the late Daniel Wildenstein, who bought his fifth dam, the German 1000 Guineas and Oaks winner Schonbrunn. Southern Seas, a daughter of Schonbrunn, did particularly well, winning four times at up to two miles before developing into a highly effective broodmare. She numbered the G2 Prix Jean de Chaudenay winner Seurat and the late-developing Steinlen among her four stakes winners. Steinlen didn't win in France until he was four and he then proved a revelation when transferred to D. Wayne Lukas in the U.S. Steinlen's 16 wins from 35 American starts included the GI Arlington Million and the GI Breeders' Cup Mile as a 6-year-old. He was seven when he gained the last of his four Grade I victories, in the Hollywood Turf H.

Olmedo's third dam Supergirl was an unraced half-sister to Steinlen. She produced another high-class performer in the G2 Prix Noailles winner Super Celebre, who in 2003 chased home Dalakhani in both the G1 Prix Lupin and the G1 Prix du Jockey-Club.

Olmedo's dam Super Pie is by the champion broodmare sire Pivotal but, like many daughters of this high-class sprinter, she demonstrated more stamina than her sire, winning a newcomers' race over 1 3/16 miles at Deauville. Olmedo's second dam, the Linamix mare Super Lina, was second in the G3 Prix Penelope and fourth in the G1 Prix Saint-Alary, so was suited by middle distances, so there is every chance that Olmedo will stay well enough to have a live chance of following in Shamardal's footsteps even further, in the G1 Prix du Jockey-Club.

Q: Any specific memories from Triple Crown winner American Pharoah's runaway win in the Pimlico slop in the Preakness stand out to you?

DR: I started here in 1991 and it took all that time to call a leg of a Triple Crown winner [laughs]. The thing about the race that I'll always remember is the tremendous downpour right as the horses came on the track. They really disappeared after the post parade--you couldn't see anything. The rain was coming down so hard that I wrote down things on a yellow legal pad to say just in case I couldn't see anything heading from the five-eighths pole to the top of the stretch. But the rain let up and it was an amazing performance.

It was kind of surreal when he came back to the winner's circle. Usually the Preakness winner is paraded in front of the grandstands and it rained so hard that most of the crowd was inside. I remember saying, 'Let's hear it for American Pharoah!' It was like we were filming a movie and the sound effects had to be added in later.

Q: Growing up in New Orleans, were you always a fan of racing? How did you catch the bug?

DR: My dad was a racing fan--just a normal, everyday bettor. He always used to keep track of his wins and losses on the back of his program. We'd go to the races at Fair Grounds and Jefferson Downs. At that time, you couldn't get into Jefferson Downs without being a certain age, so he would sneak me past security. Great memories, of course, and I got my first job [announcing] at Jefferson Downs later on [in 1981], too. New Orleans was a great town to grow up and is one of the best places to get weaned on the game.

Dave Rodman | Maryland Jockey Club

Q: When did your announcing dream begin? Was it something that you always wanted to do?

DR: My first job out of high school was in radio as a Top 40 deejay, and I did that for a long time. As radio kind of changed during the late '70s, I went back to my roots of racing and started walking horses at the old Jefferson Downs and also at the Fair Grounds for Billy Mott, Frankie Brothers and Jack Van Berg. Just hot walking to pick up a few dollars. Then the [announcing] job came open at Jefferson Downs and I began to practice on the roof--that was how I got my first gig.

Being a deejay, and especially a fast-talking deejay, back in those days kind of set me up for avoiding any kind of shyness on the microphone. It was a great foundation to become a racetrack announcer.

Q: How would you describe your announcing style? And who are some of the announcers that have influenced you?

DR: Hopefully, accuracy is the number one thing and being easy to understand. My style has evolved over the years and has become a little bit eclectic--kind of picking up a little bit here and a little bit there. Initially, it was more like a Dave Johnson style. The people that I grew up listening to had a great influence on me, like Dave Johnson and Tony Bentley at the Fair Grounds. At that time, the Trevor Denman influence was just kind of kicking in.

There will never be another announcer like the great Tom Durkin. He also influenced me quite a bit in preparation and setting up any moments of drama that may come into play during the running of a race. It's a little bit of everyone and even lots of announcers that are currently working today.

Q: How difficult is it to call the races with all of the tents/marquees set up in the infield during Preakness time?

DR: It's always been an issue. This year will be the first Preakness where basically 40% of the race is called from a television monitor. The tents and obstructions--specifically heading past the half-mile pole into the five-sixteenths pole-- pretty much block all of my view. It really seems like an eternity when they disappear behind the tents.

The other day I looked up and said, 'Well, wait a second. Where are the horses?' It's frightening when you go back to the binoculars and you can't find them. Hopefully, I won't get that moment at around 6:30 p.m. on Saturday.

It takes a little bit of ad-libbing, but I guess you never get used to it. Pimlico's really done a great job putting up different camera angles. There are a couple of new ones added this year, too. A lot of times what you're seeing on television is basically what I'm seeing as a caller, especially around the far turn.

Q: What have been some of your favorite moments behind the binoculars calling the Preakness? I'm sure your first one with the Frankie Brothers-trained Hansel winning in 1991 has to be right up there.

DR: Being from Louisiana, Frankie Brothers was the kingpin back in the day at LaD, and here he comes in my first year with Hansel. He was a runaway winner, which made it better for me, because boy, I'll tell 'ya, those binoculars were shaking! No matter what anybody says, you're still going to get a little bit of butterflies in your stomach, especially moving from a smaller track [Rodman announced at Louisiana Downs from 1985-91] onto the bigger stage.

Silver Charm's Preakness was another special one because of the local angle with trainer Gary Capuano and [narrow Derby runner-up and Preakness third] Captain Bodgit. Smarty Jones and his margin of victory of 11 1/2 lengths also sticks out. I've got that in the back of my mind this year if Justify runs his race.

Afleet Alex was just a stunner when Scrappy T bore out and Afleet Alex and Jeremy Rose almost went down. Big Brown was an easier one to call--he just blew them away at the top of the lane and it was over--the filly Rachel Alexandra making history, and more recently with fan favorites [California] Chrome and [American] Pharoah. It looks like we've got a chance for another Triple Crown this year.

Q: Anything you enjoy most in the lead-up during Preakness week? Between the Alibi Breakfast, post position draw, activity at the stakes barns in the morning, there's certainly plenty going on.

DR: The place slowly builds into a buzz. A lot of media people start arriving by Tuesday and a lot of the preparations and the infield are pretty much 80% complete.

I enjoy walking around the barn area in the morning and being able to get so close to the horses--it's just 50 yards away from the press box elevator to the lower level--and catching up with old friends like Tom Amoss and some of my Louisiana buddies.

There's just so much going on and being able get the feel and build of the excitement for Black-Eyed Susan day and Preakness day is great.

Q: These are certainly good times right now for Maryland racing. Laurel Park continues to receive rave reviews after undergoing renovations and there's even talk of a future Breeders' Cup maybe coming to Maryland. Thoughts?

DR: I've seen some peaks and some valleys being here for so long. We ran 52 weeks a year pretty much when I started in '91, then things slackened up in the late '90s and early 2000s. But now the Maryland-bred program is strong and there's a number of brand new first-season sires coming to the state, too. The breeding industry here is on an upswing and people seem to have a lot of interest in buying Maryland-breds.

The fields and field sizes are picking up--I'd much rather call a 12-horse race than a five-horse race any day. There's just so much more you can do with it.

The renovations at Laurel--I run into fans probably once every few weeks there that maybe hadn't been out in three or four years that say, 'Wow, this is really something else.'

It's an exciting time here, but there are some challenges ahead with Pimlico and the aging infrastructure. The good thing is Maryland has the luxury of having two very good racetracks more than anything--the turf and dirt at both Pimlico and Laurel are exceptional. There are certainly options available for whichever direction it takes.

TUESDAY'S PREAKNESS REPORT: GOOD MAGIC GETS FIRST SPIN AT PIMLICO

Stonestreet Stable and e Five Thoroughbreds's GI Kentucky Derby runner-up Good Magic (Curlin) shipped to Pimlico Monday and had his first gallop over the local main track Tuesday, traveling 1 1/4 miles on a muddy strip ahead of Saturday's GI Preakness S. The Chad Brown trainee appeared after the renovation break and galloped beneath regular exercise rider Walter Malasquez, who also has routinely galloped the likes of champion Lady Eli (Divine Park).

"He handled that track really good," Malasquez reported. "He's still the same horse he was in the Kentucky Derby. Nothing changed. He's really easy and kind."

Brown's traveling assistant Baldo Hernandez said he believes the colt is training better than ever following his second-place finish in the wake of 'TDN Rising Star' Justify (Scat Daddy) in the Preakness.

"I think he's moved forward now," said Hernandez, who is overseeing Good Magic's training until Brown arrives from New York later in the week. "The way I see him galloping today, he looks really good to me. A smooth gallop. He galloped nice and easy. He can handle a [wet] track like that, too." Cont. p8

Hernandez said that Good Magic would gallop again Wednesday, with a paddock schooling session slated for Thursday.

Also appearing at Pimlico Tuesday morning was Hall of Fame trainer D. Wayne Lukas's pair of Preakness starters, Bravazo (Awesome Again) and 'TDN Rising Star' Sporting Chance (Tiznow). The colts jogged the track after arriving to Pimlico via a long van ride from Churchill Downs Monday. Lukas said neither horse would put in any more serious preparations prior to Saturday's race.

"I'm going to go light--they are dead fit," Lukas said. "That two-week break from the Derby, it isn't any different from the NBA or the NFL, the recovery is the thing. You've got to get that energy level back up. I want them to really have a high energy level on Saturday."

With more cushion to the training surface, consignors estimated preview times were likely to be slower than last year's results, which produced a bullet furlong time of :10 flat and a quarter time of :21 2/5.

Hip 62 was the fastest of the 23 juveniles to work a quarter-mile Tuesday, covering the distance in :21 3/5. The bay filly is the first foal out of Alert Cat (Empire Maker), a half-sister to stakes winner Golden Hurricane (Gold Fever) and from the family of multiple Grade I winner Fly Till Dawn (Swing Till Dawn). The bay is consigned by Brick City Thoroughbreds on behalf of the Venezuelan-based Global Thoroughbreds headed by Rafael Celis, who purchased the youngster for $125,000 at last year's Keeneland September sale.

"We knew she was going to be within one tick of the fastest breeze today, so we were very excited," said Brick City Thoroughbreds' J.R. Boyd.

Boyd, who worked under his stepfather Robbie Harris of Harris Training Center for many years, ventured out on his own under the Brick City Thoroughbreds banner two years ago.

"It was just the time for me to start [the consignment]," Boyd said. "Mr. Celis gave us the opportunity and we've done well for him ever since we started."

Once the Global Thoroughbreds team picked out the Into Mischief filly from last year's September sale, Boyd was quick to add his approval for the youngster.

"We loved the sire and the Empire Maker mare," he said of the filly's appeal. "She had a nice, long body. And then we loved her when we saw her on the farm."

Boyd agreed the track at the Maryland State Fairgrounds seemed slower than in recent years.

"I would think the track would be about two ticks off from last year," he said. "That's what I'm reading, comparing our horses from the farm that came here last year."

INTO MISCHIEF FILLY FASTEST AT MIDLANTIC PREVIEW by Jessica Martini

TIMONIUM, MD - A filly by Into Mischief turned in the fastest quarter-mile breeze of the opening session of the under-tack show for the Fasig-Tipton Midlantic 2-Year-Olds in Training Sale in Timonium Tuesday, covering the distance in :21 3/5, while seven juveniles shared the fastest furlong time of :10 1/5.

After a night of thunderstorms and heavy rain, the three-day under tack show began Tuesday morning under sunny skies, with temperatures in the low 70s at the 8 a.m. start and rising steadily to near 90 degrees as the final of five sets was concluded around 1 p.m.

Consignor Cary Frommer sent out one of the seven 2-year-olds to share the furlong bullet time of :10 1/5 Tuesday, and while Frommer is known for her pinhooking prowess, hip 144 is a product of the South Carolinian's small broodmare band. By Tritap, the gray Maryland-bred filly is actually a third-generation Frommer-bred. She is out of Cheers Darling (Cuvee), who is a daughter of stakes winner Bragadocious (Salem Drive).

"We knew she was very quick," Frommer said of the filly. "We worked her in Aiken and we ran her in the trials. She got kind of annihilated coming out of the gates in Aiken, but she has always been quick. So I knew she would work well, but that [bullet] was surprising."

The Aiken Trials, which were run Mar. 17, have already produced a first-out 2-year-old winner. Gallanor (Redeemed), who won the first race of the 2018 trials, went on to graduate in her official racetrack debut at Laurel in April.

Frommer, based in the historic South Carolina town, said the Trials provide a great foundation for the juveniles.

"There are 10,000 to 12,000 people at the Aiken Trials," Frommer said. "The horses have to go in the paddock and they go in the gate and break from the gate. So it's like having a race under their belts. This filly has her gate card and she's ready to go."

Cheers Darling is one of three horses in Frommer's broodmare band.

"I keep them in Maryland to try and cash in on the Maryland-bred incentives," she said. "My oldest are these 2-year-olds--this filly here is one of my first tries."

Hip 144 is from the first crop of Tritap (Tapit), who was beaten just a head by Fed Biz when second in the 2013 GII San Fernando S. The stallion, who stood at Heritage Stallions in Chesapeake City, Md, passed away in 2016.

Four horses got loose during Tuesday's session of the under-tack preview, with three loose horses during an adventurous 10 minutes in the first set of the morning. In the most serious incident, hip 78, a colt by Uncle Mo, bolted to the rail as he was completing his furlong breeze under Ali Rice of RiceHorse Stables. He dumped Rice before galloping into the barn area. The colt came out of the incident with only scrapes, but Rice was in the hospital Tuesday afternoon after sustaining a broken wrist in the mishap.

The under-tack show continues Wednesday and concludes Thursday, with both sessions commencing at 8 a.m. The Fasig-Tipton Midlantic sale will be held next Monday and Tuesday, with sessions beginning at 11 a.m.

MONMOUTH TO SEEK SPORTS BETTING DAMAGES FROM LEAGUES by T.D. Thornton

Monmouth Park | Sarah K. Andrew

Although no firm opening date for sports betting at Monmouth Park has been confirmed by track officials, Memorial Day weekend could be shaping up as the tentative target.

On the operations side, the installment of bet-taking machinery and infrastructure, plus the training of staffers, are both on management's ambitious to-do list. Cont. p10

State legislators also must make sure the legal framework is solidified before the first tickets can be punched.

Another important component--an agreement outlining sports betting revenue sharing between the track and horsemen--is also not yet in place.

John Heims, Monmouth's racing secretary and media relations director, emailed "TBD" in reply to a Tuesday query asking if an agreement existed and what percentage of sports betting revenue would go to fund purses. He also wrote that no exact date has been set for the track's sports book to open.

Yet even before a single sports wager is placed at Monmouth, the track could be entitled to hundreds of millions of dollars in alleged damages as a result of the major professional sports leagues and the National College Athletic Association putting up a legal fight when Monmouth first believed it had the authority to take sports bets on National Football League games.

According to a story first published Tuesday by the Asbury Park Press, restitution will be sought in federal court for nearly four years worth of what the track claims is lost gambling revenue, dating back to when a temporary restraining order barring sports betting went into effect at Monmouth in October 2014.

The Press reported that at that time, the leagues were required to post a $3.4-million bond, which the court deemed to be Monmouth's revenue losses for a month while the temporary restraining order was in effect.

Dennis Drazin, the chairman and chief executive of Darby Development LLC, which operates Monmouth Park, could not be reached for comment prior to deadline.

But earlier Tuesday, Drazin told the Press that "We feel we're entitled to additional damages. We believe the leagues acted in bad faith trying to stop New Jersey from taking advantage of sports betting while at the same time they were pursuing fantasy sports through their equity positions with the FanDuels and Draft Kings of the world, playing games in jurisdictions that permit gambling on sports, all while telling the courts it was an integrity issue."

NYRA RESPONDS TO JOCKEYS' GUILD GRIEVANCES

The New York Racing Association (NYRA) released the following statement Tuesday in response to a statement published by the Jockeys' Guild Monday which outlined a number of concerns and grievances related to the NYRA jockey colony:

In late December, NYRA and the Jockeys' Guild negotiated and subsequently announced an agreement in principal on a new contract. Following that announcement, the Guild backed away from the agreed upon terms sending both sides back to the negotiating table. Since that time, NYRA has been working with the Guild and their attorney in good faith toward a resolution. NYRA has continued to make payments at the same level as was required in the contract without any obligation to do so--a clear demonstration of our commitment to the jockeys and their safety.

NYRA has consistently demonstrated its commitment to act in the best interests of the sport and of the jockeys. NYRA has spent considerable sums to make our racetracks and training facilities safer, and we have new protocols in place for safer training. We will continue to act in a professional manner with all stakeholders, including owners, trainers, horseplayers, fans, jockeys, exercise riders, hot walkers and grooms. NYRA will continue to negotiate in good faith with the Guild in a responsible way that does not negatively affect fans, horsemen and owners.

However, this past Saturday, the jockeys raised issues that had not been under discussion during the negotiations. To raise these issues outside the agreed-upon terms of negotiation, with no notice provided and mere minutes before the start of a Saturday race card, was unreasonable and caused a lengthy delay leading to confusion among fans, horseplayers, trainers and owners.

NYRA strongly disagrees with the assertions leveled by the Jockeys' Guild on Monday evening. For example, the Guild states that NYRA provides inadequate medical staffing during racing and training. However, NYRA has paramedics on-site during morning training hours as well as during live racing at all NYRA tracks.

Regarding the scale of weights, as the Guild well knows, this is an issue that cannot be approached in a vacuum and needs to be addressed comprehensively by tracks around the country and in consultation with owners and trainers.

The issue of concussion protocols should be addressed in the context of a national conversation that should be held with stakeholders and regulators from across the industry to properly assess how best to move forward.

All three NYRA tracks have undergone significant capital improvements designed to improve the health and safety of the jockey colony and exercise riders. NYRA is committed to providing the best and safest facilities for riders training in the morning and competing in the afternoon. That is why NYRA has invested more than more than $20 million in capital improvements and enhancements to improve safety at Aqueduct Racetrack, Belmont Park and Saratoga Race Course.

While many of the projects are apparent, such as the improvements and expansion of the Belmont turf courses and complete renovation of the Belmont training track in 2016, others are not as obvious but vital to the safety of NYRA's riders. These include installation of loose horse warning light systems and weather stations at all three tracks and the installation of new Duralock safety rails at the Aqueduct dirt track and the Belmont Park training track, giving riders an extra degree of protection. Likewise, upgrades to irrigation systems and use of turf blankets at Aqueduct and Belmont Park are both central to promoting the growth of healthy, consistent racing surfaces. NYRA has expanded its fleet of new support vehicles that it uses at all three tracks.

These investments reflect NYRA's relentless focus on safety over the last five years. Wherever possible, NYRA has upgraded to state-of-the-art safety products and procedures. NYRA has not wavered from this commitment to continuously improving our facilities, protocols, and procedures with a focus on safety.

BUCCHERO TO KING'S STAND, JOSE ORTIZ TO RIDE by Alan Carasso

Jose Ortiz, the 2017 Eclipse Award-winning jockey, will be in the saddle when Bucchero (Kantharos) (pronounced bu-CARE-oh) goes postward in the G1 King's Stand S. at Royal Ascot, Ironhorse Racing principle Harlan Malter said Tuesday.

"Jose is obviously the top rider in this country and it'll be very interesting to see how he matches up with some of the European jockeys," Malter said. "It seems like he's able to adapt at every level of competition. Bucchero is a pretty easy horse to ride in the sense that he kind of knows what he needs to do, and I think Jose is the kind of rider that's going to get a feel for it and push the button at the right time. We're pretty excited to give him a chance."

Ortiz, whose mounts earned better than $27 million in 2017, is also expected to ride 'TDN Rising Star' Yoshida (Jpn) (Heart's Cry {Jpn}) in the G1 Queen Anne S. on opening day of the Royal Meeting June 19.

A winner of 10 of his 27 career trips to the post, Indiana-bred Bucchero is a five-time stakes winner on dirt, but has developed into a reliable turf sprinter over the last six months. Upset winner of the GII Woodford S. at Keeneland last October (video), the 6-year-old struck interference in the stretch before finishing fourth, beaten just a length, in the GI Breeders' Cup Turf Sprint (video) early the following month. He has run admirably in three starts this season, finishing runner-up to potential King's Stand entrant Bound For Nowhere (The Factor) in the GII Shakertown

S. over soft ground and third after being broadsided by a rival in the GIII TwinSpires Turf Sprint at Churchill May 4.

While mindful of the enormity of the task at hand, Malter and his ownership group is certainly embracing the opportunity.

"He was 26-1 when he won the Woodford and he was [29-1] in the Breeders' Cup and I think if we'd had a little bit better trip we would have been right there," said Malter of Bucchero, who trades at around 33-1 with English bookmakers ante-post. "I think we've been underdogs everywhere we've been, so we're looking forward to running better than our odds. He's done it the old-fashioned way, proving himself at every level. We're hoping we haven't hit the ceiling."

Bucchero winning the Woodford | Coady photography

He added, "This is clearly going to be very stiff competition and he's going to try to do something he's never done before. But we've never really put him in a spot where he hasn't responded. We're definitely going there because we think we have a chance to win, but we know there's a lot to do to win it. Whatever level we have put Bucchero at, if he's been able to map out a trip, he's been awfully competitive at any level he's run."

Malter reports that Bucchero has emerged unscathed from his rough run in the TwinSpires, even if he had a chip on his shoulder in the few days after.

"[Trainer] Tim [Glyshaw] told me he's doing really well," Malter said. "The day after the race, he was very, very pissed off. I really think he knew (a) that he lost and (b) he knew why he lost."

Malter reports that Glyshaw intends on working Bucchero twice over the Churchill turf course over the next few weeks, weather permitting. Bucchero departs Indianapolis for Newmarket June 11.

JERSEY FRESH WRAPS UP WITH OTTBs IN TOP TEN IN FOUR DIVISIONS

Two-time Olympian Boyd Martin made headlines in the horse world with his eventing hat trick, sweeping the CCI3*, CIC3*, and CCI2* divisions at Jersey Fresh International Three-Day Event for the first time in Jersey Fresh history, but there were also many other strong performances during the event, which was held May 10-13 at the Horse Park of New Jersey in Allentown, NJ. "The market for off-track Thoroughbreds as sport horses has been on the rise in recent years, thanks to the efforts of many," said Retired Racehorse Project (RRP) Executive Director Jen Roytz. "Organizations like the TAA, TCA, TAKE2, TIP, RRP and others are working from different angles synergistically to create more opportunities and incentives for Thoroughbreds in equestrian sports. This, in turn, is driving more equestrians to buy and compete on off-track Thoroughbreds and that, subsequently, has been the catalyst for an increase in the number of Thoroughbreds being adopted or purchased after racing as competition mounts, as well as an increase in the price people are willing to pay for them. So much planning, effort and care goes into the mating and raising of Thoroughbreds to become successful racehorses. That's the same reason they're such incredible competitors off the track as well. They're bred to be athletes and that athleticism transcends disciplines. At the RRP, we're working to share that message with the masses." Here are a few of the Thoroughbreds seen out and about at Jersey Fresh:

Top right: ARCHIE ROCKS Jockey Club: Smittys Messiah (Le Monde – Unbridled Diva, by Unbridled Jet) Earnings $32,176 Ridden by Buck Davidson, finished 8th in CCI3* division

"I'm a huge advocate for the repurposed Thoroughbred," said Maya Simmons, owner of Archie Rocks, "I currently have five that I'm training in eventing and I wouldn't pick another breed to do it with. The Thoroughbreds come off the track with such an amazing work ethic, which makes the process so much fun. They're hungry to learn and once they figure out that they can gallop and jump fences, for most of them it's a dream come true! Archie Rocks has an exceptional brain and a love for work. He moved up the levels very easily because of his athleticism, but mostly because he's very smart and loves the job. I started Crown Sport Horses out of love for the Thoroughbreds."

Center right: CRIMSON Jockey Club: Across the Coals (Dixieland Heat – Etta, by Cojak) Earnings $16,858 Ridden by Shelby Brost, finished 7th in CIC3* division

"Crimson was such a star this past weekend. I'm very proud of her," said Shelby Brost, "She is truly worth her weight in gold. Her level of competitiveness and athleticism is unparalleled. Competing an OTTB, you are rewarded with such an incredible work ethic, being as gritty and as tough as they come, which amounts to an immense desire to do the job. Crimson is the best teammate I could ask for. I have two OTTBs in my string of competition horses right now and they have a work ethic unlike any others. The majority of horses I have had the pleasure to ride and compete have mainly been Thoroughbreds and they have a certain presence about them."

(Artie Schiller – Min Elreeh, by Danzig) Unraced Ridden by Allison Springer, finished 8th in CIC2* division

(Military – Smart Balance, by Beau Genius) Earnings $140 Ridden by Whitney Mahloch, TRF graduate

WARD WORKS ASCOT CONTINGENT

A gaggle of horses from the barn of Wesley Ward breezed Tuesday morning over the Keeneland turf course as they continue their preparation for appearances at next month's Royal Ascot meeting.

Lady Aurelia (Scat Daddy) is being readied for a third straight appearance at Royal Ascot, with a defense of her title in the June 19 G1 King's Stand S. on the cards. Also victorious in the G2 Queen Mary S. in 2016, Lady Aurelia was clocked in :48.80 (video) for her half-mile breeze inside of stakes winner Hemp Hemp Hurray (Artie Schiller) and last-out GII Shakertown S. hero Bound For Nowhere (The Factor). Clockers caught Hemp Hemp Hurray in :49 flat and Bound For Nowhere in :49.20. But most of all, Ward was pleased with what he saw from Lady Aurelia.

"Last year, working into the [GI] Breeders' Cup [Turf Sprint], I thought she was getting complacent, kinda easy-going, taking things in stride," Ward told the Keeneland notes team. "For whatever reason, she went out to Del Mar and didn't fire and maybe that was a telltale sign that she wasn't relaxed and doing things on her own. Now she's really aggressive like she has been in the past. That's what you want to see going to where we've been a couple of times before."

Ward indicated that Bound For Nowhere, a good fourth in last year's G1 Commonwealth Cup, also has the King's Stand as his target.

"We wanted to give him a cruising work today--nothing real serious until probably next week when we tighten him down a little bit," Ward said. "He's doing everything great. [Hall of Fame jockey] Gary Stevens worked him last week and loved the way he went. This week was more of a maintenance breeze. He came through with just what I wanted him to do."

Three-year-old Hemp Hemp Hurray has either the G3 Jersey S. June 20 or the June 22 Commonwealth Cup as his Ascot objectives.

A trio of juveniles who contributed to Ward's 13 winners to tie for top training honors at Keeneland last month also worked towards Ascot. They are 'TDN Rising Star' Chelsea Cloisters (First Samurai), heading towards the Queen Mary June 20; Shang Shang Shang (Shanghai Bobby), targeting the June 21 G2 Norfolk S.; and Stillwater Cove (Quality Road), who is being aimed at the G3 Albany S. June 22. Working in company, Chelsea Cloisters and Stillwater Cove covered a half-mile in :49. Shang Shang had the same time for her work in company with two other Ward horses.

"I'm very appreciative of Keeneland for letting me [work young horses on the turf course] to see which ones do and don't like the grass," Ward said. "Even though they win convincingly on dirt, they [sometimes] don't translate that to grass."

Ward plans on working every Tuesday at Keeneland, weather permitting. The horses are scheduled to depart Indianapolis June 4.

NY'S MORRISVILLE EQUINE PROGRAM SEEKING STUDENTS

The Morrisville (NY) State College's Equine Management and Science programs are seeking students for their Associate's and Bachelor's degree programs. The program is designed to prepare students for a career in an equine-related field. Concentrations include Equine Science and Management, Equine Racing, Equine Breeding, Equine Business Management and Equine Rehabilitation, and are geared to Thoroughbred and Standardbred racing, as well as business management.

During the final year of their bachelor's degree, students complete a 15-credit internship at an outside business or organization within the equine field. Students identify the goals they hope to accomplish prior to starting their internship and carry out a planned program of educational experiences over a 15-week period.

Part of the State University of New York system, Morrisville State College is able to extend the Excelsior Scholarship program to students of middle-class families. New Yorkers earning up to $100,000 per year can qualify for free tuition, with incremental increases in the annual income for 2018 and '19. UNSUNG HEROES

DIONNE JOHNSON

If you don’t know NYTHA Business Manager Dionne Johnson, you should stop by our office and meet her. Dionne has been working for NYTHA pretty much her whole adult life, and she is the backbone of the organization. Her motto, if she had one, would be, “We’re here to help the people,” and she has dedicated her energy to assisting backstretch workers for more than 30 years (which seems impossible, to look at her). The program nearest and dearest to Dionne’s heart is the NYTHA Scholarship Program, which funds $200,000 in college scholarships for backstretch workers and their immediate dependents every year. Dionne shepherds those students like a mother hen, making sure they complete their applications and keep up their grades. She has a smile and a kind word for everyone who comes into the office, whether it is a hotwalker or maintenance worker, or an owner or trainer. Dionne is such an asset to racing, to the horsemen and the backstretch community. Everyone should know who she is.

$157 Million for a Modigliani Raises Hardly An Eyebrow

The Modigliani barely made it past that figure Monday evening at Sotheby’s, selling for $157.2 million with fees at a sale that otherwise featured what many agreed were B+ offerings.

Indy), let go at 12-1 in this unveiling, broke alertly, but was soon outrun by her rivals and her bided her time well back off the pace in fourth in this short field of five. Still left with plenty to do turning for home, the chestnut came alive in the lane, surging up to take on leader Bluesky Kitten (Kitten's Joy) and gamely clawing past that foe to win by a nose. LYONS, QATAR RACING PART WAYS

Ger Lyons, who trained Qatar Racing's Lightning Quick (GB) (Frankel {GB}) to win the G3 Athasi S. earlier this month, has parted ways with that outfit. Lyons also trained Lightning Quick's dam, Lightning Pearl (Ire) (Marju {Ire}), to win the 2011 G1 Cheveley Park S. for Pearl Bloodstock, another entity of Sheikh Fahad, and he also trained Qatar Racing's first-ever winner.

Lyons posted on his blog on Tuesday, "It is with regret that I have to announce I will no longer be training for Qatar Racing as from yesterday. We have had some good times and I was delighted to have trained Sheikh Fahad his first ever winner with Wade Giles. Another fantastic day was when we won the Cheveley Park S. with Lightning Pearl, giving us both our first ever Group 1 win. Time waits for no man and last Monday was another great thrill when we won the G3 Athasi S. at Naas with Lightning Pearl's daughter Lightning Quick, making her a very valuable broodmare prospect. I wish her, Sheikh Fahad and all the Qatar Racing team all the very best in the future and thank them for their fantastic support over the years."

David Redvers, Qatar Racing manager, said in a statement, "It is with some regret that due to a difference of opinion Qatar Racing and Ger Lyons have decided by mutual consent to part."

LEE A RISING STAR IN IRISH RIDING RANKS

By Daithi Harvey

Natural talent, determination, hard graft and a slice or two of good luck along the way are some of the key components to success in the saddle and jockey Billy Lee is now reaping the rewards of the commitment and effort he has put in over the last decade. The 31-year-old is not short of talent either and those talents have been put to good use by shrewd trainers like Tommy and Fozzy Stack, and in more recent seasons by the upwardly mobile Willie McCreery, whose rising tide has mirrored Lee's progress over the past three years. The pair combined to land a first Group 1 win for both when Fiesolana (Ire) (Aussie Rules) landed the G1 Coolmore Stud Matron S. at Leopardstown in 2014, the partnership having been forged the previous year when someone else's misfortune became Billy Lee's slice of luck. "Ger is a personal friend and his operation were responsible for many great days, including Lightning Pearl winning both his and our first Group 1 in the 2011 Cheveley Park S. We wish him and his top-class team at Glenburnie much success in the future and thank them for the many successes we enjoyed together."

"I'd just had a couple of rides for Willie at the time but unfortunately for Colm O'Donoghue, who had won on Fiesolana previously, he got a fall in Limerick and broke his collar bone and couldn't ride her in the Brownstown S. at Fairyhouse," Lee said. "Luckily I got the call up to ride her and she won and I ended up riding her every time after bar once in France."

"She was a special mare to me as she was my first Group 1 winner and I got to ride her in a Breeders' Cup as well. She was so genuine and you could've set your clock by her."

Fiesolana was owned for her Group 1 win by the Niarchos family's Flaxman Stables and the family have since increased their interests in McCreery's string, which has also benefited Lee through his association with horses like Liquid Amber (Kitten's Joy). The filly won the G3 Flame Of Tara S. at The Curragh last year and despite a slightly tame effort in the G1 QIPCO 1000 Guineas she remains a filly of serious potential, particularly as she steps up in trip.

That Guineas ride was Lee's first in an English Classic though he had gained experience of the Rowley Mile before when winning the G2 Dubai Challenge S. there aboard Fiesolana.

The jockey served his apprenticeship with Tommy Stack, for whom he rode his first winner in 2002.

The following 10 years proved satisfactory and while Lee was averaging around 20 winners a year and winning his share of premier handicaps, he was rarely a fixture in the better races and, for even a brief period in 2005, when his weight wasn't playing ball, he toyed with the notion of riding over jumps. That stint earned him a win aboard the Stack-trained Wanango (Ger) (Acatenango {Ger}) in a listed hurdle at Haydock in 2005. However, a previously feared growth spurt never materialised and Lee's weight stabilised, allowing him to refocus his efforts on the level. "I was going okay on the flat and I thought it was too risky trying to establish myself over jumps. I figured if I got an injury riding over jumps I could be forgotten back on the flat very easily so I stuck with it, thankfully."

In 2012, Lee recorded his highest number of winners up until then and it seemed to signal an elevation of his status towards the upper echelons in Ireland. He has maintained that progress to date, no doubt fueled by his association with a strong stable like McCreery's while also maintaining links with a broad spectrum of other trainers.

"I still do a morning a week with the Stacks, the same with Paddy Twomey and if I have time on a Saturday I pop into Richard O'Brien who is based down the road from me in Ballingarry. I'm doing up my family home there and will be moving back full time soon so it's important to keep the neighbours happy. Richard is also making great progress, he has a good routine and it's working for him. I wouldn't be surprised if he has twice the number of horses this time next year," he said.

No doubt O'Brien is delighted to have a neighbor like Billy Lee after the jockey steered his Bianca Minola (Fr) (Shakespearean {Ire}) home a winner twice in four days earlier this month while also riding a winner for him at the opening meeting at The Curragh.

If 2014 was a milestone for Lee with a first top level win, 2016 was also memorable from a winners' tally point of view and it will serve as the benchmark for future seasons. "In 2016 I broke the 50-winner mark for the first time and then I did the same last year so obviously the aim is to keep trying to increase the win tally and get more success in the bigger races," he said. "Willie has trained 29 winners each of the last two seasons so getting him to break the 30 mark is also an objective for this year. We've both made a good start so fingers crossed it can continue."

Every-day winners are Lee's bread and butter and, as with most jockeys, these winners are the reward and necessary motivation that spurs him on to want more and to justify the physical sacrifices made in order to 'live the dream' but ultimately earn a living. Cont. p3

It is now the lure of the big horse that is occupying Lee's mind while he continues, more or less, to dispute the lead at the top of the jockeys' table, admittedly at this very early stage of the season.

"Being champion is not a major objective of mine, however riding another Group 1 winner and getting the rides in the Classics, that is definitely the aim. But you can't beat a winner. I'm happy with how I'm riding and we have a lovely bunch of horses in Willie's. Realistically I think you could only start thinking about the championship around August time if you happen to be near the top of the table."

Billy Lee and stakes-winning filly Bloomfield | Racing Post

Being associated with a trainer like McCreery is likely to see Lee fulfil his ambition to be mixing it with the best and there are several horses in the yard that look capable of group success. One of the highlights of the season so far has been the smooth success of Mary Tudor (Ire) (Dawn Approach {Ire}) in the Listed Salsabil S. at Navan last month. That win was over 10 furlongs and it looks likely that the Godolphin-owned filly will step back up to at least that trip after finishing mid division in the G3 Derrinstown Stud 1000 Guineas Trial at Leopardstown over a mile on Sunday. While Lee may have been in the plate on Sunday, given the filly's ownership he is well aware that he may be watching from the sidelines on another occasion if William Buick or James Doyle are in town for the weekend.

"There's not much I can do about that," he admits. "I'm just glad to get on her when I can, as we think a lot of her and she was very impressive in Navan that day."

One filly with whom Lee is more likely to maintain his partnership is Bloomfield (Ire) (Teofilo {Ire}), trained by McCreery for owner/breeder John Connaughton. The 4-year-old is a perfect two from two in stakes races this season and will bid to make it a hat-trick in the G3 Munster Oaks at Cork next month. The filly won her last race over a mile and three quarters and could make up into a genuine 'Cup' contender as the season progresses.

While continued success looks a formality for Lee, there is no chance of him getting carried away by success. He is humble to his core and will freely admit that there is no shortage of talent in the weighing-room that hasn't had the chance to shine just yet.

WE'VE BOTH BEEN ON AN UPWARD
CURVE, WE WORK WELL TOGETHER
AND WE'VE HAD SOME GOOD SUCCESS
THE PAST COUPLE OF YEARS.

Billy Lee on his association with Willie McCreery

"A lot of it is down to getting a break," he said. "I was lucky enough a few years ago I had two good jobs riding for the Stacks and David Wachman and I was riding winners but I needed that bit of luck and that came along when I got the ride on Fiesolana. That success has allowed me to make a leap to a higher level and plenty of lads the same as me are just hoping for that lucky break."

He continued, "As David Wachman was winding down I was also lucky to get in with Willie at the right time. We've both been on an upward curve, we work well together and we've had some good success the past couple of years. I've always had belief in myself but I'm still learning and I'd say there is definitely more to come."

Having been influenced in his youth by a supreme stylist in Richard Hughes and the fierce competitor that was Johnny Murtagh, Lee has time on his side to start accumulating the kind of accomplishments his two idols achieved, seemingly with such ease and frequency.

HARRY'S BACK

He began last year in the shadow of Caravaggio (Scat Daddy), but by season's end Harry Angel (Ire) (Dark Angel {Ire}) had the world's top sprinting bragging rights and there is a feeling he could have progressed again during the gloom of the European winter. York's Knavesmire springs back into action gain on Wednesday, with the start of the three-day Dante meeting and Godolphin's G1 July Cup and G1 Haydock Sprint Cup hero is the chief attraction as he returns in the G2 Duke of York Clipper Logistics S. Trainer Clive Cox has no doubt what he is dealing with.

"He is a once-in-a-lifetime horse," he commented. "He makes the heart race on every occasion you see him on the racetrack. On last year he was the highest-rated six-furlong horse in the world. That's an amazing accolade and I'm very proud to be in charge of him."

Sprinters returning under a penalty have won two of the last five renewals, but his trainer is wary of where he is at on this comeback. "We had a tricky spring and I think it's fair to say this is a starting point. So I'd be pleased when he has got his first run under his belt," he added. "But he is in good nick and the yard is going well at the moment. He is turning up with a penalty because of his Group 1 success last year, but I am very happy with him."

Last year's winner Tasleet (GB) (Showcasing {GB}) also reappears on contrasting conditions to the soft that he raced on 12 months ago, with this being the first genuine good-to-firm ground festival of the year. He showed on his next start that he is not one-dimensional when runner-up in Royal Ascot's G1 Diamond Jubilee S. on this type of fast turf and like his relative and fellow Shadwell sprinting star Battaash (Ire) (Dark Angel {Ire}), has the kind of prowess in this category that is impervious to the racing surface.

Trainer William Haggas said of the lightly-campaigned 5-year-old, who was last seen finishing runner-up when Harry Angel flopped in fourth in Ascot's G1 QIPCO British Champions Sprint S. in October, "He's a good horse, softer ground slows the others down a bit probably, but he's as good as we can have him for this stage of the season. Obviously Harry Angel is a top-class horse and even with a penalty will be very hard to beat still, but you never know. The races pick themselves for him this season, except he won't be going for the July Cup as I don't think he likes Newmarket. He'll go for the Prix Maurice de Gheest as a replacement."

Trailing behind Tasleet in last year's Duke of York was Angie Bailey's Brando (GB) (Pivotal {GB}), who broke a blood vessel on this uninterrupted terrain designed for unflinching speed. He comes back off a win in Newmarket's G3 Abernant S. Apr. 19 as he did 12 months ago and if lightning strikes twice, connections will rue the decision. There is nothing in his prior outings here to suggest it is York which is the problem and his latest defeat of Sir Dancealot (Ire) (Sir Prancealot {Ire}) was visually one of his finest as a first start after a wind op. He escapes a penalty for his victory in Deauville's G1 Prix Maurice de Gheest in August.

"He's in good form, he did well at Newmarket and he should have improved from the run," trainer Kevin Ryan commented. "He was disappointing in this race last year, but it's a different year now and we'll try again. Harry Angel will be tough to beat, but we'll have to take him on sometime and we can't avoid him."

THE DREAM IS ALIVE

It is nine years since a winner of York's G3 Tattersalls Musidora S. went on to glory in the G1 Epsom Oaks, but with all bar Wild Illusion (GB) (Dubawi {Ire}) among last year's Group 1 fillies either sidelined or going elsewhere, the upcoming renewal could be there for the taking for an improver. If it is one of the seven in Wednesday's line-up, it is pure guesswork at present but one who is heading in the right direction is the Apr. 18 Newmarket maiden winner Ceilidhs Dream (GB) (Oasis Dream {GB}).

Representing the Julian Richmond-Watson-Ralph Beckett partnership successful in the Epsom Classic with Look Here (GB) (Hernando {Fr}) 10 years ago, she is out of Ceilidh House (GB) (Selkirk) who was only 13th in the 2010 Oaks.

"It is a step up in class for her, but I was very pleased with her win at Newmarket last time," Beckett said. "She has been working well at home and hopefully this will prove a good indicator for some later-season targets. She's not in the Oaks and she's not really bred to go beyond a mile and a quarter, we'll see how that goes. It would be nice to think she is good enough."

Second and third behind 'TDN Rising Star' Crystal Hope (GB) (Nathaniel {Ire}) in a Sandown conditions event Apr. 27, Give and Take (GB) (Cityscape {GB}) and Highgarden (GB) (Nathaniel {Ire}) re-oppose from stables whose runners have always to be respected. The former represents William Haggas and he said, "Our filly ran a very good race at Sandown. Whether she needs that [soft] ground I don't know, but she handles it well. It will be lovely ground at York, no excuses on that front. She's a very genuine filly who tries like hell. I think she'll run her race, whether that is good enough we'll see. She has lots of stamina on the dam's side, but she shows a bit of speed at home. I've left her in the Oaks but I'm not convinced she's going to be better over a mile and a half. If everything went well tomorrow, we'd have to have a go."

John Gosden saddles Highgarden, who is slated as the favourite and the descendant of the G1SW Rebelline (Ire) (Robellino) wants at least this trip, while David Simcock could extend a golden spell with Abdullah Saeed Al Naboodah's Ejtyah (GB) (Frankel {GB}). Successful on her sole start on Chelmsford's Polytrack in December, she descends from the 1999 G1 Prix de Diane heroine Daryaba (Ire) (Night Shift) and after Sunday's G1 Poule d'Essai des Pouliches success the yard now have a line into Europe's better fillies.

GOFFS UK ANNOUNCES GOODWOOD SALE

The inaugural Goffs UK Goodwood Sale, held in partnership between the sales company and Goodwood Racecourse, will offer high-end horses-in-training and breeding stock on Aug. 1. Held during the Qatar Goodwood Festival, the sale will be the fifth offsite Goffs Group sale and follows on the heels of the Goffs London Sale, conducted on the eve of Royal Ascot every June. The auction will begin after the day's racing, and is placed to appeal to both international clients and the domestic market, being in the middle of the flat season.

"It's a great initiative as the sale is perfectly timed for Australasian buyers," said Australasian bloodstock agent Guy Mulcaster. "There is growing demand for international horses to race in the Spring Carnival, especially in races such as the Caulfield and Melbourne Cups, and the date means horses can be purchased and quarantined making it logistically viable leading in to the Melbourne Spring Carnival."

Added Hong Kong bloodstock agent George Moore, "I travel the world searching for horses that suit racing in Hong Kong and this sale will be a welcomed prospect for our owners looking to fill their permits. Qualified and sound horses will allow me to be active at the Goodwood Sale."

FAMED JOCKEY TP BURNS DIES

TP Burns, an equally astute jockey both on the flat and over jumps, has died aged 94, according to Racing Post. Burns delivered Vincent O'Brien his first Classic win when steering Ballymoss to victory in the 1957 Irish Derby, and Burns was also in the saddle when Ballymoss won the St Leger later that year. Burns won a total six Irish Classics and also took the 1957 Irish Champion S. aboard Gladness. He piloted nine Cheltenham festival winners.

Vincent O'Brien's son, trainer Charlie O'Brien, paid tribute to Burns, telling Racing Post, "TP was an integral part of Ballydoyle for a large number of years and I know my father had the greatest respect for him and his opinion, and he loved having him around the place. He was very level-headed and he said things as they were, which is one of the reasons my father liked him so much."

Burns also served as an assistant to trainer Dermot Weld, who added, "He was a wonderful man. An assistant trainer to me for a number of years, he was a gifted horseman and a brilliant rider."

Burns's funeral mass will take place on Wednesday at 11 a.m. in St Brigid's Church, The Curragh, with burial in the Tynaclash Cemetery in Co. Wicklow.

EASTER TOPPER WINS TRIAL

Melik as a yearling | Bronwen Healy

Two-year-old colt Melik (Aus) (Redoute’s Choice {Aus}), who at A$2.5-million was the top-priced lot at last year’s Inglis Easter yearling sale, was the eye-catching 4 3/4-length winner of a Randwick trial on Tuesday morning. Fastest of the seven away from the barriers, Melik was three wide turning into the straight under a hard hold from James McDonald. The bay pulled clear thereafter under very mild hand urging from the rider (video). It was the second trial for Melik, who is a full-brother to ‘TDN Rising Star’ Pariah (Aus), the winner of the G3 Canonbury S. and G3 San Domenico S. who enters stud at Arrowfield this year. Melik is owned by Sheikh Khalifa bin Mohammed al Maktoum and is trained, like his brother, by Peter and Paul Snowden. He was having his second trial on Tuesday, having finished third first time at Randwick on Feb. 12.

FUTURE OF BROADCAST HOT TOPIC AT ARC

By Chris McGrath

Demystification and diversity were the twin keys to a broader fan base proposed to the opening day of the 37th Asian Racing Conference in Seoul yesterday.

The first was highlighted by Niall Sloane, Director of Sport at ITV. Sloane's phone had nearly melted when he alighted at Seoul airport, so many congratulatory texts did he receive after his racing team, in its first year since regaining the rights to cover the sport in the UK, had won a BAFTA for its broadcast of the Grand National. He welcomed this as gratifying proof that a conscious attempt to make coverage lighter and leaner is paying off.

"Racing has to be more inclusive, less opaque and, yes, fun," he said. "Sometimes we appear to be all too eager to say no to fun." He invoked the "age-old dichotomy of heritage and baggage: too much baggage, you eventually come to a standstill; throw out heritage, you end up losing your sense of self."

Previously head of Formula 1 at the BBC, Sloane spoke of "one small problem" in trying to broaden the reach of that sport by applying for data to share with viewers: the name of that problem was Bernie Ecclestone. Sloane said he felt the former boss of Formula 1 was determined to monetise everything and counselled racing that "goodwill and understanding" was too precious to have a price.

He also cautioned against confusing ends and means. Broadcasters should only be tasked with delivering the image, not creating it. "Racing has to decide what it wants to be," he said. "Don't trust futurologists. Whatever happened to 3D?" That said, there was no denying the possibilities for enhanced engagement raised by Oonagh Chan, senior consultant at the Hong Kong Jockey Club, in a presentation on broadcasting technology trends and live sports television. She urged racing to harness such advances as 360-degree cameras and ever-higher definition, from HD to 4K to 8K, and also to learn from the popularity of immersive virtual reality games. Cont. p10

"We have to widen viewers' personal experience," she said. "We have to allow them personal choice, liberating them from the camera angles we impose on them from the top of a grandstand or tower, and allow them to immerse themselves in the race itself."

Woodbine has already experimented with a 360-degree jockey-cam, uploaded within 10 minutes of the race and manipulated by the viewer, who can rotate to a chosen perspective at will. Chan quoted Mark Zuckerberg on Facebook's acquisition of the leading brand in virtual reality technology, Oculus: "One day this kind of immersive, augmented reality will become part of the daily lives of billions of people."

But technology could also have more specialised benefits for the sport. Chan highlighted the potential to integrate and standardise regulatory decision-making by sharing the progress being made towards centralised, remote television production, requiring only cameras on site.

WE HAVE TO WIDEN VIEWERS'
PERSONAL CHOICE, LIBERATING THEM FROM THE CAMERA ANGLES WE IMPOSE ON THEM FROM THE TOP OF A GRANDSTAND OR TOWER.

Oonagh Chan

The theme of dismantling barriers was taken up by MinKi Shim, associate manager of the Korean Racing Authority's marketing department, in analysing the phenomenal local growth of E-Sports. To approach a very different fan base, racing had to cut to the chase. To newcomers, an immediate tutorial was as off-putting as any arcane jargon; the aspiration should always be to give them the chance to "do" rather than "read."

Diversity, meanwhile, was the theme addressed by four women in the afternoon session. Anna Seitz Ciannello of Fasig-Tipton reprised the story of the all-female syndicate, It's All About The Girls, and its Group 1 winner Global Glamour. Susannah Gill of Arena Racing in Britain described the establishment last year of a steering group to enhance diversity in a sport characterised as "white, predominately male and middle-aged"; an action plan is to be announced next month.

Megumi Ichiyama of the Japan Racing Association revealed the various promotional strategies, including reserved areas of the track, pursued since a 2012 JRA survey measured female attendance at just 14%.

Victoria Carter, deputy chair of NZ Thoroughbred Racing, summed up the message by saying that a woman should not have to be "unique, exceptional or chosen" to be appointed to a leadership role in racing. She cited two recent studies. "[Both] showed that companies with above-average diversity in leadership teams reported better pay-offs in terms of innovation and higher income margins," she said. "Companies in the top 20% in terms of revenue have a lot more women in their leadership team-nearly 20% more-than the bottom 20%. If you sit at a table with the same kind of people, you're probably with people who are going to think the same way. Divergent backgrounds mean tackling the same idea in different ways and coming up with different solutions, increasing the odds that one of those solutions will be a hit."
