INTENSE HOLIDAY DIES

Starlight Racing's Intense Holiday (Harlan's Holiday--Intensify, by Unbridled's Song) was euthanized Thursday after a battle with laminitis. The GII Risen Star S. winner suffered a condylar fracture in his right front leg during training May 25, and underwent successful surgery May 27 at Hogan Equine Veterinary Clinic in New Jersey.

He was retired after the surgery and expected to make a full recovery and eventually stand at stud, but he soon developed laminitis in both forelimbs that became irreversible.

"It's a tough day for me, our partners and our team," said Jack Wolf, Starlight Racing co-managing partner. "This horse was a fighter and he fought for his life in the same way he battled on the track--with tenacity. It's a terrible loss for all of us." Trained by Todd Pletcher, the $380,000 KEESEP yearling was third in Gulfstream's GII Holy Bull S. in January to kick off his sophomore season. He took the Risen Star at Fair Grounds a month in February, and was second in the GII Louisiana Derby Mar. 29. He was most recently 12th with a troubled trip in the GII Kentucky Derby May 3. Bred in Kentucky by Machmer Hall and Haymarket Farm, the dark bay earned $551,900 from an overall record of 9-2-1-1. "To lose such a strong and vibrant athlete like Intense Holiday just underscores the insidious, nondiscriminatory nature of acute laminitis," offered Dr. Patty Hogan, Intense Holiday's attending veterinarian. "No horse is immune to this disease and it can strike at any time and with little warning. Intense Holiday was an incredibly stoic patient and his toughness humbled those of us caring for him. To this day, laminitis in the horse remains such a poorly understood disease process and our treatment options are so limited. I regret that we could not prevent the progression of the disease in this wonderful colt. It is a tragedy to lose him."

TREVE AMONGST WALES'S DECLARATIONS

Last year's G1 Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe heroine and Cartier Horse of the Year Treve (Fr) (Motivator {GB}) is amongst 11 six-day declarations for the G1 Prince of Wales's S. June 18 at Royal Ascot. The 4-year-old filly, who also took last year's G1 Prix de Diane, suffered her first defeat in six outings on seasonal debut Apr. 27 when going down by a valiant short neck to Cirrus Des Aigles (Fr) (Even Top {Ire}) in the G1 Prix Ganay.

CLAIM TO FAME

By Steve Sherack

When Randy L. Morse dropped a $40,000 claiming slip on Moonshine Mullin (Albert the Great) out of a runner-up effort at Remington last November, it's pretty safe to say that Saturday's G1 Stephen Foster H. at Churchill Downs wasn't on the 52-year-old trainer's radar.

"He's a nice-looking horse and I thought he would be the type of horse that would be good for Oaklawn in that $40,000 - $50,000 range, and luckily he's turned out to be a little better than that," an understated Morse commented when reached by phone Thursday afternoon.

The super game GII Alysheba S. hero isn't Morse's first success story to come via the claiming box. Millionaire Morluc (Housebuster)--haltered for $50,000 during his sophomore season back in 1999--went on to win five stakes races, including the GIII Aegon Turf Sprint S. beneath the Twin Spires. The bay also suffered a pair of heart-breaking defeats when second in back-to-back renewals of the Hong Kong Sprint.

"She came out of her last race very well," said Al Shaqab's Racing Advisor Harry Herbert. "[Trainer] Criquette [Head-Maarek] called me the next day and said Treve hadn't left an oat, which was encouraging after a tough race on sticky ground against a great racehorse. It has all been really encouraging news since, the way she's been training. I spoke to Criquette yesterday and, touch wood, she's more than happy with the filly. Ascot has been the plan from the beginning and we're nearly there. You'd have to think she'd go on good-to-firm ground, although extremes are always an issue. The trainer is confident Treve will go well on faster ground."

Treve Racing Post

Herbert was philosophical about the loss of Treve's unbeaten record.

"Of course, it's disappointing that she got beat [in the Prix Ganay]. I think Treve had got Cirrus Des Aigles beat that day, then Christophe Soumillon got to the rail on that sticky ground and that was worth a length or so. She still ran a great race and the winner had had a couple of runs beforehand and has done brilliantly since."

Herbert noted that if Treve handles Ascot, she could return for the G1 King George VI and Queen Elizabeth S. back at the track July 26.

"We'll see how we go," he said. "Criquette put it wonderfully. She said if Treve likes Ascot then we'll go back. The King George is the natural race for her, and we've seen some great fillies and mares take this route. She's taking her training well, but it is one step at a time. But personally, I'd love to see her come to the King George. It would be a perfect race for her in many ways. Criquette believes Treve can do that, the Vermeille and the Arc. It is one step at a time."

Another high-class filly declared for the Prince of Wales's is G1 Breeders' Cup Filly & Mare Turf and G1 Beverly D. S. heroine Dank (GB) (Dansili {GB}), although trainer Sir Michael Stoute noted the 5-year-old mare could still be withdrawn in favor of the G1 Pretty Polly S. at the Curragh June 29. Dank has not been seen since finishing third in the G1 Dubai Duty Free Mar. 29.

"Dank is in very good shape," said Stoute. "I know that [owner] James Wigan prefers the Pretty Polly, but it would be nice to have a crack at the Prince of Wales's S. We will look at the opposition. I think she would get her ground at Royal Ascot."

The Prince of Wales's could turn out to be a mare's affair, with triple Group 1 winner The Fugue (GB) (Dansili {GB}) also in the mix. The male contingent includes G1 Irish 2000 Guineas and G1 Breeders' Cup Turf winner Magician (Ire) (Galileo {Ire}), G1 Irish Derby hero Trading Leather (Ire) (Teofilo {Ire}), and G1 Dubai World Cup runner-up Mukhadram (GB) (Shamardal), second in this race last year.

DE KOCK ADMITS RAIN CONCERNS

Trainer Mike de Kock has admitted that Soft Falling Rain (SAf) (National Assembly), the winner of last year's G2 Godolphin Mile and G2 Joel S., has not had an ideal preparation for his assignment in Tuesday's G1 Queen Anne S. at Royal Ascot.

"He didn't travel well back from Dubai--he was off for a while and 10 important days were lost," said de Kock. "It's not what you want going into a Group 1, without doing the things you needed to do. Hopefully he'll get away with it and can finish in the first four."

"Fast ground will suit," de Kock added. "His form's good, but whether he's up to running against the likes of Tornado remains to be seen. He will need to up his game."

Soft Falling Rain
Racing Post

The South African trainer was more upbeat about the chances of his G1 King's Stand S. contender Shea Shea (SAf) (National Emblem {SAf}). Last year's G1 Al Quoz Sprint winner looks to avenge a second-place finish to Sole Power (Ire) (Kyllachy {GB}) in this event 12 months ago.

"His preparation has been good," de Kock said. "I was a lot easier on him in Dubai and hopefully he's a fresh horse."

The conditioner also noted that G1 Champions Mile victor Variety Club (SAf) (Var), who joined his stable from fellow South African trainer Joey Ramsden just prior to his big Hong Kong victory, is currently taking it easy.

"We'll probably go to the Breeders' Cup with him, with a prep run in between," de Kock said. "He might then go back to Hong Kong, but he needed a good rest."

STOUTE UPBEAT ON ESTIMATE CHANCES

Trainer Sir Michael Stoute issued a positive update yesterday on reigning G1 Gold Cup winner Estimate (Ire) (Monsun {Ger}), who provided the crowning moment to last year's Royal meeting when carrying The Queen's silks to victory in the famed staying race. The 5-year-old has been seen just once since that effort, when finishing seventh in the G3 Long Distance Cup at Ascot Oct. 19.

Estimate

Racing Post

"It hasn't been easy," Stoute said. "She had a muscle problem with her right-hind, that's why she hasn't had a preparatory run. We're under pressure, but we've made some progress in the last month. I think it's a very tough Gold Cup this year, a tough assignment, but I think we're going to run very well."

Estimate was winning at Royal Ascot for the second straight year last year, having taken the G3 Queen's Vase in 2012, and Stoute reflected on his talented charge.

"The Gold Cup victory was so welcomed by the entire racing fraternity and by all those who follow racing," he said. "Estimate is not straightforward--it is a big team effort with her, from the girl who does her to the girl that rides her, etc. The win last year was so good for racing, so it ranks very highly with me."

Stoute, the current winning-most trainer at Royal Ascot with 68 victories, offered a few more tips. He plans to saddle Snow Sky (GB) (Nayef), removed from last weekend's G1 Investec Derby, in Friday's G2 King Edward VII S., and Highclere's Telescope (Ire) (Galileo {Ire}) in Saturday's G2 Hardwicke S.

"He's back on track, back cantering," Stoute said of Snow Sky. "He sprained a near-fore joint. Telescope's in the Hardwicke. He's been coming up against Noble Mission, who's a big improver who handles heavy ground. He'll be better on faster ground. Integral goes for the Duke of Cambridge, Russian Realm goes for the Buckingham Palace and Radiator goes for the Sandringham."

FINTRY OUT OF CORONATION

Godolphin's progressive Fintry (Ire) (Shamardal), winner of the G2 Prix de Sandringham at Chantilly June 1 for trainer Andre Fabre, will not be supplemented to the G1 Coronation S. at Royal Ascot June 20.

"Following her excellent win in the G2 Prix de Sandringham at Chantilly, Fintry has not been 100%, and therefore her participation at Royal Ascot has been ruled out," John Ferguson confirmed. "Andre Fabre will give Fintry the time she needs to come back to full health and we hope to map out a campaign for later in the season."

Well Noted (Notebook), hero of the 2000 GIII Razorback H., and multiple stakes winners Prospector's Song (Prospector's Music) and My Son Bill (Miswaki) also caught the eagle eye of Morse while competing in taggers before reaching their full potential out of the box.

"I've never had the owner clientele to put those real nice babies in my barn, so that's about the only way you can get them [via claim], and we've been pretty lucky over the years--we've claimed some pretty nice horses," said Texas native Morse, who currently trains between 35-40 head.

After a pair of decent efforts in his first two attempts for Morse and owner Randy Patterson, the aforementioned Moonshine Mullin caught fire with three straight wins at Oaklawn this term. He made it four in a row by turning back Golden Ticket (Speightstown) in game fashion in the Alysheba on the GI Kentucky Oaks undercard.

Moonshine Mullin (inside) all heart in the Alysheba
Horsephotos

The back classy 6-year-old won the 2011 Victoria Park S. at Woodbine and also finished a well-beaten second in Stay Thirsty (Bernardini)'s GII Jim Dandy S. while under the care of Reade Baker. Moonshine Mullin was also campaigned by Donnie Von Hemel and Steve Asmussen before joining the Morse barn late last year.

All systems are a go for the Stephen Foster, a "Win and You're In" for the GI Breeders' Cup Classic, according to Morse. Moonshine Mullin is listed at a generous 10-1 on the morning-line.

"He's doing good," said Morse, who also trained millionaire Jonesboro (Sefapiano). "It's a really tough race, but he's doing well."

If Moonshine Mullin continues his winning ways in Louisville this weekend, it would mark a career high for Morse. Sharing the moment with one of his longtime clients would be the icing on the cake.

"It would be great," Morse said of winning his first race at the top level. "Everybody who trains horses wants to win a Grade I. It would really be special. The guy who owns him is really a good guy, too. He's a cattle buyer from Anthony, Kansas. He's been a big supporter of mine and that would make it extra special." CLICK HERE TO SHARE THIS STORY

Untested as a juvenile, Narniyn garnered three of five sophomore starts last year and lined up for this belated seasonal bow coming off scores in the Oct. 2 Listed Prix Charles Laffitte at Chantilly and the Oct. 29 G3 Prix de Flore at Saint-Cloud. The homebred bay employed patient tactics here and settled off the pace initially. Inching closer from halfway, she made smooth headway in the straight to challenge approaching the final furlong and was ridden out in the closing stages to comfortably register a fourth straight success.

Majestic Queen stepped out of handicap company to run 10th behind G2 Duke of Cambridge S. bound Pearl of Africa (Ire) (Jeremy) in the Listed Cooley Fillies S. at Dundalk in her sophomore season closer Nov. 1, and returned this term to annex an Apr. 25 conditions heat back at that Co. Louth venue in her penultimate out. Going postward off a May 10 handicap third at Ascot, she outstripped all prior form to claim a first black-type score in emphatic fashion here. The eventual winner broke well and settled in second, five lengths off the clear leader Body Beautiful (Ire) (Big Bad Bob {Ire}). Coming under pressure off the home turn, she swooped for control approaching the final furlong and was ridden out late to comfortably account for Frankel's half-sister Joyeuse. "Pat gave her a beautiful ride with the way the race panned out and the horse going off in front suited," trainer Tracey Collins told irishracing.com. "We've always thought a lot of her and thankfully tonight she produced what we've thought. That kind of throws the fillies handicap out on [G1 Irish] Derby Day [June 28] and she could go now for the [G3] Brownstown S. [at Fairyhouse] on July 2nd. She was entered in a few places, but we thought this was the best option and thankfully the ground came right for her during the week. Her run at Ascot was very good on ground she didn't like. She's a beautiful filly and bred in the purple so it's job done tonight getting the black-type. She's a classy filly and hopefully she can go on from here."

WE ARE TO MISS DIANE

George Strawbridge's homebred We Are (Ire) (Dansili {GB}) will not contest Sunday's G1 Prix de Diane after trainer Freddy Head announced he was unhappy with the unbeaten sophomore's condition in recent days.

"The filly is not well," Head told PA Sport. "Maybe she has a virus or something. She is having tests. I've just not been happy with her for the last two days and I'd rather not run. I suppose we'll now maybe look at Deauville."

We Are did not see a racetrack until Apr. 10, but she made up for lost time by breaking her maiden at first asking at Longchamp. She added a Saint-Cloud conditions event May 1, and endured a successful jump to the highest level when annexing the G1 Prix Saint-Alary by three lengths May 25.

FRANKEL FOAL ADDED TO GOFFS LONDON

The first Frankel (GB) foal to be offered at public auction will go under the hammer at the inaugural Goffs London Sale June 16. Offered by Tweenhills Stud Farm, Lot 65 will be a Frankel package, as the March-foaled colt will be offered alongside his dam, Crystal Gaze (Ire) (Rainbow Quest), who is back in foal to the world champion on an Apr. 16 covering. The unraced Crystal Gaze has already produced the multiple group-winning and Group 1-placed sprinter Spirit Quartz (Ire) (Invincible Spirit {Ire}), as well as Caspian Prince (Ire) (Dylan Thomas {Ire}), winner of the Investec Dash on G1 Investec Derby day last weekend.

"He is very correct with huge presence and great action," said David Redvers, owner and manager of Tweenhills. "He has what I would call a typical Frankel temperament in that he knows he is special and really owns the show. At this stage he looks like a speedy type, which is no surprise given his dam line."

Crystal Gaze and her Frankel foal will be available for viewing at Kempton Racecourse June 14, and will return to Tweenhills before being paraded at The Orangery at Kensington Palace Monday. They will be the only lots present for the sale; the remainder will be displayed on video from Kempton. The sale at Kensington Palace is by invitation only due to limited spacing, but buyers will also be able to watch the sale live and bid at Kempton.

"The Goffs London Sale in association with QIPCO is exciting for so many reasons, and this world first is yet another," said Goffs Chief Executive Henry Beeby. "We are indebted to Qatar Bloodstock for offering this spectacular package on Monday, and it should prove a fitting finale to an already sensational catalogue."

Mandella Offers Beholder Update...

Hall of Famer Richard Mandella offered an update yesterday on two-time champion Beholder (Henny Hughes), who suffered a cut on her left hind pastern while finishing fourth in Saturday's G1 Ogden Phipps S. at Belmont Park. "So far it looks like it's healing well," said Mandella. "We've not had any infection, which is the important thing. It's questionable whether she would make the Del Mar meet."

Team Valor Buys Arlington Juvenile Winner...

Team Valor International has purchased Tulira's Star (Congrats), an impressive debut winner at Arlington June 8, privately from owner Curtis Green. Trained by Jimmy DiVito, the 2-year-old stopped the clock for the 4 1/2 furlongs in :52.36, the quickest time of four juvenile course-and-distance maiden special weights run this meet.

"We've done well with this type of horse," Team Valor CEO Barry Irwin remarked. "She's a half to two stakes winners and if she can win a couple stakes, that would be great. Whatever she is going to do, she is going to do immediately. If all goes well, we should be able to run her at least four or five times this year in good races. She doesn't have to win one for us to do well--if she can place we'll do fine."

Irwin has already sold 90% of the shares in Tulira's Star to members of Team Valor and she will be shipped to trainer Rick Mettee at Fair Hill Training Center.

"She'll leave on Monday and then we hope to run her opening day at Saratoga in the Schuylerville--a Grade III," Irwin concluded.

FASIG SET FOR BIG DAY JULY 14

Fasig-Tipton will host a full day of selling at Newton Paddocks in Lexington, Ky Monday, July 14. The day kicks off with the July Sale of yearlings, beginning at 10:00 a.m. A total of 265 yearlings have been catalogued--more than last year--with the catalogue available online here. Immediately following the yearling portion of the sale, Fasig-Tipton will hold its second-annual Summer Selected Horses of Racing Age Sale. The event proved popular last season, and features a flexible online entry format that allows for horses to be added to the sale up to a week before. The catalogue for that portion of the sale will be released July 1. The dispersal of Eugene Melnyk's racing and breeding stock will also be one of the day's highlights. A total of 10 mares, four weanlings and five yearlings will be included in the July yearling catalogue; while 23 2-year-olds and 30 horses of racing age from the prominent owner/breeder will be offered as part of the Summer Horses of Racing Age Sale. "Monday, July 14 is a day of selling not to be missed," said Fasig-Tipton President Boyd Browning. "Firstly, we have an outstanding group of yearlings to showcase to buyers, as a well as a larger Horses of Racing Age catalogue as we build on last year's successes. Moreover, the Melnyk dispersal will add extra excitement as buyers will have access to bloodlines and racing quality rarely exposed to the public market. There will be something for everyone at Fasig-Tipton this July." Visit fasigtipton.com for more.

A GYPSY GRAVE AND THE EPSOM DERBY

By Liesl King

It is that time of the year again, when I happily pack my bags and head for Newmarket, a town that truly lives for racing. From the High Street to the nooks and crannies, horses rule, and in the birthplace of racing, there is a tale around every corner. On the outskirts of town, on the corner of a crossroad--if you are not speeding past at 70 miles an hour--you will find a very small grave surrounded by simple green wire hoops. These days a cross bearing the inscription, Joseph, the unknown Gypsy Boy, adorns the small grave, together with a collection of flowers and two small teddies.

The gypsy boy's grave
Liesl King

Legend has it that it is the grave of a young gypsy boy, who while tending his family's flock of sheep happened to doze off. Upon awakening, he miscounted and thought he had lost a sheep. So great was his despair, that he hanged himself from a nearby tree and was buried at this spot. Sadly, the sheep were all accounted for and he had simply miscounted.

For years, gypsies tended the grave and even to this day flowers and even coins regularly appear on the little grave. Passing cyclists have claimed they are compelled to dismount, and legend has it that the colors of the flowers before a big racing day, such as last weekend's Derby, are those of the winning horse. And indeed, there on the simple small grave were some white, purple and blue flowers. Admittedly blue is not in Australia's silks, but white and purple most certainly are.

Through the ages, the Gypsies have played a role in the Sport of Kings, and none more so than at Epsom. In 1770, Edward Smith Stanley, the 12th Earl of Derby, organized the Oaks and a year later the colts' equivalent, the Derby, was added, the name famously decided by the flip of a coin between the Earl of Derby and Sir Charles Banbury. The Earl of Derby may have won the toss, but Sir Charles Banbury's Diomed won the inaugural race.

Gypsies and the Derby's histories are firmly intertwined, as the Derby became the meeting place for many Gypsy families. Records show that by 1891 there were about 40 Gypsy families living on the Epsom Downs. Yet it was during the Victorian era that they became an integral part of the Derby celebrations. There to watch the racing and entertain the crowds were fortune-tellers, dancers, flower sellers, fiddlers, acrobats and even stilt walkers.

As always, there was a mixed reaction from the racegoers to the Gypsy presence. Some campaigned for their right to attend, while others simply called them troublemakers. It wasn't long before there was an attempt to remove all the Gypsies from the Epsom Downs in the early 1930's. Now, here is where the story takes an interesting twist, for straight from the script of Downton Abbey, steps Lady Sybil Grant, daughter of the fifth Earl of Roseberry, Prime Minister during Queen Victoria's reign. Lady Sybil was certainly a colorful and unusual character, as historical records tell us that she liked caravanning and even held a hawker's license, enabling her to sell trinkets from door-to-door in aid of charity. In Lady Sybil, the Epsom Downs Gypsies found their champion. She simply bypassed the attempt to remove the Gypsy families by giving them the right to camp on her land, saying they had done so for hundreds of years and it was their rightful heritage.

Today, the field is managed by the Epsom Downs Conservators. Large chrome covered trailers may have replaced the colorful wooden horse drawn caravans, but Gypsy families still gather on Derby Day, on the field next to the famous racecourse, as they have done for over 200 years. So if you happen to visit Newmarket in the week leading up to the Derby, take a leisurely drive slightly out of town and visit little Joseph's grave. You never know, you might just find the Derby winner's colors there. CLICK HERE TO SHARE THIS STORY

op/ed feedback

Yesterday's op-ed from Randy Moss, When Tradition Fails The Test Of Time, on changing the Triple Crown spacing provoked a flood of content. A selection appears below. But first, a clarification from Moss:

The tradition of changing Triple Crown dates is even stronger than I realized. Since 1948, the two-week gap between the Kentucky Derby and Preakness has remained unchanged. The three-week period between the Preakness and Belmont has actually remained static since 1969, not 1948: in the 1950s and 1960s, that gap was most often three weeks but on six occasions it was four weeks and in five years it was only two weeks. In fact, Carry Back (1961), Kauai King (1966) and Forward Pass (1968) lost their Triple Crown bids in the Belmont--the latter in hindsight, of course--with only two weeks' rest. --Randy Moss

JACK JONES

Mr. Moss's piece revealed a great number of interesting facts about the history of the Triple Crown races, but unfortunately failed to mention the elephant in the room--Lasix. Mr. Evans indicated that it would be better for the horses to spread out the races and Mr. Moss believes that California Chrome would have benefitted from extra weeks of recuperation. Could the fact that Lasix is now so prevalently used in the Triple Crown races, thus requiring longer periods of recovery after a race by virtue of their loss in weight, that horses need more time between races? When the last Triple Crown winner Affirmed accomplished the feat in 1978, Lasix was not permitted in New York, nor was it permitted or in use for many of those that preceded him. Maybe, just maybe, if the Triple Crown races were run with a change in the conditions of each race whereby Lasix was prohibited, there just might be more horses who compete in all three races, or like Citation run more frequently than once a month. As Tom Ainslie recommended 35 years ago, when Lasix was not in everyday use, we might be able to have more horses to bet that run more often than once every month.

RUSSELL JONES

My contention is that the Triple Crown has been made more difficult since Lasix has been used. The issue is not the Lasix, but the recovery time after its use. This is made worse when Lasix is used for workouts between races. At the end of five weeks of this dehydration/rehydration cycle you get to the Belmont with a whole lot less fuel in the tank than when you began. Perhaps we should run a non-Lasix Triple Crown before we change the spacing of the races.

ROBIN CARDOZA

Randy Moss hits the nail on the head. Mr. Evans as well. The fear or stubbornness to change with the times as I see it, is what is holding racing back from gaining new fans and owners--much-needed fans at that. The traditionalists remember and forget according to what works for them. If you really care about the horses that you are pushing to race at distances they aren't bred to run you would give them the time to rest between these grueling races. I do think one day a horse will win the Triple Crown again. But not until there is either change in the spacing of the Triple Crown races or breeders go back to breeding and running horses bred to go 1 1/2 miles in larger numbers. I'm more for the breeding to change more than anything. Moss makes very valid points on how to create more interest in racing. Then again, maybe the status quo is happy with smaller fields, less owners, a declining fan base, empty stands other than boutique meets or big racing days, etc...Makes no sense to me. As George Bernard Shaw said, "progress is impossible without change, and those that cannot change their minds cannot change anything."

BOB WEST

Yes, it's too bad that California Chrome didn't win the Belmont and nobody was pulling harder for him than myself, but his defeat only emphasizes what true greatness it takes to sweep the Triple Crown. Secretariat was not a horse in the generally defined sense of the word. He was a monster. What horse lowers a track record by nearly three seconds and sets a world record in the process? If they run the Belmont for a thousand years, I can't see another horse ever breaking that record. Seattle Slew won the Triple Crown undefeated. No other horse has ever done that either. Affirmed and Alydar were many lengths the best in all three Triple Crown races and Spectacular Bid was a certain Belmont winner (after having won both earlier legs of the Triple Crown in dominant fashion) against a rested, for the most part, quality field if not for a terrible ride by an inexperienced jockey with his own set of problems.

The question has to be asked, not whether the Triple Crown conditions need to be changed, but whether the modern American thoroughbred is as good, horse for horse, as they were in the 1970's and 80's.

Maybe I've been around too long, but it sure looks to me like we could use an infusion of the best European blood again a la Sir Galahad and Nasrullah. Our top families were raided to death for the last 30 years and the results are now standing in England and Ireland.

TERRY DEMUSIS

I couldn't agree more with Randy Moss's proposal to change the spacing of the three Triple Crown races. I've been a fan of horse racing for 10 years now. I live in Philadelphia, and it was Smarty Jones's bid for the Triple Crown in 2004 which grabbed my full attention and forever hooked me into the game. Most of my vacation time is used for racing trips, and I was at Belmont Park on Saturday for the race. It was the second time I saw a potential Triple Crown bid lost, as I was there in 2008 when Big Brown made his try. I firmly believe that if the spacing of the three races is not changed, I will never see a Triple Crown won in my lifetime.

From all that I've read, I have to conclude that today's Thoroughbred is a different animal than the one who raced 40, 50, 60 or 70 years ago. Back when they raced every couple of weeks as a rule, asking a horse to run three races in five weeks was not an unusual request, as they did that routinely. But today's equine athletes are bred and trained much differently, and they run much less frequently, maybe only every four, five or six weeks, than they did back in the day. How can we continue to reasonably expect a young horse to do something--run three races in five weeks--when this is contrary to everything he's been trained to do from the time he began to race? As the owner of a pleasure horse, I know that a good horse will try to do whatever you ask him to do, regardless of whether he's comfortable doing so or even able to do so. If only we could ask the horses for their thoughts on this question! Casual fans who only tune in to horse racing for the Triple Crown races always ask me why the horses who run in the Derby and don't win rarely come back to race in the Preakness. My answer is always to ask the question of why would an owner or trainer run a horse back in two weeks in this day and age if they didn't need to? Horses today are bred for speed, not for endurance, and today's Thoroughbred is just not well suited to the rigors of the Triple Crown campaign in its current format.

Sports, like everything else, must and do evolve to keep up with changing times. The other major sports have undergone format changes over the years--we now have wild cards in baseball and football, overtime periods to decide games, shootouts in hockey, and instant replay to take advantage of today's technology. Why shouldn't horse racing evolve, too, and change some of its rules to make itself better suited to its own athletes? They should be our first consideration as it is the horses who make this such an amazing and breathtaking sport to watch and enjoy.

CLARA FENGER, DVM, PhD, DACVIM, DVM, PhD, DACVIM

Spot on.

Additionally, the racing every week or so of a LAME horse was considered normal, back in the day. Seabiscuit was famously lame, and captured a dedicated following BECAUSE he ran through it and won anyway. What was heralded as courageous back then would be animal abuse today. Time for a change.

The biomechanical analysis of Eclipse (1764-1789) demonstrated that he (arguably the greatest racehorse of all time) sits exactly in the middle of the bell curve of the biomechanical analysis of the modern-day Thoroughbred. Rather irrefutable proof that the current animal is in no way more fragile than his great ancestors. The issue is that racing injuries are now less acceptable than they once were. The modern-day training methods increase the longevity of a sound horse.

JOANNE NOR

I totally agree with Randy. Well put. How gracious and well-meaning for the horse and his health and well being were Shel Evans statements.

You know what I think about the toxins in the feed these days--and this indeed is having an impact--but even Art Sherman said in a quote that he doesn't even run a cheap claimer back earlier than six weeks!

It is so true that change is good and progressive and that the antiquities of the old days don't still stand. We did not have chemical companies sitting on the FDA board selling their own wares in the old days--this has only happened since the Eisenhower years, when the chemical companies and pharmaceutical companies began production and dominance.

The horses are showing us that they cannot stand the rigors of racing--except in small bites--but the lifetime career starts of the top 100 trainers' horses are spelling it out by coming down to an average of four starts--and counting--last I heard. We have to take care of our stars in this industry.

Next--we will need to address labeling contamination of GMOs--glyphosate--or we could well have smaller and smaller fields with fewer superstars. Owners, breeders, and trainers must be able to look at a label on a bag or a bale and make the decision as to whether or not they think that feed is good for the horse. How long did it take for people to get a label on cigarettes? We don't want to see it get to the point of health losses as a result of usage, and the French study says we are in the third generation of use with symptomatology connected to over 40 diseases.

Just as the drugs need to go, so do the chemicals. It is marketing of corporate products that are leading us astray. Demand to know what is in your horse's food and water. We have the right to know.

RICK WALLER

Extend the Preakness and Belmont out one week more each for no more than a seven-week series. Shorten the Belmont to 10 furlongs. Anything more will risk losing public interest.

TRUDY CARRA DESALERO

Absolutely agree! We need more interest in this sport. As a racing enthusiast, I meet people every day who have no clue about this industry other than the Derby. How sad! These changes would generate interest and provide better races! Let's do it!

BARBARA GRIMALDI

Everything he said makes sense, takes into account changes in other sports as well as changes in racing. His concept of two days of racing--fillies on Friday and the Belmont on Saturday--is so right. And it would be so terrific if horses we all fall in love with would be able to stay on the track for a few more years instead of being rushed into the breeding shed for big bucks. Randy, you are so right on and I hope and pray that your ideas take hold because without them, racing will continue its spiraling fall down the drain. It was a great sport once, and now it is stained and limping. Randy's ideas could help racing become healthy again.

BILL GLAVIN

I could not agree more with Randy Moss's argument to lengthen the time between the Derby and Preakness, and the between the Preakness and Belmont as well.

Times have changed, and the racing game needs to adjust, just like every other sport has. Baseball, which like horse racing prides itself on tradition (the NBA and NFL not so much), has added the designated hitter, wild card teams, and interleague play, to the horror of the "no-change" crowd.

What happened? The game remained popular, vital, and more in tune with the times. No one complains when a wild card team wins the World Series, or if the two teams happen to have faced each other in interleague play. Nobody cares at that point.

If horse racing were to wake up and have four-week spacing between the races, there would be many upsides, as Randy has indicated. Having rested horses would improve the quality of the races, the current disincentive for Derby losers to run in the Preakness would be all but eliminated, and most importantly, it would be best for the well-being of today's horses. Through no fault of their own Lasix, breeding practices, etc.) the modern American Thoroughbred is not built to withstand short periods between races.

The four-week spacing would be ideal--and for those who think it a sacrilege to run the Preakness the same weekend as the Indy 500--that would occur ONCE every seven years, when May 1 is a Saturday.

It's a tragedy that all of these positives would occur, and what's the possible downside?--people are going to say: "Oh he didn't do it the same way as the previous Triple Crown winners." Who cares--are any of the World Series winners or Super Bowl winners thought any less of? Of course not. Can any of us name the ones who were wild cards? Of course not.

If a horse wins the first two legs, that's when we attract the casual fans--they all begin watching. If a horse does it under the new timeframes, do you really think these fans are going to say: "Oh let's not pack up our cooler and go out to Belmont today--that horse didn't have five weeks rest like the previous winners." Please--that's ancient history to everybody, except those of us in the racing game with long memories.

So please, Randy, talk this up and push this idea. Maybe we could start a petition. I'm not in the racing game anymore--I worked as Pimlico and Laurel's TV handicapper back in the 80's, and worked many Preaknesses as a member of the publicity department, but of course am still passionate about the game. It's so great to see casual fans sharing this passion when horses like California Chrome come around. How great would it be to have their attention for eight weeks instead of five, and give the racing game even more exposure?

Galiana visited the winner's circle in four of seven starts in 2013, including the restricted Tax Free Distaff S. over this track and distance. She kicked off this year with a score going 5 1/2 panels on the Atlantic City turf Apr. 29 before crossing the wire in sixth-- beaten two lengths--in The Very One S. at Pimlico May 17. Returned to the main track for her latest in a $20,000 optional claiming test June 5, she reported home a 1 1/4-length winner and was let go at generous odds to get the job done here. Up to press the pace through a quick opening quarter in :22.46, the chestnut inched ahead after a half-mile and was in control late to post a comfortable win over She's Ordained. Pearl of Africa, who posted a first stakes score in November's Listed Cooley Fillies S. at Dundalk, hit the board in the Jan. 30 G2 Cape Verdi and Feb. 20 G2 Balanchine at Meydan. The bay lined up for this coming off a pair of fifths in the May 11 G3 Amethyst S. here and the May 24 G3 Ridgewood Pearl S. at The Curragh. Finding cover in sixth after the initial exchanges, she exhibited a neat turn of foot to challenge wide approaching the final eighth and was ridden clear to easily double her black-type tally. "I thought she had improved and was good, but I ran her on soft ground and she didn't like it," trainer Edward Lynam told irishracing.com. "In fairness they were probably better quality races also. She did that well and she'll now go to Royal Ascot next Wednesday for the [G2] Duke of Cambridge [S.]." Click for the Racing Post result. VIDEO, courtesy attheraces.com.

A $150,000 Fasig-Tipton July yearling turned $325,000 Barretts juvenile, Esmeraldina was a five-length winner of her lone juvenile outing at Tokyo Nov. 24. She added a tally in a Nakayama conditions event Jan 5, and added black-type when third in the G3 Hochi Hai Fillies Revue S. Mar. 16. She filled the same position when third in the Listed Hyogo Championship last out May 6, and earned her first black-type victory in resounding fashion yesterday. Tasha's Star has a 2-year-old full-sister to Esmeraldina, who sold to California trainer James Cassidy for $175,000 at Barretts this past March, and a yearling filly by Malibu Moon. The winner's second dam produced MGSW & GISP Tasha's Miracle to the cover of Harlan's Holiday.
