LASIX MAKES NEW YORK DEBUT It did not take New York trainers long to jump on the Lasix bandwagon. The diuretic will be allowed for the first time in New York Friday at Belmont Park and 46 of the 82 horses entered will be running on the medication. Twenty-eight horses will be running on Lasix for the first time. "We got some horses we wouldn't have had without Lasix," said Racing Secretary Mike Lakow. "We got a 'three-other than' to go with three out-of-town Lasix horses that may not have run here without it." Lakow said the entry process went smoothly, but he was worried there may be some glitches in the days ahead. "If there are going to be any complications they'll show up on opening day," he said. "For instance, if someone mistakenly entered with Lasix or if someone wanted it but failed to mention it to us. But so far, everyone's on the same wavelength." NYRA officials do not expect a large infusion of new horses at this meet, but are predicting that Lasix will have a major impact on field size at Aqueduct this winter.
