SPECIAL ME, THE BARGAIN OF A LIFETIME

by Christie DeBernardis

PARIS, KY.-- A plain gray mare standing at 14.2 hands, Special Me (Unbridled's Song) isn't exactly what you picture when you think blue hen, but with three graded runners to her credit, she has certainly earned that title. Her accomplishments in the breeding shed combined with the story of how she came to be, prove that Special Me has more than lived up to her name.

When breeder and consignor Carrie Brogden first noticed Special Me, she was a 2-year-old making her third start in a maiden-claiming event at Laurel in December 2008.

"I've been obsessed with Unbridled's Song mares for a long, long time," Brogden said. "This was even before Unbridled's Song completely exploded as a broodmare sire. Actually, the first time I spotted [Special Me], she was in a maiden claimer and I was set to claim her. The trainer I had hired to go claim her looked at her and said, 'Ahhh, she's like 14.2 [hands]'. He was like, 'She's teeny tiny, no, no.' So, we did not claim her. I said, 'Well, she is not the physical,' so we passed and she ran terrible."

A month later, Brogden and Special Me crossed paths again at the 2009 Keeneland January Sale. The horsewoman could see for herself that her trainer was not exaggerating about the mare's size, but Brogden could not ignore her gut feeling on the mare, so she did some more research.

"Fast forward and I see her in the Dark Hollow consignment as a broodmare prospect," Brogden said.

MULTIPLE GRADE I WINNER WORLD OF TROUBLE RETIRED

Michael Dubb, Madaket Stables and Bethlehem Stables' dual-surface Grade I winner World of Trouble (Kantharos--Meets Expectations, by Valid Expectations) has been retired from racing and will enter stud at Hill 'n' Dale Farms for the 2020 breeding season, the farm announced Monday. A victor of the GI Carter H. on dirt and GI Jaipur Invitational S. on turf this year, the bay retires with a record of 13-9-2-1 and earnings of $1,263,300.

"He's the fastest horse I ever owned," said Dubb. "My jaw dropped every time he raced. He was such an easy horse, as he could run on anything. He won Grade I races on both dirt and turf in New York this season, something that probably will not happen for me ever again. Since we couldn't make the Breeders' Cup due to a foot bruise, we decided it's best for him to start making babies." Cont. p6

“She comes in the back ring and I am like, ‘What on earth?’ Here is this big-bodied gray mare with these little, itty, bitty legs,” Brogden continued. “So, I talked to David [Hayden] and he told me the whole saga of her. She was born six weeks premature. They did everything they could to save her and spent a kajillion dollars. They could not sell her and ended up naming her Special Me. Then, she could not run.”

Brogden continued, “Meanwhile, I am thinking, I have seen her family. Her half-sister was big and beautiful and [her half-brother] Our New Recruit (Alphabet Soup) was big and beautiful. I was thinking maybe this mare is genetically normal and it was just an in utero nocardioform placentitis that compromised her. So, I was like well, let’s take a shot on her.”

Special Me & her 2019 Into Mischief filly | Christie DeBernardis

Brogden secured Special Me for just $6,000 and she would later prove to be the bargain of the century.

“We bought her for $6,000, my mom, Machmer Hall, [my husband] Craig and I,” Brogden said, standing outside a large field at Machmer Hall that houses Special Me and several other members of her broodmare band. “We were delighted to get her for that and she just had to prove that she wasn’t going to throw herself. She is a triple graded stakes producer now. It is just kind of amazing to think about.”

Special Me did not take long to prove Brogden’s instincts right. Her first foal was a winner and her second foal turned out to be MGSW and GISP Stonetastic (Mizzen Mast). A $77,000 KEESEP yearling purchase by Stoneway Farm, the fleet-footed gray went on to win the 2014 GII Prioress S. and the

2016 GII Inside Information S. and was second in that year’s GI Humana Distaff S. at Churchill Downs. Cont. p4

LOOK FOR HIS YEARLINGS AT THE FASIG-TIPTON KY OCTOBER SALE

She won a total of eight races and earned $856,062.

“She was a beautiful, beautiful filly,” Brogden said with a fond smile. “She was one of those things where she ran to her looks. She wasn’t a super big filly, but she had this monster walk and beautiful balance and she was just so fast. We enjoyed that ride so much. Mizzen Mast was a sire that was just very, very good to us. That was incredible.”

Stonetastic | Coglianes

Special Me produced Stonetastic in 2011 and just two years later, she would foal another star in Gift Box (Twirling Candy), though he took a bit longer to peak than his half-sister. A $135,000 FTKNOV weanling buy for W.S. Farish, the gray started his career with Chad Brown, earning the ‘TDN Rising Star’ moniker and garnering a few black-type placings. Privately purchased by Hronis Racing and transferred to John Sadler, the 6-year-old has found California living very much to his liking, capturing the Dec. 26 GII San Antonio S. and scoring a gritty victory over McKinzie (Street Sense) in the GI Santa Anita H. Apr. 6. Runner-up in the GI Gold Cup at Santa Anita May 27, the millionaire was most recently fourth in the GII Stephen Foster H. June 15.

“I was trying to decide where else we would go [with Special Me stallion-wise] and I went to Lane’s End and saw Twirling Candy,” Brogden said. “I thought he was really impressive and we bred heavily to him in his first crop. Special Me was one of [the mares we bred to him] and we got Gift Box and we sold him at Fasig-Tipton’s Night of the Stars. David Ingordo bought him and he was telling me, ‘You know, this is a perfect horse for Sadler. He trained Our New Recruit and he trained Twirling Candy, and this is a big walker.’ So, it is funny that, fast forward all these years, and he is now with Sadler. Obviously, Chad did a fantastic job with him, too, but it all kind of came full circle.”

In 2015, two years after having Gift Box, Special Me produced her next graded runner in Special Forces (Candy Ride {Arg}). The $220,000 KEESEP buy has won four of his 15 starts and is dual graded stakes-placed, finishing second in the GIII Dominion Day S. June 30 and third in the GIII Seagram Cup S. Aug. 11. The chestnut was most recently second in the Sept. 9 Presque Isle Mile S.

Gift Box | Benoit

“He was just an okay racehorse at first,” Brogden said. “Somebody made the astute decision to geld him and ever since, he has turned into a star.”

Special Me’s now 3-year-old daughter Wamathaat (Speightstown) summoned $550,000 from Shadwell Farm at the 2017 Keeneland September Sale and was sent to Europe. The unraced filly was recently purchased by BBA Ireland for 220,000gns at the Tattersalls July Sale. Tracy Farmer purchased Special Me’s juvenile filly Special Honor (Honor Code) for $260,000 at KEESEP and she finished third on debut at Woodbine Aug. 30. The gray mare’s now-yearling filly by Medaglia d’Oro brought $500,000 from Larry Best’s OXO Equine at last year’s Fasig-Tipton November Sale.

“Medaglia d’Oro is such a great sire and obviously Larry Best has had tremendous success with him,” Brogden said. “She got into great hands and with her breeding, no matter what, she is worth close to what he paid.”

Special Me foaled an Into Mischief filly Mar. 23 of this year and is now in foal to Quality Road.

“I think we are going to hold onto her for next year,” Brogden said of the Into Mischief filly. “I just enjoy having them. I think we will keep her and see what happens. If Gift Box had won the Grade I last year, we probably would have kept the Medaglia filly, but obviously we did not know that he would become such a superstar as he got older. I mean, maybe she can be a Saratoga yearling or a Book 1 Keeneland September yearling. I think that is really appealing. Who doesn’t want a filly out of this kind of mare?”

The now-13-year-old Special Me has produced a total of 10 foals, eight of whom are of racing age, with four winners, two of those being multiple graded stakes winners and one with a pair of graded placings. Brogden sold her first nine foals for a total of $2.056 million and her four winners have earned a combined $2,120,170, not too shabby for a $6,000 mare with legs too short for her body and a lack of ability on the racetrack. Special Me may not be much to look at, but she is the queen of Machmer Hall and her impressive breeding record has more than rewarded Brogden’s faith in her.

Special Me’s 2019 filly by Into Mischief | Christie DeBernardis

“Special Me is a triple graded stakes producer, which is so funny because you look at her and she is this little mare, 14.2 hands and sweet as pie. I mean, you can see her foal is basically the same size as her. She is just a happy horse out there. She has never missed a year. She foals easily and gets right back in foal. It is so funny to me to look at her and be like, ‘Wow, if I could tell her all the amazing things her sons and daughters have done, it would be fantastic.’”

Breaking his maiden by 14 lengths in his debut, the Jason Servis trainee improved steadily as a 3-year-old in 2018, finishing his campaign with a neck second to eventual champion turf male Stormy Liberal (Stormy Atlantic) that earned him a 118 Beyer, the highest figure for a sophomore last year. He ran 100+ Beyers in his last seven starts and was victorious in seven of his last eight starts.

World of Trouble | Sarah Andrew

“With his mind, temperament, disposition and desire, I can’t wait to breed to World of Trouble myself,” said Servis. “He could run on anything, winning stakes on fast and sloppy dirt and firm and yielding turf. It didn’t matter; he would throw down those fast fractions that would lead him to victory regardless of the surface, track, or competition.”

The 4-year-old will now stand alongside his sire at Hill ‘n’ Dale, which acquired Kantharos in 2017 after a blazing start to his stallion career in Florida.

“As the most successful son of the rapidly rising Kantharos, we know breeders will love the horse,” said Hill ‘n’ Dale President John Sikura. “World of Trouble was a world-class racehorse with brilliant effortless speed.”

World of Trouble will stand for a fee of $15,000 S&N.

A POST-ARC LETTER FROM PARIS

by Dave Johnson

The result of this year's Arc de Triomphe was.... "almost."

Because the race, the day, in fact the season, became all about Enable (GB) (Nathaniel {Ire}), and if the mare could win the most important single race in the world for the third consecutive year. The answer was...almost.

A furlong from the line, I thought she was home free. Then Waldgeist (GB) (Galileo {Ire}) moved as the finish neared. He was alongside, and with only five strides left of the mile and a half, he outfinished her and the 10 others to win by a length and three-quarters.

The post-race scene on the apron, in the stands, in the luxury boxes and in the press box was subdued. Moving through the crowd, I felt a pall over a sunlight windy Paris afternoon. More frowns than smiles. In some cases, despair.

The 73-year-old trainer Andre Fabre knows how to win the big ones on either side of the Atlantic. He won the 1993 GI Breeders' Cup Classic with Arcangues at 133-1. Sunday, he took the Arc for a record eighth time.

With a perfectly timed ride, 26-year-old Pierre-Charles Boudot has moved into the spotlight, but not to answer questions. Both trainer and jockey did not even attend the post-race press conference.

In the Media Center, the questions and attitude for co-owners Gestut Ammerland and Dietrich von Boetticher were celebratory, but after the toast, and without Fabre or Boudot, it was a quick wrap-up and, ‘Who do you like in the fifth race?’ So in this aftermath, a few impertinent questions followed:

1. When did the celebratory explosion of winning a race (major or minor) become the cue for a jockey to show the feeling of success, like the end-zone football performances or the baseball curtain call?

Mickael Barzalona began pumping his fist so furiously in the air before the finish line of Sunday's G1 Gran Criterium, he almost lost his balance! After The Arc, Boudot waved and threw kisses for more than half a mile! Was Jean Cruguet the first rider in America to be such a showman after he won the GI Belmont S.?

2. Has Paris, specifically ParisLongchamp, become a new destination for the Far East? Prior to the running of the feature race, on the rail through the home stretch, the percentage of racing fans from Japan far outnumbered the locals and tourists from other parts of the world.

They did not come to see a horse named Japan (GB) (Galileo {Ire}). He was bred in Great Britain, and is owned by the English/Irish partnership of Smith, Magnier and Tabor. The three Japanese-bred horses finished seventh, 10th and 11th.

3. Is the “now” jockey Pierre-Charles Boudot? He won four races on the day before he won The Arc.

4. The condition of the ground after heavy rain was very soft. Was that the reason Enable lost?

5. How much longer will the talented Donnacha O'Brien, 21-year-old son of trainer Aidan O'Brien, be able to make the weight? Forget the jockey group photographs. This guy towers over owners and trainers in the walking ring.

His brother, Joseph, as a jockey won the GI Breeders' Cup Turf in 2011 on St. Nicholas Abbey (Ire) (Montjeu {Ire}) before the scale forced him to turn to training. Wonder which O'Briens will be at Santa Anita for the Breeders' Cup in November?

6. What happened to the blades of the ancient monastery windmill on the backstretch of ParisLongchamp?

7. Is there any trophy in racing more beautiful, symbolic, or stunning than the silver masterpiece for winning the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe?

Finally, congratulations to Khalid Abdullah. It is possible to win the Arc three times, but only if you try. Enable is one of the great racehorses in history. Even if she did not win The Arc three times, she was spectacular winning in 10 Group 1 races with elegance, style, stamina and speed. Thank you for trying.

“It has always been something that I have enjoyed doing,” Brennan said about working with yearlings. “Through the Flying Start and several of the people I have worked for in the past, I have done a bit of yearling prep all over the world and I really enjoyed it. My wife and I were fortunate enough to recently buy a piece of property with the plans of building a home and a farm, which we have done. We decided we would enjoy having a few weanling to yearling pinhooks on the side. That is how it started and it has worked out pretty well so far. This year I decided to go ahead and sell them myself. I had some great support from friends and clients to build the consignment, so I thought let’s give it a go and God only knows where it could end up.”

Colin Brennan | Joe diOrio

He added, “I would be remiss not mention my mother Jolane [Weeks]. She has been a huge help to me and she is a wonderful horsewoman. She has raised many young horses and owned her own farm for several years, so she has been a huge asset for me.”

Brennan’s initial consignment is a mix of his own horses, as well as some clients.

“Once the word gradually started to spread, people started to call me out of support and friendliness and, of course, I was happy to take them,” Brennan said. “I owe a lot of it to the opportunity that they have all granted me to try this venture.”

Brennan and his wife are continuing to develop their new facility in order to expand their new venture.

“I am prepping mine, but the client horses are being prepped by them,” Brennan said. “We will have the facilities to offer to our clients to prep theirs as well this coming season. We were in the middle of finishing the build of our little farm, which I built myself this season, so we didn’t have the room, but we will go forward.”

Brennan will offer four in the select portion of the sale, two fillies and two colts, with the additional five selling during Wednesday's open session. The consignment has a little bit of everything with a mix of Kentucky and regional stallions, some of which are freshmen.

"There is a Maclean's Music filly in the Select Sale that looks like she will be a quick little 2-year-old type horse," Brennan said. "I think the pinhookers are going to love her. There is also a fast looking Speightster filly. Those two will grab the pinhookers' attention. We have a pretty solid group for the open. There is a great-looking Giant Surprise colt with a good physical. We have two freshman sires, an Exaggerator and a Brody's Cause. Based on how they were selling at Keeneland, I am hopeful for them as well. Overall, a solid group."

Though Brennan is enjoying working with the weanling to yearling pinhooks, he is still working alongside his father, prepping young horses for the 2-year-old sales.

"It is a bit of a juggling act," Brennan said. "I have always enjoyed the 2-year-olds. That has been my livelihood my entire life. I am hoping they can work in conjunction. If it becomes a profitable side business, my wife and I may go that route. Who knows."

PEDIGREE AND PALETTE COME ALIKE TO STUEBS by Chris McGrath

What's in a name? Well, potentially quite a lot, if a single letter can weigh as much as it does in that of Kris Stuebs. The one that starts her surname enabled her to call her professional agency Kris S. Bloodstock, in playful homage to her equine namesake. Few who know her in that guise, however, will ever have reflected that you only have to switch one letter in her surname to come up with the ultimate paragon for her second metier: Stubbs.

For Stuebs has uniquely entwined two very different paths since discovering an unlikely vocation for Thoroughbreds in Wisconsin--as unlikely in terms of lineage, coming as she does from a family of preachers, as location. One, for the past 30 years, has enabled her to steer clients like Peter Vegso and Sheikh Abdullah Almaddah toward productive purchases or matings: one of her earliest recommendations to Vegso resulted in dual Grade I winner Splendid Blended (Unbridled's Song), for instance; while Sheikh Abdullah's $260,000 acquisition of Rote (Tiznow) at the Keeneland November Sale in 2011 brought into his program a mare capable of producing two seven-figure foals.

But it is in another role, somewhat less well known in the bloodstock community, that Stuebs will be making her next impact on the Lexington scene.

Stuebs is set to be an Artist of the Month for October in the downtown Wills Gallery, exhibiting works executed with a verve encouraged by no less a figure than Andre Pater--whose stature, as an inspiration to Stuebs and others, can incidentally be judged right now at his American Journey retrospective at the Headley-Whitney Museum of Art through Nov. 17.

Medaglia d'Oro by Stuebs

There is a common margin between her two callings--and a common mystery. Because an agent's appraisal is not just of the mechanical construction of a horse, but also of the character that will deploy that physique to meet the challenges of racing. In the same way, the technical skill that can reproduce the external aspect of a horse on canvas is only half of what makes a painting work. You don't just draw; you draw out. You have to express whatever it is, combined with anatomy, that sets a horse apart.

Stuebs duly has an aversion to what she calls the "trophy art" of conformation portraits, typically commissioned to hang above an owner's fireplace as a status symbol.

"I've done my share of those," she admits. "But I don't want to paint something just to paint it. That takes too long!"

She continued, "Instead of doing the standard thing, I want it to be all about the horse in the situation--not just standing there, but more of a neoclassical thing, even like the Napoleonic image of the eyes bulging, the neck arched. Take a painting I did of Medaglia d'Oro [with both his forelegs raised]. I found this great photograph of him at a stallion show, and he was just feeling cheeky that day. I had to remove him from the commercial situation in the photo, but that was just what I'd seen this big, strong horse doing a number of times, and that was just him."

This is just a specific variation, of course, of the generic challenge to any artist: to combine the craft of replication with an eye for those traits, in bearing or demeanor, that exposes the deeper nature of your subject.

"You do first of all need the technical skills to put something three-dimensional into two," Stuebs acknowledges.

"It's like when I used to play softball, our coach first wanted us to throw 100% accurately, to hit really well, to know every single situation. And then you were a state championship ball club, because you were putting it all together. But you see a lot of people who can draw. To get beyond that, I think it comes down to recognizing beauty.

"Like for this recent piece I did, of a horse on the turn, I'd seen an image of this whole blanket of horses--but I just wanted to pull out the one, because of the light, and the form. And the color. One time I asked Andre [Pater] which single color in the palette he'd choose, if he had to use one every time, and we both ended up on the same one. You wouldn't find it in a Crayola pack, but you'd see it in the bottom of the clouds in a sunset sky. These are the colours that make things beautiful, that we stand in awe of; and it's so much fun, the places you can use them."

Actually it was a moment of light and color, captured by a National Geographic photographer, that first brought Stuebs to the Bluegrass. "You know how when the mist is really heavy, but not fog?" she says. "And it's just about the height of the fences, and the sun comes up, and you get the pink and the purple and the blue? And I remember saying: 'I'm going to live there.' And that was Paris, Kentucky."

Stuebs jokes that her eye has now become so attuned to aesthetics that "painting has absolutely ruined me at a horse sale," because no specimen is ever faultless.

"I'll go and look at these horses, and take my photographs, and stand back and look at them again," she says. "And you think well, yes, this is a really nice horse. But I'd make the hip this much longer, and the pastern a bit more like this, and so on. Maybe it's for good, I've had some very good turns, but I think it probably makes me irritating to some clients! They say, 'What's wrong with this horse?' And I say, 'Well, nothing, but it's not beautiful.'"

Rote herself was not immaculate, conformationally, but she was beautiful. She was a big mare, too, so Stuebs knew what kind of complement she needed.

"She needed tidy, she needed quick, she needed all these things you wanted the foal to be," she recalls. "And her first Tapit foal [Grade II-placed Royal Obsession] really pulled everything together.

Stuebs continued, "But there's nothing worse than when you get this 86-billion-to-one genetic code, and then you go back and do the same mating, and get an even better physical--and he can't run a jump!"

The immensity of genetic variations means that Stuebs mistrusts formulaic programs in her matings advice. In fact, her approach is very much akin to mixing colors on the palette: she looks for patterns and tones across a pedigree, and tries to see what needs reinforcing; what needs diluting.

"It's interesting, I've never used that analogy but it's dead on," she says. "It is just like you mix these colours: some warmer, some cooler; some darker, some lighter. There are so many algorithms out there, and some of them can be useful to an extent. However, when I look at a pedigree I read it like a book."

She remembers first browsing pedigrees when she came to Kentucky, as a horse-crazy veterinary student at the local university, and picked up a job at Brookdale. At that stage, she was "happy as a clam" just to groom these beautiful animals.

When she had renounced piano lessons as a kid, her father retorted that she'd have to do lessons in something.

So she announced that she would take up riding. She soon got through her savings, but her instructor had recognized a talent and let her carry on in exchange for mucking out. And when Fred Seitz gave her work at the Kinghaven dispersal, and she walked a weanling who would someday become the granddam of Sidney's Candy, she began to ask herself what it was that set some of these lovely creatures above the rest.

"That's what cemented my interest in pedigrees, right there," she recalls. "Going through page after page, it seemed so crazy. And like when I was given a Rubik's Cube in fourth grade, I wouldn't set it down until I had this thing fixed. How does all this all fit together? How the heck could Colonel Bradley and Tesio do this without a computer? Why does this work: Blushing Groom, say, and Nijinsky? And it all started to fall into place, like a puzzle does. These renewable, replaceable patterns. And as they started to emerge, you could put it all together--with the physical, the style, the running ability--and read it like a book. There isn't a computer program that can do that."

She gives an example of how one such program gave a famous runner (and now sire) a rock-bottom rating when he won his first stake, and a top-class rating after he won a first Grade I soon afterward. "He'd created the nick by himself!" she says with a laugh.

Kris Stuebs

Because, in the end, that kind of thing is the equivalent of painting by numbers. The task is too subtle for that: it needs touch, instinct, artistry.

As Stuebs says herself: "There's so much that can go wrong. People that hang their hat on just one thing? Good luck!"

The artist reception and opening of Stuebs's exhibition, shared with Celeste Susany, takes place 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 8 at the Wills Gallery, 190 Jefferson Street, Lexington.

WHAT WOULD YOU FIX FIRST?

For the past few weeks, we have been running a series of responses to The Jockey Club's proposed cap on a stallion's book at 140 mares. Many people expressed the feeling that there were more pressing problems to which the industry should attend. So we asked a group of respondents, 'What would you fix first?'

To name a few: we need uniform rules, we need to address the super trainer, we need to address workers compensation, and we should figure out how horses can run more often.

We need uniform medication rules so that when people go from state to state, the rules are the same. We need better drug testing and more uniform drug testing so that each lab is testing at the same levels. That way a positive in New York is also a positive in Arkansas and a positive in Florida.

VINNIE BLENCS, LONGTIME TRAINER, DIES

AT 90 by T.D. Thornton

Retired trainer Vinnie Blengs, a well-respected New England horseman who later expanded his stable to Maryland and Florida and saddled numerous ship-in winners in New York, died Oct. 5 in Hollywood, Florida. He was 90.

No cause of death was listed in his Boston Globe obituary, which noted Blengs “passed away peacefully.”

According to Equibase, Blengs won 1,981 races and earned over $24 million in purses in a career that spanned 1963-2010. But those totals do not include stats that pre-date the online database. In newspaper clippings from an earlier era, Blengs said he won his first race at Lincoln Downs in Rhode Island around 1949.

A native of Revere, Massachusetts, where Suffolk Downs was located, Blengs served in the United States Army prior to learning the Thoroughbred trade and rising through the ranks at his hometown track.

His top-earning horse was Dr. Root, who won the GI Sword Dancer H. at Belmont Park in 1991.

Blengs trained horses for longtime New England friends as well as the racetrack executives David Romanik and Barry Schwartz. He was also known for mentoring the jockey careers of Rene Douglas and eventual Hall-of-Famer Edgar Prado.

Blengs won four training titles at Suffolk Downs, and he won the 1991 training title at Laurel Park shortly after relocating from New England. That Laurel title came in the midst of a five-year run in which his horses earned more than a million dollars in purses each season between 1990 and 1994.

Blengs was a regular buyer at the Ocala Breeders' Sales Company, and he relished the challenge of the bidding process nearly as much as he did training horses.

After winning one spirited bidding war in 2002 against a competitor with far deeper pockets, Blengs quipped to Daily Racing Form, “Only in America can a guy like me outbid a zillionaire like him. What a country!”

Blengs also earned an unintended slice of New England racing lore for one of his horses that didn't win at Suffolk Downs.

On July 4, 1966, an intruder ran onto the track just as the field was barreling down the stretch for the closing-day Mayflower S. Despite running directly into the path of the leaders, the trespasser was only grazed, spun around, and knocked to the ground. The Suffolk Downs photographer managed to snap off a remote camera shot that framed the bizarre incident perfectly, and the photo was reproduced around the world.

Blengs, who trained Taunton, the second-place finisher, didn't see the incident because his view from near the rail was blocked by the large crowd. After the race, he asked Taunton's jockey why he had pulled up prior to the finish.

When Blengs was told what happened, he said, “Boy, I've heard a lot of excuses in my day, but never one like that.”

Vinnie Blengs was the trainer of the runner-up in this notorious race July 4, 1966 at Suffolk

Blengs was predeceased by his wife of 50 years, Theresa.

According to the Globe obituary, a celebration of Bleng's life will be held at a date to be determined at Gulfstream Park. Donations can be made in memory of Blengs to a charity that he supported, the Permanently Disabled Jockeys Fund (click here).

MID-ATLANTIC PLAN MEMBERS MEET

More than 60 industry stakeholders from the Mid-Atlantic region met at Delaware Park Oct. 2 to discuss the next steps for the Mid-Atlantic Strategic Plan to Reduce Equine Fatalities. Adopted in March, the Strategic Plan is the product of a collaboration of the region's racetrack operators, horsemen's organizations, breeders' organizations, racing commissions and regulatory and racetrack veterinarians. Its goals are the establishment of regional safety best practices, improved methods to identify horses at increased risk of injury, the implementation of protective factors to reduce the risk of injury, information sharing and communication, and improvement of the general health and welfare of the horse.

During its Oct. 2 meeting, the group agreed unanimously to immediately move to adopt rules that will prohibit the administration of any non-steroidal anti-inflammatory medication to a horse within 48 hours of a race, and all intra-articular joint injections within 14 days of a race.

The rules will need to go through the regulatory process in each jurisdiction for the changes to be adopted.

“NSAIDs and corticosteroids are therapeutic treatments used not just here in the U.S., but worldwide, to the benefit of the health of the horse,” New York’s Equine Medical Director Dr. Scott Palmer said. “However, sound medical practice dictates that we allow our veterinarians and horsemen the proper time to evaluate these horses following treatment and before returning them to high-speed exercise. Amending our regulations to reflect this best practice is a vital step in implementing the Strategic Plan.”

The Mid-Atlantic stakeholders announced a ban on the use of bisphosphonates in horses under the age of four in March and formally adopted a model rule to effectuate the ban during last week’s meeting.

Also during the six-hour meeting, Palmer gave presentations on risk management programs, mortality review protocols, and injury clusters.

Professor Mick Peterson, Ph.D., who serves as director of the University of Kentucky’s Agricultural Equine Programs and is Executive Director of the not-for-profit Racing Surfaces Testing Laboratory, provided a presentation on track maintenance and how the region can develop and implement best practices to assess racing surfaces to ensure a consistently safe racing environment.

The Mid-Atlantic stakeholders and regulators who have committed to the Strategic Plan include Delaware Park, DTHA, Delaware Racing Commission, Maryland Jockey Club, Maryland State Fair (Timonium) MTHA, Maryland Racing Commission, Maryland Horse Breeders Association, Monmouth Park, NJTHA, New Jersey Racing Commission, New Jersey Thoroughbred Breeders Association, Finger Lakes Racetrack, NYRA, Finger Lakes HBPA, NYTHA, New York State Gaming Commission, New York Thoroughbred Breeders Inc., Penn National Gaming, PARX, Presque Isle Downs, PATHA, Pennsylvania HBPA, Pennsylvania Racing Commission, Pennsylvania Horse Breeders Association, Colonial Downs, Virginia Racing Commission, Mountaineer Park, Charles Town HBPA, Mountaineer HBPA, West Virginia Racing Commission and National Steeplechase Association.

LTBA ANNOUNCES BREEDERS AWARDS INCREASE

The Louisiana Thoroughbred Breeders Association will be increasing breeders awards for Louisiana-sired accredited Louisiana-breds to 20% beginning with the 2019-20 Delta Downs Thoroughbred meet which opens Tuesday. Breeders awards for accredited Louisiana-breds by stallions standing outside the state will continue to be paid at 18%.

The increase was passed at the LTBA Board Meeting at L'auberge Casino in Lake Charles Oct. 2.

"The Louisiana breeding program is one of the strongest in the country," said LTBA President Warren J. Harang, III. "The board wanted to reward breeders who make their stallion selections among the many outstanding choices we have here in the state."

SUFFOLK OTB SUES VLT MANAGEMENT FIRM

FOR $5 MILLION by T.D. Thornton

Suffolk Off-Track Betting (OTB), which earlier this decade survived bankruptcy proceedings to be one of the five remaining New York OTB corporations, filed a $5-million lawsuit Monday against Delaware North for years of alleged mismanagement of the OTB's video lottery (VLT) gaming facility.

The lawsuit, filed in United States Bankruptcy Court (Eastern District of New York), is of note to Thoroughbred horsemen because some of the revenues allegedly being diverted by Delaware North are supposed to go toward purses that support the state's racing industry.

"This is an action to stop [Delaware North] from treating 'Jake's 58 Hotel & Casino' in Islandia, New York, as a pot of money to enrich its owners at the expense of Suffolk County and the State of New York," the lawsuit states.

Delaware North was appointed to manage the VLT aspects of Suffolk OTB's gaming license in 2013 when the OTB reorganized in the wake of filing for bankruptcy protection.

"Jake's 58 is one of New York's most successful gaming facilities," the lawsuit states. "Since opening [in 2017], Jake's 58 Casino has generated more than $210 million for New York State and millions more for Suffolk County and Suffolk OTB's creditors. Hundreds of millions of dollars of VLT revenue have passed through Delaware North's hands. But, at every opportunity, Delaware North has diverted money due to the State and County to its own hotel and other businesses.

"Delaware North's secret business plan for Jake's 58 is simple: Costs are charged to Suffolk OTB's 'Jake's 58 Casino' so that Delaware North's 'Jake's 58 Hotel & Restaurant' can make money," the suit continues. "Delaware North implements this scheme by paying itself out of Suffolk OTB's bank accounts for bogus expenses.

"So, when Delaware North needed a kitchen for its hotel, it charged Suffolk OTB for the equipment and build-out," the suit continues. "When the hotel needs elevator maintenance, security systems or a front desk, Delaware North charges Suffolk OTB. When Delaware North cannot fill its hotel's guest rooms, it charges Suffolk OTB for hotel stays it gives away for 'free.'"

The lawsuit details other alleged instances of "intentional bad faith conduct and malfeasance," such as Delaware North "overcharging Suffolk OTB hundreds of thousands of dollars in rent by inflating the square footage of the VLT gaming facility...willfully miscalculating Suffolk OTB's share of utilities [and] incurring tens of thousands of dollars in fines issued by the New York State Gaming Commission while putting Suffolk OTB's gaming license at risk due to repeated regulatory violations."

TDN could not reach Delaware North for comment prior to deadline for this story. But Newsday reported receiving a statement from Delaware North that said the company denies the lawsuit's "contrived allegations" and added that the firm "will vigorously defend" itself in court.

After allegedly trying for months to resolve the dispute out of court, Suffolk is seeking payment of three times the amount of damages the OTB has allegedly sustained. Suffolk is also petitioning the court to impose civil penalties of $12,000 for each alleged violation of the New York False Claims Act, and it wants the bankruptcy judge to allow the OTB to sever its court-appointed management ties with Delaware North.

CLEMENT JOINS WHOA

Trainer Christophe Clement has joined the Water Hay Oats Alliance, a grassroots movement in support of federal legislation to prohibit the use of performance-enhancing drugs in the sport of horse racing.

Clement issued a statement in support of the organization, which follows.

"In my opinion, we are long overdue for one nationwide medication policy. Unfortunately, the sport has been enduring a lot of negative publicity lately, and now is a pivotal moment to ensure the sustainability of horse racing. We need to unite as an industry and should all be working together towards a cohesive policy dedicated to ensuring the safety of our horses, the ethics of the sport, and also a clear system with outlined rules and regulations that fans can understand and respect. Many outside of our industry question the ethics of the sport, and we need to make sure we provide no reason for this to continue and remind people why we are 'the Sport of Kings.' As a trainer, I feel morally responsible to ensure that my team always operates with the highest ethics, consistently putting the horses first, and working daily to ensure we follow the rules outlined for us.

Clement’s statement continued, “I’m very proud of our team that has been able to avoid any medication suspension for the entirety of my career.

Most countries worldwide run without race day medication or pre-race medication the last week before the race. American horse racing is such a wonderful sport full of incredible history; let's not lag behind.

We have constantly been in the media this year, let's turn these headlines into something a lot more appealing like ‘Horse racing, a class act’ and show the public that we mean it when we say that we believe in the well-being of our horses. Today, the future of horse racing is uncertain and we cannot be thinking about just the well-being of our individual stable, farm, racetrack, etc., but rather need to come together to save the sport that we all love.”

Nay Lady Nay overcame some trouble at the start and rallied from last to notch a good-looking score in the Parx Fall Oaks Monday at the Bensalem oval.

Fourth when attempting to close into a slow pace on debut going six furlongs at Belmont June 27, the $210,000 OBS March buy graduated over four next-out winners Aug. 2 at Monmouth and was a strong second behind the promising Sorrentina Lemon (Lemon Drop Kid) in a Big Sandy allowance Sept. 11. Knocked down to clear favoritism in this stakes bow, the dark bay was squeezed back at the break and relegated to last as longshot Jabuticaba dictated terms in the clear through splits of :24.04 and :48.22. Given a nudge at the top of the far turn by Paco Lopez, Nay Lady Nay advanced steadily and squeezed through a narrow seam in the four path approaching the lane.

Closing powerfully once straightening for home, she easily overtook the pacesetter passing the sixteenth pole and kicked clear to a convincing score. Jabuticaba held the place.

Nay Lady Nay, a remarkable 16th black-type winner for sophomore sire No Nay Never, is a full-sister to Coolmore's juvenile colt Arizona, who captured the G2 Coventry S. at Royal Ascot and was third behind the brilliant Pinatubo (Ire) (Sharmadal) in the G1 Goffs Vincent O'Brien National S. last month at The Curragh. Her dam, a $27,000 purchase at Keeneland November in 2012, is responsible for a yearling filly by Estidhkaar (Ire). FLATTER ME PLEASE (c, 2, Flatter--Please Be Discreet, by Discreet Cat), a $65,000 OBS April buy after breezing a furlong in :10 2/5, showed a modest local worktab for this debut before perking up with a five-panel gate move in 1:02 4/5 (2/12) Sept. 28. Made a 22-5 proposition, the blinkered chestnut traveled as the middle marker in a three-way pace duel through a :22.62 quarter. Cont. p2

Dropping over to the rail while taking on a third challenger passing a :47.44 half, he found some daylight entering the final furlong and dug in late to fend off favored Appleton Special (Medal Count) by three-quarters of a length. The winner's dam, a half to MGSW Tackleberry (Montbrook), is responsible for a yearling colt by Orb and foaled a Blame colt this season before visiting Accelerate. Julian Dollar of Newsells Park Stud with the winning breeder's trophy for the Arc | Emma Berry

By Emma Berry

NEWMARKET, UK—Ahead of the most important three days in Tattersalls' trading year, confidence can surely be drawn from the vast array of international visitors at Park Paddocks for the October Sale.

Not only were Sheikhs Mohammed and Hamdan inspecting yearlings on Monday, but John Magnier made an appearance with a large team which included Michael Tabor and trainers Aidan and Joseph O'Brien. A broad smattering of representatives from Japan, Australia, South Africa and the Middle East is complemented by a strong American contingent, with Chad Brown, Seth Klarman, Mike Ryan and Peter Brant returning to the scene of some considerable recruiting success in recent years, while first-time visitor Todd Pletcher is among a number of travellers from across the Atlantic.

The man with a deservedly broad smile on Monday was Julian Dollar, general manager of Newsells Park Stud, co-owner with Gestut Ammerland of Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe hero Waldgeist (GB) (Galileo {Ire}), who was also bred by both entities in partnership with Coolmore.

CLEARWATER STUD MAKES BOOK 1 DEBUT

By Emma Berry

Clearwater Stud makes its debut on the list of consignors at Tattersalls this week, but it is a newcomer in name only.

Formerly known as The Kathryn Stud, the Buckinghamshire farm owned by Fergus Anstock previously consigned yearlings through Bumble Mitchell. Following the return home of Anstock's son Farran after something of a world tour of experience-gathering on various studs, the family took the decision to consign under their own banner.

The name Clearwater was inspired by the stud's proximity to an old water mill. It is also handily close to the M1 motorway, not that you'd know it once standing amid the peaceful, immaculate yard built on the former cattle farm which has been home to the Anstocks since 2005.

Furthermore, Newsells Park stands Nathaniel (Ire), sire of the great Enable (GB), and is the breeder of Japan (GB) (Galileo {Ire}), who was fourth in the Arc and has also won the G1 Juddmonte International and G1 Grand Prix de Paris this season.

Japan was one of the stars of Book 1 of the October Sale when selling for 1.3 million gns two years ago, and last year Newsells Park Stud was the leading vendor with 18 horses sold for just over 11 million gns. For Newsells Park as well as Tattersalls, the next three days are of great importance.

"I think every consignor gets pretty worked up and nervous before the sales and from our point of view we've been thinking about it non-stop for the last few weeks," said Julian Dollar on Monday from the Newsells Park hospitality box at Tattersalls, where the breeder's trophy for the Arc held pride of place.

"Every night I seem to wake up thinking of yearlings so it was nice to think about something else yesterday in Paris, but by the time I was coming back on the plane I was thinking about yearlings again." Cont. p3

Reflecting on Waldgeist's victory, he added, "It was a great day for the stud and for the Jacobs family, and it was nice to remember Klaus Jacobs, my boss initially, who passed away about 10 years ago. He had a dream to establish a stud and, with his German heritage, to be successful breeding these kind of horses—these Classic-distance horses over a mile and a quarter, a mile and a half. So yesterday was about everything he had been working towards and it was quite emotional for me certainly, and for his son Andreas and the rest of the family to have bred that horse."

Dollar continued, "In a way we were real party-poopers and there is so much of me that would love to have seen Enable win, for racing, for Nathaniel, for everything she stands for. It was heart-wrenching to beat her but if anything was going to beat her, I'm glad that it was Waldgeist. Days like that don't come around very often so I was glad that I could get away from the sales—the guys were doing a great job and I think they were glad that I went and left them in peace."

"It was very special and it means a lot to everybody involved. Andreas was there with his wife and Mr. Von Boetticher was there with his family. We don't take these things for granted and I'm still pinching myself that we've managed to breed an Arc winner. For us that's incredibly special."

Looking ahead to the next three days, during which Newsells Park will send 22 yearlings through the ring, including half-siblings to Group 1 winners Legatissimo (Ire) and Without Parole (GB), and a sister to The Tin Man (GB), he added, "When you come to the sales, you never know what you've got until you go up to the ring. I hope we'll be alright. I believe we have some very nice horses. We are lucky to have some good horses that we have bred ourselves and also very lucky to sell some horses that we've bred for clients. I just have to trust that people have faith in the horses we are producing."

"Yes, you get some headlines for sales horses but it's all about the quality of the horses when they are racing. We're breeding racehorses, that's what we're about, and of course we have to breed sales horses to survive, but if that becomes our raison d'être then we're in trouble. So it has been very gratifying seeing a number of horses from the farm doing very well."

After withdrawals, around 500 yearlings, all eligible for the £25,000 Book 1 Bonus, are slated to sell this week, starting at 11 a.m. on Tuesday.

"Dad bought the first couple of mares in 2006, just two or three to begin with, and we have 15 on the farm now. Twelve of them are in foal, plus there is another filly in America," says Farran Anstock.

Along with Niall Horgan, the 29-year-old has prepped six yearlings for sale this year, starting with three at the Goffs UK Premier Sale in August. The second trio is set to sell in Newmarket and includes a first Book 1 offering. The catalogue contains two Kingman yearlings out of different mares both named Parle Moi as consecutive lots on Thursday, though the second is now withdrawn. Clearwater Stud's Kingman colt is lot 488, out of the 9-year-old Montjeu (Ire) mare Parle Moi (Ire), a winner as a juvenile in France and already the dam of a 2-year-old winner by Kendargent (Fr). The colt's grandam Di Moi Oui (GB) (Warning {GB}) was twice a Group 3 winner and has three black-type performers among her nine winners.

"The Kingman is very exciting. We just have to hope he shows himself off well, but we couldn't be happier with how he has been through his prep," says Anstock of the operation's prize colt.

In Book 3, Clearwater Stud will offer two more colts, by New Approach (Ire) (lot 1730) and Starspangledbanner (Aus) (lot 1406). The latter is out of the Cheveley Park Stud-bred Adore (GB) (Oasis Dream {GB}), from the family of Group 1-winning juvenile Hooray (GB) (Invincible Spirit {Ire}) and, like Parle Moi, purchased for the Anstocks by their bloodstock advisor Jeremy Brummitt. The agent also bought the New Approach colt's dam Arwaah (Ire) (Dalakhani {Ire}), a former Shadwell mare, while she was carrying him.

For someone who had no contact with horses while growing up, Anstock has devoted most of his twenties to ensuring that he gathered as much experience as possible before embarking on his own consigning business.

He says, "For a while I didn't really know what I wanted to do. I don't think I'd ever touched a horse, I'd never ridden anyway and hadn't been up close to one, so when I did I was terrified.

"I came here to work for a bit and Alice Mills, who was here at the time, eased me into the horses. I did a bit of painting around the farm and maintenance jobs and then I started bringing in the odd mare or two. Dad was trying to work out whether I was serious or not so he sent me over to work for Eddie O'Leary at Lynn Lodge Stud. I absolutely loved it there I got on really well with Eddie and all his staff and they taught me a hell of a lot. I loved it so much that I decided I wanted to prep yearlings."

From Lynn Lodge, Anstock enrolled in the National Stud course and then went on to Coolmore Australia for six months for the foaling season followed by yearling prep, before returning ever closer to home to work at Coolmore's HQ in Ireland and then to complete a four-year stint at the National Stud in Newmarket.

"I loved working at Coolmore but I came away thinking that we might as well give up because we could never compete, but we all need a little luck. Dad and Jeremy got into Dubawi when he was standing at £75,000 and they sold the yearling filly out of Polly's Mark (Ire) for 700,000gns. She's actually now back out in the paddock as we bought her back from Godolphin as a 3-year-old for 30,000gns."

Named Pure Shores (GB), the Dubawi filly won three times in Fergus Anstock's colours after returning to the fold and being sent to Ian Williams. "She is now in foal to Camelot (GB) and we are a bit excited about her," adds Farran Anstock.

One of four brothers and the only one with a penchant for Thoroughbreds, Anstock is clearly enjoying his role back in the family business, which also extends to the odd pinhook or two.

He says, "It's quiet around here. Dad's out every day doing a bit of work on the farm. We're quite a close-knit family. We also have Niall Horgan, who was at Cheveley Park Stud, Plantation Stud and did six or seven years at Coolmore, so he's extremely capable." Cont. p5

Kingman colt out of Parle Moi | Emma Berry

He added, "Jeremy comes here every month or so to see the stock, and drops in on the horses in training and has played his usual part in all the covers this year."

"Bumble Mitchell previously prepped all our yearlings and she has been so helpful to us over the years. I didn't know how she would feel about me coming back to the farm and doing the yearlings but she has been fantastic and she said, 'I'm on the phone whenever you need me'. At Doncaster she was the first person to come down and ask to see the horses and she was really supportive. I really am very grateful for that."

PEDIGREE INSIGHTS

VICTOR LUDORUM

It isn't just the common law legal system which likes a precedent. Breeders love one too, to the extent that many prefer to have the reassurance that a mating represents a proven nick. However, when it comes to close inbreeding, such reassurance isn't usually there to be found. Consequently, it was a bold move on behalf of Gestut Ammerland when Machiavellian's granddaughter Lady Vettori was sent to Shamardal in his first season, as Machiavellian also sired Shamardal's dam Helsinki.

This 3 x 3 inbreeding to Machiavellian may have been a bit radical, but made good theoretical sense, as he had been the best two-year-old of 1989 by a sizeable margin. Cont. p6

He also had the best of bloodlines. By one of America's legendary stallions in Mr. Prospector, Machiavellian had a half-sister to the truly extraordinary Northern Dancer as his second dam. As if that weren't enough, Machiavellian was a brother to another champion 2-year-old in Coup de Genie and their dam Coup de Folie had a third Group 1 winner to her credit in Exit To Nowhere.

Needless to say, the mating between Lady Vettori and Shamardal worked extremely well, resulting in Lope de Vega. A winner of his first two juvenile starts, Lope de Vega proceeded to win both the G1 Poule d'Essai des Poulains and the G1 Prix du Jockey-Club in 2010. The pairing also worked pretty well when the mating was repeated four years later, producing the very useful listed winner Lord of the Land.

Shamardal | Darley

Lope de Vega's Classic successes in 2010 set an attractive precedent, which didn't go unnoticed at Darley. They too had a mare by a son of Machiavellian, this being Street Cry's daughter Lura. Although Lura had carried the Godolphin colours only once, she was a well-connected individual who had cost $725,000 as a yearling.

But Lura wouldn't create 3 x 3 inbreeding only to Machiavellian. Her sire Street Cry was a brother to Shamardal's dam Helsinki, so sending Lura to Shamardal would also produce 3 x 3 inbreeding to Helen Street. As close inbreeding is likely to reinforce not only a horse's virtues but also its flaws, the subject needs to have shown itself superior in every way.

Helen Street had certainly done that. Only Oh So Sharp, future winner of the 1000 Guineas, Oaks and St Leger, managed to beat Helen Street in her three juvenile starts, which also featured a wide-margin success in the G3 Prix du Calvados. Cont. p7

The Ballymacoll homebred was also a clear-cut winner of the G1 Irish Oaks. The big and rangy Helen Street was one of only 125 foals sired by the magnificent Troy, whose early death tends to make him something of a forgotten hero. Defeated only once in seven 3-year-old starts, he won the Derby by seven lengths, the Irish Derby by four and then the King George and the Benson & Hedges Gold Cup (Juddmonte International).

Conformation also has to be taken into account when arranging any mating, and here Darley must have been confident that combining Shamardal with Street Cry was potentially a good thing. Back in 2008, before Shamardal had had any runners, Darley's advertising campaign for this champion son of Giant's Causeway made a point of highlighting Shamardal's relationship to Street Cry. And if I remember correctly, the campaign also drew attention to the physical similarities between Shamardal and Street Cry.

The mating went ahead in 2011 and the resultant filly, Lucida, went quite close to becoming a Classic winner. Beaten only a neck in the G1 Moyglare Stud S., she then won the G2 Rockfel S. It was a measure of her toughness that her first four starts came in the space of less than eight weeks, which is a reminder that Shamardal once reeled off three Group 1 victories in the space of a month.

Lucida trained on well enough to finish second to Legatissimo, beaten three-parts of a length, in the 1000 Guineas and she was beaten a similar margin when third to those first-rate fillies Evedya and Found in the G1 Coronation S. With her combination of pedigree and performance, Lucida should make a first-rate broodmare, so make a note of her first foal, a 2018 colt by Dubawi.

Darley had also been encouraged to send Helen Street's granddaughter Antiquities to Shamardal in 2012. This time, though, the close inbreeding failed to pay off, with the resultant colt, Ancient History, showing only fairly useful form in France before being transferred to Australia. However, Lucida's exploits in 2014 and '15 no doubt persuaded the Godolphin team to give Antiquities a second chance with Shamardal in 2016. This time the pairing has worked much better, as the resultant foal, Victor Ludorum, maintained his unbeaten record in landing the G1 Prix Jean-Luc Lagardere two days ago.

As always, it is possible to attribute too much significance to inbreeding in a pedigree and it must be pointed out that neither Pinatubo nor Earthlight, the other Group 1 winners in Shamardal's exceptional 2017 crop, have any close inbreeding in their pedigrees.

The independent option™

However, Lucida and Victor Ludorum make a compelling argument that there is something to be gained from close inbreeding to Helen Street, while Lope de Vega and Lucida make a similar case for Machiavellian. Shamardal also has another black-type winner inbred to Helen Street in Shamtee, whose second dam is Helen Street's fairly useful daughter Grecian Slipper. Shamtee was winning her third consecutive race when she landed the Prix Finlande last year, when she was also a creditable fourth in the G2 Prix de Sandringham.

Victor Ludorum is the second good winner produced by Antiquities, his predecessor being Mary Tudor, a Dawn Approach filly with no duplications in her first four generations. Mary Tudor excelled herself when third behind Sea of Class and Forever Together in last year's G1 Irish Oaks.

Antiquities's sire Kaldounevees isn't exactly a household name.

Victor Ludorum | Scoop Dyga

Something of a late maturer, he gained Group 3 successes in the Prix Edmond Blanc and Prix du Chemin de Fer du Nord over a mile as a 4-year-old. He then stepped up in distance to finish second in Group 1 events in Germany and the U.S., with his American defeat coming in the Man O'War S. over 1 3/8 miles.

He burst onto the scene as a stallion in the early noughties, thanks to the exploits of his daughter Terre A Terre and his son Ange Gabriel. Terre A Terre became a Group 1 winner in the 2001 Prix de l'Opera and then collected $1.2 million for her victory over Noverre in the G1 Dubai Duty Free. Ange Gabriel, for his part, won the Grand Prix de Saint-Cloud and Hong Kong Vase in 2002, before repeating his Saint-Cloud success in 2003.

The exploits of these cheaply-produced Group 1 winners provided the impetus for Darley to send Helen Street's listed-winning daughter Historian to Kaldounevees in 2004.

Their daughter Antiquities was talented at around a mile and a quarter, so Victor Ludorum should have no stamina problems if he attempts to follow in the footsteps of Shamardal and Lope de Vega in the Prix du Jockey-Club. He is the third Group 1 winner out of a Kaldounevees mare, following the Melbourne Cup winner Dunaden and the Prix Jean Romanet winner Nonza.

WELFARE HOT TOPIC AT IFHA CONFERENCE

By Kelsey Riley

PARIS, France—The challenges that a changing social landscape present to horse racing were fully apparent at the International Conference of Horseracing Authorities in Paris on Monday, where topics like horse welfare, public perception and how racing can remain relevant dominated discussion.

“It’s deadly urgent,” said Craig Fravel, the outgoing president and chief executive officer of Breeders’ Cup who soon takes up the position of chief executive officer of racing operations at Santa Anita Park, when asked how pressing racing’s broader global issues are. “We had an unfortunate situation at Santa Anita in January and February which everyone has read about, but that wasn’t a particularly unusual situation. We’ve all had situations with horses dying over the years and we’ve tried to figure out what we can do better, but the fact of the matter is that the media landscape has changed and the world perceives us different.

“At the end of the day we all have to get up in the morning and look in the mirror and ask ourselves, ‘are we doing everything we can to prevent this happening to the extent humanely possible?’” Cont. p10

He continued, “The fact is we haven’t done everything we can do. We haven’t focused our efforts enough on research from birth to the grave, looking at everything that happens with the breeding and raising of horses, the medical treatments that take place as foals and yearlings; racing is a great laboratory. We have an opportunity to investigate everything we do. We have to stop making excuses and we have to stop saying this is a public relations problem that can be answered by hashtags. We have to ask ourselves if we’re doing everything we can.”

Rick Arthur, equine medical director of the California Horse Racing Board, also served up a stark warning.

“Horse racing must adapt and meet ethical standards or it will not survive,” he said. “There is a good chance that in California, the fifth largest economy in the world, racing may not survive.”

Arthur reflected on the events at Santa Anita earlier in the year where the breakdown rate caused a firestorm.

“I agree medication is a factor, but I think it’s more complicated than that,” he said. “We predominantly race on dirt surfaces in the U.S., and claiming and selling races make up a huge part of the U.S. racing landscape. The result is a culture where horses tend to be treated as commodities. Horses are commodities everywhere in the world, but the U.S. racing model amplifies that.”

The power of public perception on the sport is reflected in the fact that, despite the uproar, the breakdown numbers at Santa Anita were actually below the norm.

“In spite of the attention at Santa Anita this winter, California ended up the fiscal year on June 30 with the second-lowest number of fatalities since 1990,” Arthur said. “Reducing fatalities has been a long-term trend and part of an ongoing concerted effort to improve safety in California and the U.S.”

The whip was a heavily debated topic throughout the day, and the 40-some delegates in attendance were asked to weigh-in through an anonymous poll on whether they felt the whip was simply a public perception problem, or a genuine welfare issue. It should be noteworthy that the results came in nearly split: 55% siding with public perception only, and 44.8% saying they believed it was a welfare issue.

“I think we recognize we have to do something about whips,” Arthur said. “You might be surprised to learn that whip use was a factor in three Santa Anita fatalities. In all those instances when the injured horse started backing out the jockey went to the whip rather than helping ease the horse up. I can’t say those injuries would not have been fatal but there is no question the whip exacerbated those injuries.”

In a panel on the current environment and future of welfare, Brant Dunshea, chief regulatory officer of the British Horseracing Authority, detailed a study that was undertaken on risk factors in jumps racing that was prompted after six horses died at the Cheltenham festival last year. The data was gathered from some 300,000 races dating back to 2009. Nearly 50 variables were applied to the data, from going and race time to field size and days since last run, and 17 recommendations were rolled out to increase safety upon review of the data, consultation and video evidence. Dunshea expressed the importance of sharing data among disciplines and jurisdictions, a sentiment shared by the Hong Kong Jockey Club's head of veterinary regulation, welfare and biosecurity policy Dr. Brian Stewart.

"When I was with Racing Victoria, [anti-race groups] would produce figures about [subjects such as slaughter and breakdowns] and I'd say 'well, those aren't right.' They'd say, 'ok, where are your figures?' And I didn't have them. Racing Victoria has since changed that.

"We need to get our house in order," Stewart added. "It's dangerous to go out saying what a good job we're doing when there are things that could be done better."

Victoria Carter, deputy chairman of New Zealand Thoroughbred Racing, laid out of the benefits of positive public relations campaigns.

"In New Zealand, we've had some issues with our dairy and fishing industries and the ethics surrounding them," she said. "What I've noticed is their governing bodies have recognized they have an issue with public perception, so they've been artful in their PR. It's all feel-good, and racing has so many beautiful stories, but we don't do a great enough job of telling them and selling them."

Carter's panel on consumer and political perspectives was moderated by Richard Hytner, a racing syndicate member and the founder of London-based management consultant firm beta baboon, who spoke about the importance of an industry being united in its purpose. The panel turned the tables on Hytner, asking for his recommendations on defining racing's purpose, to which he responded, "You want to be the champions of that beautiful creature called the horse, and the entertainment and fascination that John Gosden [speaking earlier via pre-recorded video] talked about. It has to be something that puts the horse back at the center of our national lives, the romance of the horse--the fact that you are looking after the well-being of that horse for a lifetime. That's a cause you can champion."

A panel of international horse people got the day underway with a wide-ranging discussion on topics pertaining to the well-being and future interest of the industry globally.

When it comes to the task of growing racing's ownership and fan bases, John Gosden, speaking by pre-recorded video, noted society's changing landscape.

"A lot of our population are very urbanized," he said. "The world of the countryside and animals is increasingly alien. To that extent, we're dealing with a different world now. Horse racing is an entertainment industry and it therefore must be entertaining, fascinating and fun all in equal measure. And it's a serious business. If you lose sight of that, you lose the whole point of it.

"You cannot get away from the problems of prizemoney particularly in the UK, Ireland and France. The average age of racing fans has crept up. Racing is a social event, and racecourses have woken up to this and they make a huge effort, but we're not in the fortunate position of the likes of Hong Kong and Japan where people just come for the racing." Cont. p12

“We have to have our antennae up in all directions and work hand-in-hand with the authorities and the racecourses,” he added.

Ezequiel Valle of leading Argentine stud Haras Firmamento shared Gosden’s sentiments on the importance of engaging the next generation.

“We need to work with influencers and social networks because they think completely differently,” he noted. “To attract new owners, a very positive thing is what they do in Australia: promoting racing syndicates. That is the best way to get new owners.”

Horse welfare is an area of paramount importance, and Valle said eliminating raceday medication is key.

“Most racing accidents happen because of a previous injury not detected or hidden by drugs, and we have to stop this,” he said. “There was a study done by the University of Glasgow [on South American races from 2015 to 2017] that showed that in races where horses were allowed to run with phenylbutazone, injury rates were higher than in races where they weren’t. In Argentina we’re allowed to run with this medication at four years old, so I think this should be limited.”

Gosden made his stance on raceday medication clear, adding, “you cannot in this day and age think it’s ok for a horse to be intravenously injected the day of the race. This opinion in this day and age cannot hold. The integrity of the sport is critically being scrutinized in this department.

Criquette Head, trainer of Arc winners Treve and Three Troikas, was also in agreement.

“I’m 100% in favour of drug-free racing, because I think you kill more horses if you give them bute and things like that. If a horse doesn’t feel pain it will go to the end. The trainer should be a trainer, not a chemist. I never used a vet because I’m not a believer in them.”

On the broader topic of horse welfare, Gosden said that modern-day micro-chipping technology leaves little excuse for horses slipping through the cracks.

“We need to set up a data bank and follow all horses through, which is now possible with micro-chipping,” he said. “We have to track our horses and that’s the responsibility of everyone who breeds them and owns them—the first owner, second owner, third owner. It’s not a difficult thing with the technology we have now to track them.”

Gosden and Head have both plied their trade at the highest levels of racing for many years, and they were in agreement on one factor that has changed the business dramatically.

“In the late 1980s I was working in California and you had great stables like the Whitneys, the Mellons, Greentree, the Neruds, Elmendorf Farm; there were all these operations breeding to race with tough, sound stock,” he said. “And in Britain we had a great number of owners/breeders which we still do, but from about 1980 onwards the sales got bigger and bigger. A lot of people began breeding for the sales and now a lot of people breed purely to sell. And that horse is a very different creature. When you’re breeding to race you’re looking to eliminate any weakness, but now you see mares that had weaknesses showing up with yearlings at the sales because they have a good pedigree. That’s not a healthy thing for the industry.”

Head added, “That’s why you always have to bring in new blood, to help eliminate these weaknesses. We breed to race, but a few years ago my dad [legendary horseman Alec Head] stopped and now we breed to sell. He says the sales have changed completely; in France there are very few big owner/breeders who are breeding to race because it’s very expensive. Again, people want to make money with horses, that’s why they go to the sales.”

The merits of globally important race meetings were also highlighted, and the latest of those is the Saudi Cup, which will debut in 2020 and feature the world’s new richest race, the $20-million Saudi Cup over 1800 metres on the dirt. Prince Bandar bin Khalid Al Faisal, chairman of the Jockey Club of Saudi Arabia, and Paul Roberts, principal of Turnberry Consulting and advisor to the club, were on hand to share details of Saudi racing’s growth.

Prince Bandar noted that he set out a year ago with a goal of bringing Saudi Arabia up to Part I status, and that the looming deadline of the inaugural Saudi Cup is helping bring every aspect of the local industry up to international standards. Total prizemoney in the country has been on the rise since 2013, topping out at over $18 million in 2018/19, and subsequently the number of races has risen from around 610 annually to around 635 last season. The foal crop has also steadily climbed, from around 1,500 in 2013 to about 2,400 last season.

DERBY WINNER MASAR TO STAND AT DALHAM HALL ALONGSIDE TOO DARN HOT

2018 G1 Investec Derby hero Masar (Ire) (New Approach {Ire}–Khawlah {Ire}, by Cape Cross {Ire}) will join champion & G1SW Too Darn Hot (GB) (Dubawi {Ire}) at Dalham Hall Stud in 2020, Darley announced on Monday. Their fees will be released at a later date. Cont. p13

Bred by Godolphin and trained by Charlie Appleby, the Classic winner also won the G3 Craven S. at three after saluting in the G3 Solario S. as a juvenile. He sports four wins in 11 starts, and was also third in both the 2018 G1 English 2000 Guineas and 2017 G1 Prix Jean-Luc Lagardere. Injury cut short the remainder of the son of UAE highweight Khawlah's 3-year-old campaign and he was retired after two runs at four.

"It is an honour to stand a horse of the quality of Masar," said Darley's Director of Stallions Sam Bullard. "He won the race we all strive to win but had the speed to beat a Group 2-winning sprinter on his six-furlong debut before going on to win the G3 Solario S. He became the first Derby winner to wear the Godolphin blue and beat champion Roaring Lion (Kitten's Joy) all three times they met. From one of the best families in the studbook, he had a higher juvenile rating than his illustrious relatives Galileo (Ire) and Sea The Stars (Ire). Prudent breeders will have him on their list."

A Watership Down Stud homebred for Lord Lloyd-Webber, 'TDN Rising Star' Too Darn Hot was slated to stand under the Darley banner at Dalham Hall since last November. Highweighted at two in England after wins in the G3 Solario S., G2 Champagne S. and G1 Dewhurst S. in succession, the bay returned a three to capture both the G1 Qatar Prix Jean Prat and the G1 Qatar Sussex S. in his final two starts for trainer John Gosden. He was also runner-up in the G1 Irish 2000 Guineas and G2 Dante S. and third in Royal Ascot's G1 St. James's Palace S. in a nine-start career. The son of English highweight and 2009 G1 Yorkshire Oaks winner Dar Re Mi, who also struck in the G1 Pretty Polly S. in Ireland and in the G1 Dubai Sheema Classic in the UAE, sustained a career-ending injury and was retired in early August.

"When we set out to create Watership Down Stud with the purchase of Darara, we wanted to breed the best," said Simon Marsh, Racing Manager for Watership Down Stud. "Too Darn Hot comprises everything the Lloyd Webbers set out to achieve. He has taken us all on an incredible journey and has everything you want in a stallion—talent, precocity, pedigree and looks."

STUDY OF MAN RETIRED, WILL STAND AT LANWADES

Classic winner Study of Man (Ire) (Deep Impact {Jpn}--Second Happiness, by Storm Cat) has been retired and will stand his first season at Lanwades Stud in 2020, the stud announced on Monday. His fee will be revealed later. A Flaxman Stables homebred for the Niarchos Family, the Pascal Bary trainee scored in the 2018 G1 QIPCO Prix du Jockey Club, one start after his win in the G2 Prix Greffulhe at Saint-Cloud. A winner of his only start at two, Study of Man also filled the frame in a further five group races, among them the 2019 G1 Prix Ganay and G1 Prix d'Isphahan. He goes to stud with a mark of 11-3-3-2 and $1,353,967 in earnings.

"We are thrilled to see French Derby winner Study of Man join fellow Derby winners Sir Percy (GB) (Mark of Esteem {Ire}) and Sea The Moon (Ger) (Sea The Stars {Ire}), as well as Breeders' Cup Turf Sprint winner Bobby's Kitten (Kitten's Joy), at Lanwades." said the stud's Owner and General Manager, Kirsten Rausing. "I am immensely grateful to Maria Niarchos Gouaze and the entire Niarchos Family for letting us have Study of Man at Lanwades."

GHAIYYATH’S BRO TO BE OFFERED AT GOFFS NOVEMBER

A full-brother to G1SW and €1.1-million Goffs November Foal Sale graduate Ghaiyyath (Ire) (Dubawi {Ire}–Nightime {Ire}, by Galileo {Ire}) will be offered by The Castlebridge Consignment at the 2019 Goffs November Foal Sale on Nov. 18-23. Bred by Dermot Weld’s Springbank Way Stud, the March-foaled colt’s dam won the G1 Irish 1000 Guineas. Ghaiyyath, whose price is a record for the most expensive colt foal sold in Ireland, landed an impressive 14-length victory in the G1 Grosser Preis von Baden in Germany this September for Godolphin. The weanling is also a half-brother to GI Man O’War S. victress Zhukova (Ire) (Fastnet Rock {Aus}).

“Dermot Weld created history at Goffs when Ghaiyyath topped our November Foal Sale in 2015, setting a new record for a colt foal in Ireland as well as being Europe’s highest foal price that year,” said Goffs Group Chief Executive Henry Beeby. “That Mr. Weld is returning to Goffs with the own-brother this year is a wonderful endorsement of the November Sale and of the Goffs service. I saw the colt in the summer and can report that he is a stunner. This Dubawi foal out of Nightime exemplifies the quality and potential on offer this year at Goffs November Sale.”

The Goffs November Foal Sale catalogue will be available online on Oct. 14.

LESTER PIGGOTT BRONZE TO BE UNVEILED AT ROWLEY MILE

A bronze of legendary jockey Lester Piggott, one of nine life-sized bronzes to commemorate the reinsman's nine Derby winners, will be revealed at Newmarket's Rowley Mile prior to racing on Oct. 12. Sculpted by William Newton, the reveal will have Piggott on hand, as well as current jockey Frankie Dettori in the parade ring. The racecourse is also running a competition where the prize is for one lucky winner to join the VIP guests for the unveiling ceremony and meet Piggott. On both days of the Dubai Future Champions Festival, there will also be a special exhibition, 'Lester: Behind the Legend'.

"Lester is a legend and his contribution to the sport is immeasurable, so it is wholly appropriate that he should be honoured in this way at the Home of Horseracing and in what became his home town," said The Jockey Club's East Region Regional Director Amy Starkey. "We are privileged to have been selected as a location for one of William Newton's bronzes and we, along with many thousands of racegoers and all those involved with our wonderful sport, will treasure it for generations to come."

HIGH ACCOLADE (IRE) (c, 2, Outstrip {GB}--Honey mead {Ire}, by Pivotal {GB}), backed into 11-10 favouritism on this debut, stalked the leading duo early. Sent to the front approaching the furlong pole, the grey held off the challenge of Saint of Katowice (Ire) (Elzaam {Aus}) to prevail by a half-length and become the 15th winner for his freshman sire (by Exceed and Excel {Aus}).

Mashaël, who registered an Apr. 24 debut third before slipping to a May 17 fifth in early-season outings at Chantilly, graduated when upped to 12 furlongs at Clairefontaine after nearly three months off and was a class above back down in distance for this black-type bow. Stalking the pace in third after an alert getaway from the inside stall, she made headway under mild pressure in the straight to lead approaching the final eighth and powered clear in the closing stages to easily register a career high.

Mashaël is the first foal and lone performer out of an unraced full-sister to G1 Epsom Oaks heroine Was (Ire) (Galileo {Ire}) and G3 Derrinstown Stud Derby Trial victor Douglas Macarthur (Ire) (Galileo {Ire}). His MSP second dam Alluring Park (Ire) (Green Desert) is kin to four black-type performers, headed by MG1SW sire New Approach (Ire), out of G1SW British and Irish champion Park Express (Ire) (Ahonoora {GB}). In front briefly in the initial stages, the bay tracked the pace under cover and came home strongly to overhaul Think Of Me and Ambition in the final 50 metres.

The dam, who also has a filly foal by Almanzor (Fr), was bought from George Strawbridge's ranks for 52,000gns at the 2011 Tattersalls December Mares Sale.

NOBODY'S (FR) (c, 2, Vespone {Ire}--Lady Speedy {Ire}, by Speedmaster {Ger}), who claimed a narrow verdict in his Aug. 20 debut going one mile at Vichy last time, tanked to the front after breaking in rear here. Untroubled for the most part, the 26-5 chance was stoked up when threatened inside the final quarter mile and kept on well for continued coaxing underneath the stands' side rail to hold Glory Maker (Fr) (The Wow Signal {Ire}) by 1 1/2 lengths. Half-brother to a yearling colt by Doctor Dino (Fr) and a 2019 filly by Storm the Stars, he is one of two scorers out of a granddaughter of Chile's G1 Premio Arturo Lyon Pena victress Exactly Red (Roy), herself a full-sister to G1 Gran Premio Hipodromo Chile-winning sire As de Copas. Lifetime Record: 2-2-0-0, €26,000. Video, sponsored by Fasig-Tipton. O/T-Henri-Alex Pantall; B-Henri-Alex & Yvette Pantall (FR).

SYRDARYA (FR) (f, 2, Invincible Spirit {Ire}--Siyenica {Fr}, by Azamour {Ire}) settled off the pace under cover in mid division for most of this unveiling. Easing into contention on the bridle in the straight, the 14-5 favourite was shaken up for her challenge approaching the final eighth and ridden out to deny Marbling (GB) (Kingman {GB}) by a short neck on the line. Syrdarya, the third foal and scorer produced by MGSP Listed Prix de Bagatelle victress Siyenica (Fr) (Azamour {Ire}), is a half-sister to this year's G1 Prix Saint-Alary heroine Siyarafina (Fr) (Pivotal {GB}) and a yearling colt by Golden Horn (GB). Siyenica, herself out of a stakes-winning half to MG1SW sire Slickly (Fr) (Linamix {Fr}), is kin to three black-type performers headed by G1 Prix Jean-Luc Lagardere-winning sire Siyouni (Fr) (Pivotal {GB}) and MG1SW distaffer Siyouma (Ire) (Medicean {GB}). YOKER (FR) (c, 2, Manduro {Ger}--Nova Luz {GB}, by Divine Light {Jpn}) edged right exiting the outside gate and was soon stalking the pace under a firm hold in second. Fanning wide into the straight, the 93-10 chance was rowed along passing the two pole and kept on resolutely under increased urging in the latter stages to deny Celestin (Fr) (Dabirsim {Fr}) by 3/4-of-a-length in the dying strides. Becoming the fourth scorer from as many runners produced by a winning granddaughter of G1 Prix du Cadran heroine Mercalle (Fr) (Kaldoun {Fr}), the January-foaled bay is kin to Listed Criterium du Languedoc third Ecrin des Bieffes (Fr) (Shakespearean {Ire}), a yearling filly by Olympic Glory (Ire) and a 2019 filly by Dream Ahead. OUTBURST (GB) (f, 2, Outstrip {GB}--Daidoo {Ire}, by Shamardal), runner-up on debut at Mont-de-Marsan Sept. 7, broke well and tanked along in front. Stretching her rivals from the top of the straight, the 29-10 shot was kept up to her work to score with a degree of comfort by 3/4 of a length from Kendiss (Fr) (Kendargent {Fr}) and become the 14th winner for her freshman sire (by Exceed And Excel {Aus}). SPOTLIGHT ON RARE FILLY AT TATTS

by Paul Vettise

Atlantic Jewel (Fastnet Rock) was a star during her racing days in Australia and the multiple Group 1 winner is now poised to make her mark in the ring when the first of her progeny to ever be sold at public auction goes under the hammer in England this week. Owned by a syndicate that includes the powerhouse breeding and racing giant Coolmore, the mare was sent to Ireland to begin her breeding career after a tendon injury had forced her retirement in 2013.

Atlantic Jewel's son Pacific Ocean (Ire) (Galileo {Ire}) has been a winner this year for champion trainer Aidan O'Brien while the colt's brother and stablemate Russian Emperor (Ire) placed in his only appearance.

Now, the ownership syndicate will offer a full-sister in the draft of Ireland's Baroda Stud as lot 179 during the Book 1 session of Tattersalls October Yearling Sale.

"She's a beautiful filly, full of quality and with a great action. She has no flaws," said David Cox, who owns and manages the County Kildare nursery. "You can't keep them all and she's a very rare item as the only filly the mare has ever had so we're very excited.

"Her oldest brother has been a nice winner and Russian Emperor was a very good third on debut at The Curragh. He should have won over seven furlongs and was flying at the finish. It was a hot maiden race and Aidan really likes him. He thinks he'll be running in the Guineas Trial next year."

Atlantic Jewel has since returned home to New South Wales and has a positive test this season on her first cover to the American Triple Crown winner Justify (USA). She was purchased by the ownership syndicate, which also includes former Australian Turf Club Chairman Lawrie Macri and Newmarket-based vet Mathilde Texier, at the 2010 Magic Millions Gold Coast Yearling Sale for $320,000 off the back of the group's earlier racing successes. They had previously owned the G1 Thousand Guineas winner Irish Lights (Fastnet Rock) and the G2 Reisling S. winner Hips Don't Lie (NZ) (Stravinsky {USA}).

Guineas Heroine

Atlantic Jewel was subsequently placed with trainer Mark Kavanagh and won her first three starts before claiming the G1 Thousand Guineas, in which she downed four-time Group 1 winner Mosheen (Fastnet Rock), and the G2 Wakeful S. She was then ranked as the world's top-rated 3-year-old middle distance filly. Her 4 and 5-year-old seasons were every bit as spectacular and her unbeaten run continued with victories in the G1 All Aged S. and the G1 Memsie S., with success in the G2 Sapphire S. in between times. She added the G2 Stock S. to her unblemished record before her streak was ended by the Sydney Triple Crown winner Dundee (NZ) in the 2013 G1 Underwood S. The mare bounced back to claim the G1 Caulfield S. in what was to be her final appearance and retired as the winner of 10 of her 11 starts. Cont. p2

Group 1 Family

A half-sister to the G1 Thousand Guineas winner Commanding Jewel (Commands), Atlantic Jewel is a daughter of Regard (Zabeel {NZ}), who is a half-sister to the dam of the dual Group 2 winner I Am Excited (I Am Invincible). The family has also made an international impact with the third dam Pass The Peace (Ire) (Alzao {USA}), the winner of the G1 Cheveley Park S., and a race her daughter Embassy (GB) (Cadeaux Genereux {GB}) followed up in. The family also includes the G1 Prix Maurice de Gheest winner King's Apostle (Ire) (King's Best {USA}) and the G1 Turffontein Computaform Sprint winner Pacific Trader (SAf) (Sail From Seattle {Can}).

“Regard was a remarkable broodmare and the pedigree is very, very strong. It works in both Australia and Europe,” Cox said. “They always wanted to have foals in both hemispheres.”
