

OFFICIALS ANNOUNCE HORSE RACING INTEGRITY AND SAFETY AUTHORITY

Mitch McConnell | Getty Images

by T.D. Thornton

Backed by the political clout of United States Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-KY), proponents of a federal bill mandating an independent anti-doping and medication control program for horse racing announced at an Aug. 31 press conference at Keeneland that a retooled version of the framework of legislation that has existed since 2015 will be introduced in the Senate in September by McConnell himself.

Backers of the bill spoke Monday of newfound compromise and consensus among the sport's stakeholders that they said would help to usher the Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act (HSIA) to passage. They also outlined how a nine-member oversight board known as the Horseracing Integrity and Safety Authority would craft the new program, and how that Authority would contract with the United States Anti-Doping Agency (USADA) to manage and administer the new set of rules. A fresh component that would also cover racetrack safety standards will also be written into McConnell's new version of the bill.

But more questions than answers were raised by the half-hour media event. There was no discussion of how this new Authority would be funded, and there was zero mention of the contentious topic of race-day medication (specifically Lasix), the prohibition of which has been a difficult sticking point in previous versions of the bill. Cont. p3

KENTUCKY DERBY Q & A WITH B. WAYNE HUGHES by Bill Finley

It could be quite a Derby week for Spendthrift Farm and its owner B. Wayne Hughes. Spendthrift has never won a Triple Crown race, but is in solid position in this year's GI Kentucky Derby with two starters it co-owns, Authentic (Into Mischief) and Thousand Words (Pioneerof the Nile). It could also be a huge couple of days for Spendthrift's white-hot stallion, Into Mischief. He will be represented by 'TDN Rising Star' Authentic in the Derby and by the freakishly fast 'Rising Star' Gamine in the GI Kentucky Oaks.

Hughes sat down with the TDN to talk about a number of topics, including his Derby starters, Into Mischief and his relationship with Myracehorse.com, the inventive partnership group that has sold microshares in Authentic and other Spendthrift-owned horses. Cont. p8

Integrity and Safety Authority Announced

Although a representative from Churchill Downs, Inc. (CDI), was on the sales pavilion stage with the bill's proponents and the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) was mentioned as a supporter two minutes before the press conference ended, there was no discussion about what trade-offs had been made to gain the favor of those two entities, both of which had previously not supported federally mandated oversight of the sport.

In addition, the post-conference question-and-answer session with reporters was not made available to journalists working off the internet stream. TDN emailed McConnell's media liaison three brief follow-up questions about funding, the status of race-day medication, and how the compromises with non-supporters came about. A spokesperson replied without addressing the questions, writing instead that, "I will make sure you're updated with more info when the Senator's bill is introduced!"

The Blood-Horse subsequently reported that the new bill would still outlaw the use of race-day Lasix, but that states would be allowed to request a three-year waiver for some exceptions. TDN could not independently verify this aspect of the legislation.

McConnell, who is running for reelection to a seventh term, began the introduction of his bill by saying he decided to get involved in the crafting of federal horse racing legislation after reading that the Washington Post had editorialized banning the sport outright.

"We've seen painful tragedies on the track in recent years. Doping scandals have rocked the horse racing community," McConnell said. "These challenges pose a threat, not only to this industry, but also to the 24,000 Kentuckians who work in it...If we want to preserve horse racing and its future, we [need] to act."

McConnell said his bill, which is expected to be introduced sometime after the current Congressional break that extends through Labor Day, will give federal recognition and enforcement responsibility for the Authority "to develop uniform, baseline standards. With the weight of the federal government behind the [Authority] we can improve current regulations. We can better protect every competitor and give each of them a fair shot at the winner's circle.

"I've had some preliminary discussions with [Democratic Senator] Dianne Feinstein from California, who's had an ongoing concern about this and an interest in it," McConnell continued.

“We anticipate we will have bipartisan support,” McConnell continued. “This is not a particularly bipartisan place we’re in right now in Congress, as you may have noticed. But we are hopeful that a subject like this can overcome the partisanship that’s pretty much been on full display as we get closer and closer to the election.”

U.S. Representative Andy Barr (R-KY), who co-chairs the Congressional Horse Caucus and has co-sponsored three previous versions of the Horseracing Integrity Act (2015, 2017, 2019), said that he plans to support an amendment to his existing piece of legislation that is still active in the House “to bring it into mirror-image conformity” with McConnell’s proposed version.

“The consensus we are here to announce and celebrate today not only accelerates our momentum, it is propelling us down the home stretch,” Barr said. “And I’m confident it will advance the safety, integrity, and international competitiveness of American horse racing.”

McConnell’s version, Barr said, “materially improves our bill by adding a focus on track surface safety, and by making reasonable changes that have enabled us to enlarge our coalition of support and bring more organizations with the industry together in support of our legislation.... As I’ve said many times, this legislation is not about more regulation. It is about creating a single, nationwide set of rules that will result in smarter, more effective, streamlined regulation for the industry.”

Barr said the previous three versions of the Integrity Act that he championed served to aid in “educating members [of Congress] about the industry and persuaded our colleagues that horse racing is a matter of interstate commerce, and that Congress has the constitutional authority to regulate it.”

Barr thanked Churchill Downs for working with his coalition and “joining the cause,” and he praised the HBPA for sharing an “influential voice in support of this legislation.”

But Barr did not elaborate on what those “reasonable changes” were that won over those two opponents. Eric Hamelback, the HBPA’s national chief executive, in a late evening response to a request for comment by TDN, denied the organization had been part of any compromise (story page 6).

CDI chief executive Bill Carstanjen, who as recently as last October said he had “serious concerns” about the Integrity Act and did not think federal legislation was “practical, reasonable, or imminent,” on Monday spoke in favor of McConnell’s forthcoming version of the bill.

“The crux of the bill is that this new entity, the Authority, will have jurisdiction over the design, implementation and enforcement of anti-doping and medication controls, as well as racetrack safety protocols,” Carstanjen said.

“With respect to the anti-doping and medication control program, the Authority will contract with the United States Anti-Doping Agency (USADA) for their services in managing and administering the program developed by the authority,” Carstanjen continued. “The Authority may also contract with state racing commissions, as it makes sense both with respect to the medication and control program and racetrack safety program.”

Bill Lear Jr., the vice chair of The Jockey Club, detailed how a "blue-ribbon panel" would choose an "independent board" that would, in turn, govern the Authority.

That independent board, Lear said, will be primarily comprised by people outside the industry, and it will be "supported by two substantive standing committees" (one for medication and anti-doping, another for track safety). A third standing committee, he explained, will evolve out of the blue-ribbon panel into a "permanent nominating committee to ensure that we always have top-quality people, the kind we would want to regulate the industry, all with no conflicts."

The enforcement entity will be USADA, Lear said, adding that "the hallmark of this entire program will be independence, industry expertise, and effective enforcement."

Following McConnell's announcement, Monday, industry groups released statements in support of the bill. Statements follow:

Craig Fravel, CEO of The Stronach Group's 1/ST RACING

“1/ST RACING is committed to achieving the highest level of horse care and safety standards in Thoroughbred racing and we strongly urge Congress to consider the adoption of The Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act that will introduce national policies to control medication and regulate anti-doping in the sport of horseracing. At 1/ST RACING our priority is to ensure the safety of our horses and riders and we believe that the investment into equine health and safety is not only the right thing to do, it is crucial to the future of Thoroughbred horseracing. The Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act recognizes that industry stakeholders including the owners, trainers, breeders, jockeys, and racetrack operators must be unified toward a new standard of equine health, safety and welfare.”

Joe Appelbaum, President of the New York Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association

“Horsemen should view today's developments with the Horse Racing Integrity and Safety Act with hope. It's been clear for a generation that a systematic approach to equine welfare is needed and this effort is a big step in that direction. The broad changes proposed today by Senator McConnell are a significant improvement on previous drafts of legislation and I'd like to personally commend the industry participants for working together to overcome their differences. Cont. p6”

HBPA ‘NEVER CONSULTED’ ON NEW VERSION OF INTEGRITY ACT by T.D. Thornton

Six hours after an Aug. 31 press conference at which United States Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-KY) and other proponents of a federal bill announced newly achieved compromise among industry stakeholders in crafting new anti-doping oversight for horse racing, Eric Hamelback, the CEO of the National Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA), told TDN that his organization is actually not on board with the plan.

Hamelback’s emailed clarification was in response to a request for comment from TDN that did not arrive in time to be included in the original version of this story.

Much of the context of Monday’s press conference at Keeneland to announce the Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act (HSIA) bill that McConnell intends to file in September was based around the terms “compromise,” “consensus” and “bringing everybody together.” This was an especially salient point because two previous industry holdouts to the concept of federal legislation, Churchill Downs, Inc. (CDI) and the NHBPA, were being billed as having now lent their support to the new version of the bill.

About two minutes before the conclusion of the press conference, U.S. Representative Andy Barr (R-KY), who co-chairs the Congressional Horse Caucus and has co-sponsored three previous versions of the Horseracing Integrity Act (2015, 2017, 2019) thanked CDI (which did have a representative at the event affirming support) for “joining the cause.” Barr then specifically praised trainer Dale Romans for working with his coalition, and he saluted the NHBPA for sharing an “influential voice in support of this legislation.”

Hamelback’s statement to TDN took umbrage with that characterization. It reads, in full:

“Today, U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell announced his plans to introduce legislation that purports to set national standards to promote fairness, transparency, and increased safety in Thoroughbred racing.

“Senator McConnell claims to have found compromise within the industry, yet no representative horsemen’s groups, horseplayers or veterinary leadership organizations seem to have been consulted in the collaboration. The National HBPA represents close to 30,000 owners and trainers who want nothing more than increased safety and integrity to secure the strength of the business and our industry.

“The greatest concern of the National HBPA is protecting the health and safety of horses. If Senator McConnell is serious about hearing from tens of thousands of real Kentuckians, as well as horsemen across the country, we stand ready to meet with him. We certainly hope he will meet with us since those pushing this bill have mischaracterized the industry and our views in the past.

“As CEO, I can tell you we were never consulted on the recently announced Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act. Contrary to an erroneous statement made by another elected official at today’s announcement, the HBPA was not made aware of any ‘compromise’ negotiations until a deal had already been reached, nor has the Board of the National HBPA even been asked for its support.

“Because the legislative text has not yet been released, the National HBPA will reserve final judgement, but we caution our elected leaders to not be misled by the wealthy few who continue to promote federal legislation in service to their own, private interests. Based on what we heard today, we are concerned these elite few continue to hold the reins.”

A CRITICAL STEP FORWARD FOR THE SPORT

by Bill Finley

When 27 individuals were indicted in March by federal authorities for their alleged involvement in a wide-spread doping scheme the story was about more than Jason Servis or Jorge Navarro or the cocktails of performance-enhancing drugs they were charged with using on their horses. It was about a system that was so hopelessly broken and incapable of effectively policing the sport that it took the federal government to come in and do what racing had continually failed to do--take meaningful steps to clean up the game.

There had to be a better way.

Monday, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, surrounded by industry leaders and Congressman Andy Barr, provided just that. The McConnell bill, the Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act, may not be perfect, but is a vast improvement on what we have now. Cont. p8

Passage of the bill would mean the dismantling of a system that involves 38 racing commissions, 38 sets of rules and a long history of getting nothing done and replace it with something that promises to combat the sport's real problems.

"As I have said many times, this legislative effort is not about more regulation it is about creating a single nationwide set of rules that will result in smarter, more effective and streamlined regulation for the industry," said Barr, whose district includes Lexington.

It was ironic that McConnell is now the white knight who has come in to save the sport from itself after it was long felt that he was the primary reason previous legislation, the Horseracing Integrity Act, seemed destined to go nowhere. The story was that Churchill Downs Inc. (CDI) didn't want that bill passed and McConnell had promised them to stand in its way. Yet, CDI CEO Bill Carstanjen was among those who spoke out at Keeneland Monday in favor of McConnell's initiative.

It's unclear why there was an apparent change of heart somewhere, but it doesn't really matter. With McConnell behind what is bipartisan legislation and with Barr taking up the cause in the House of Representatives, this bill is likely to sail through. For that to happen would mark major, long overdue and very necessary change for an industry where nothing substantive ever seems to get accomplished.

The Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act and the creation of the Horseracing Integrity and Safety Authority is about more than just doping. It recognizes the very important challenges that must be tackled when it comes to making the sport as safe as possible and keeping racing's harshest critics off its back.

But it is the ugly issue of doping that this initiative holds the greatest promise. Servis, Navarro and others may be headed to prison and will likely never train a race horse again, but everyone knows that there are many bad apples still out there and that the FBI and Department of Justice will soon move on from horse racing and leave the job of regulating the sport to the racing commissions and the labs that never seem to catch anybody.

McConnell noted that he was moved to act after the Washington Post reacted to the indictments by running an editorial calling for the sport to be abolished. He understood the power of those words.

"When I saw in the Washington Post, of all places, an editorial saying Thoroughbred horse racing should be abolished, I gasped," McConnell said. "When I got past the initial shock of it, I thought it might be a good time to talk to all the various players and see one more time if it were possible for all of us to get together."

Under the Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act, the job of catching the bad guys will be turned over to the United States

Anti-Doping Agency (USADA). Having, among other things, brought down Lance Armstrong, USADA has an impressive record of policing the sports that have called on the agency. USADA not only has a will to clean up the sport, it has more tools at its disposal than a state racing commission could ever have and promises to dramatically increase the number of out-of-competition tests that will be performed.

After the indictments were announced in March, USADA CEO Travis Tygart repeated what has become a familiar argument.

"With the horse racing industry at a crossroads, the right thing to do is to remove the fox from guarding the henhouse and ensure there is an independent anti-doping body in place to protect the integrity of the sport and the safety of the horses," he said in a statement.

Monday's announcement left many questions unanswered, most notably who will pay for the costs, which include USADA, that passage of the bill will involve. For now, we have to trust that racing's stewards will be able to figure that out. And the sport still awaits an answer on whether or not this legislation might mean a complete ban of Lasix.

So far as the bigger picture goes, those are not major issues. This is about tearing down a system that has failed miserably and replacing it with something that promises to take the sport in another direction. Racing will never be perfect. Horses will always break down and have to be euthanized and you are never going to stop people from cheating. But racing can and must do better. Passage of the Horseracing Integrity and Safety Act is its best chance to do just that.

TDN: With two strong contenders for the Derby, how do you feel about your chances and what would it mean to you to win your first Kentucky Derby?

BWH: Well, we're up against some very good horses, especially Tiz the Law, so we're going to need some luck. We bought Thousand Words with the Albaughs as a yearling and we've done a number of horses together so that would be great! Authentic represents so much to us, as a son of our sire, Into Mischief, and with all of our partners: Madaket, Starlight and over 4,000 MyRacehorse owners, that would really be special. I fully expect to see MyRacehorse filling up the stands and winner's circles everywhere in the future!

TDN: You weren't involved with Authentic until buying a majority interest just prior to the Santa Anita Derby. What did you like about him that led to the purchase?

BWH: For starters, talent. He has so much natural speed and he impressed us so much with his athletic ability and good looks, as a son of Into Mischief. We felt we just had to have him.

TDN: You have embraced MyRacehorse.com. What did you see in this new venture that made you want to partner with them?

BWH: Declining attendance at our racetracks is a huge issue. I see MyRacehorse as a way to reverse that trend. If they have one horse in nearly every race on a given day and four or five thousand owners in every horse all betting and buying concessions, think about the impact that would have on a track.

B. Wayne Hughes's Spendthrift Farm is co-owner of two Derby horses, Authentic and Thousand Words | Horsephotos

TDN: In a way, MyRacehorse seems like the racing version of what you have always tried to do as a breeding farm, and that is to increase the number of people in the tent, particularly to smaller owners and breeders. Why has this been such a passion of yours?

BWH: We need fans and we need breeders. Anything we can do to help open up the industry to both helps all of us. When I started out I had a lot of partners, we were claiming horses, going to the races, betting and having a great time. I want to see everybody have that same opportunity.

TDN: MyRacehorse seems to be growing all the time. What is its future, and what are its goals?

BWH: The future is unknown and not predictable...not by me anyway. I'd like to hear what you think about our future. All I can tell you is we are not going away and we are optimistic.

TDN: Thanks for the offer, but I'm going to be safe and just stick to asking the questions! You've been with Thousand Words from the start, when he was bought for $1 million at Keeneland September. It seems that you normally don't like to spend that much on a yearling.

Why did you go out on a limb on this one?

BWH: He's a beautiful horse with a great pedigree and was on both of our lists. Having a great partner in the Albaughs who were equally optimistic about the horse encouraged us to go a little extra on him.

TDN: With Authentic and Gamine, it could be a big couple of days for Into Mischief. It's hard to imagine his stock could go any higher, but what would an Oaks or Derby win or both mean for him as a sire?

BWH: Into Mischief siring an Oaks or Derby winner, or both, would be an incredible accomplishment. He's named after my deceased son, Parker, so I hope he goes down in history as the greatest sire ever.

TDN: Gamine looks like she could be one of the best ever. Your thoughts on her?

BWH: I think I agree!

TDN: What will it be like for you to not be able to attend the Oaks and Derby and could you comment on how strange this year has been and the job the sport has done navigating through these difficult times?

BWH: Our industry as a whole has done a great job of keeping things operating and keeping people safe. Kevin Flanery and his team at Churchill are doing a tremendous job in a very difficult situation. We're just honored to be a part of it.

TDN: How disappointed were you last year when Omaha Beach had to scratch just prior to the Derby?

BWH: When Richard Mandella made the decision to scratch, I was heartbroken. There is no doubt, however, he did exactly the right thing for the horse and that is what's most important.

TDN: What is it you enjoy most about the sport at this point in your life?

BWH: For starters, just being here at age 86 is a bonus. I've always said this is a great game because you're always looking forward...to the next foal, the next 2 year-old, the next stallion prospect, besides, you'd be too afraid to look back. Also, I've worked all of my life. I love to get up every day and get to work and I intend to continue. My goal is to do with MyRacehorse what I've been able to do in the past with some of my other businesses.

GAMINE DRAWS FIVE AS THE EVEN-MONEY FAVORITE FOR LONGINES KENTUCKY OAKS

'TDN Rising Star' Gamine (Into Mischief), the ultra-impressive winner of the one-mile GI Longines Acorn S. and seven-furlong GI Longines Test S. in her two most recent appearances, drew gate four and was installed as the even-money favorite on Mike Battaglia's morning line for Friday's GI Longines Kentucky Oaks at Churchill Downs.

Owned by Michael Lund Petersen, the $220,000 Keeneland September yearling turned $1.8-million Fasig-Tipton Midlantic 2-Year-Olds in Training topper is likely to be hard sent by John Velazquez in what will be her second go around two turns. She defeated Speech (Mr Speaker) in a first-level Oaklawn allowance going 1 1/16 miles, only to be disqualified for a lidocaine positive. Bob Baffert is a three-time winner of the Oaks.

"I like five," Baffert said. "Being in the middle is always good. Right now the most important thing is that she ships well, that she relaxes, gets in there and breaks well. She's training really well. We still have a few more hurdles, [but] I'm happy with that spot."

Asked if his speedy filly would be on the front early in the Oaks, Baffert said, "You know I leave that up to Johnny. It depends on how she breaks. She's really quick away from there. I'm not even thinking about that though right now. We're just focused on getting there, getting settled in, handling everything well. We still have a long way to go."

Swiss Skydiver | Coady Photography

Ken McPeck saddles 8-5 second choice Swiss Skydiver (Daredevil), who has drawn the rail with Tyler Gaffalione at the controls. Runner-up to Derby second pick Art Collector (Bernardini) in the GII Toyota Blue Grass S. July 12, she walloped her rivals last time out in the GI Alabama S. over 10 furlongs. McPeck isn't the slightest bit concerned about the inside post.

"Not at all," he told Churchill's Ed DeRosa after the draw. "Fortunately they don't let me ride her. I like the inside, it's the shortest trip. I don't see us taking back. She ran on the front end at Santa Anita and Keeneland. We'll leave it up to Tyler mostly."

Speech (Mr Speaker), the GI CentralBank Ashland S. victress, should sit a stalking trip not far from the leaders and is pegged at an attractive 5-1 early quote. Javier Castellano takes the call for Mike McCarthy from one slot to the inside of Gamine in stall four.

"I'm fine with that," said McCarthy. "Probably makes things pretty clear for us. We have speed right outside of us and speed inside. We should be able to tuck in with a nice trip."

The Longines Kentucky Oaks goes as race 12 on a 13-race card Friday afternoon.

MAX PLAYER WORKS, MR. BIG NEWS ADDED TO DERBY FIELD

George Hall and SportBLX Thoroughbred Corp.'s Max Player (Honor Code) put in his final work ahead of Saturday's GI Kentucky Derby with an easy half-mile in :49.80 (26/50) Monday morning at Churchill Downs. The colt put up splits of :12.40 and :24.40 and galloped out in 1:02.80.

"He's continuing to do well," Steve Asmussen, who has taken over training duties from Linda Rice, said. "I'm extremely excited about how he's going to run in the Kentucky Derby. I love how he looks going over the racetrack. His attitude is really good. He came in with a really good attitude and was moving really well. That has stayed the same."

Max Player won the GIII Withers S. for the New York-based Rice in February and is coming off third-place efforts in the June 20 GI Belmont S. and Aug. 8 GI Runhappy Travers S. He will be making his first start for Asmussen in the Derby.

“The reason he is here is to give him time to acclimate to the track and the surroundings to hopefully make up the difference,” Asmussen said. “He’s been third to Tiz the Law in his last two races. That horse is the deserving favorite and a tall task. You only have one chance to run in the Derby and we just wanted to do everything we could to give him his best chance.”

Allied Racing Stable’s Mr. Big News (Giant’s Causeway) has been added to the field of Derby contenders. Fifth in the Feb. 15 GII Risen Star S., he won the Apr. 11 Oaklawn S. and is coming off a sixth-place effort in the July 11 GII Toyota Blue Grass S.

“I know we don’t have some of the numbers like Tiz the Law, Art Collector and Honor A. P., but this horse is improving,” said owner Chester Thomas. “I think he is absolutely going to love the distance and will make a big run late.”

Trained by Bret Calhoun, Mr. Big News will be ridden by Gabriel Saez in the Derby. He worked five furlongs in 1:04.40 (2/2) at Churchill Downs Sunday.

CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE APPROVES RACING SAFETY BILL

The California Legislature voted Sunday night to approve a bill designed to improve horse racing safety in the state.

“We must do everything possible to make horse racing safer for animals and jockeys, and this bill takes another step in that direction,” Sen. Bill Dodd, sponsor of the bill, said in a statement released by his office Monday. “I thank the Legislature for approving my plan, which will help ensure track conditions are right and horses are fit before they hit the starting gate.”

Senate Bill 800 is expected to incorporate reforms recommended by the California Horse Racing Board, including improved veterinary medical review prior to races and increased transparency in drug testing. After passing the State Senate and Assembly Sunday night, the bill will head to Governor Gavin Newsom to sign.

Last year, in the wake of a series of equine fatalities at Santa Anita, Dodd introduced Senate Bill 469, which was signed by Gov. Newsom, allowing the California Horse Racing Board to suspend racing at tracks where perceived dangerous conditions exist.

EQUIBASE TO EVALUATE GPS TIMING SYSTEM

by Bill Finley

In light of reports questioning the accuracy of the Gmax timing system, which relies on GPS technology, Equibase announced Monday in a statement that it will conduct an “extensive analysis” of the systems that is in place at 11 racetracks and will look to increase quality control efforts with respect to the GPS timers.

The accuracy of the GPS method became such an issue for the team putting together the Beyer speed figures that they have been hand timing the races from the Gmax tracks and have been using those times when making their figures.

“My colleagues and I are relieved that Equibase has recognized the flaws with its GPS race timing,” Andy Beyer said. “Everybody in the sport should share this relief. Without precise times, nobody can evaluate horses properly. As Equibase moves forward with GPS technology, I hope it will be more careful to vet the product and make sure that any data it publishes will be accurate.”

Equibase said it will consult the figure-makers as it moves forward and attempts to improve the GPS system.

Gmax has been replacing the traditional timing method, which is a teletimer systems that involves beams. Beyer and others have contended that the beam system is more accurate than GPS. Equibase said that it will look to combine the two methods.

“The result should be better overall performance and a more comprehensive data set,” the announcement read.

In addition, Equibase said it will not replace the beam system with Gmax at any additional tracks “until we are satisfied that the replacement provides a similar or better level of accuracy.”

The statement in its entirety reads:

There have been recent reports about the timing accuracy of GPS technology that Equibase has deployed at several tracks. We are conducting an extensive analysis of these installations. In the meantime, we are increasing our quality control efforts with respect to the GPS timing data and have sought input from speed figure makers and others in the racing community. We are also working toward a more integrated timing and tracking solution that combines the times produced by the beam system with the positional data produced by GPS. Finally, we will not replace another beam system

Equibase has served as the official database for Thoroughbred horse racing’s performance data for more than 20 years. It is a responsibility that we take very seriously, and we will provide updates on our progress with GPS timing.

TUGEL, GIBSON JOIN GAINESWAY TEAM

Sean Tugel, who served WinStar Farm as its director of bloodstock services and assistant racing manager for the last decade, and Lakota Gibson, who spent the last five years working alongside David Ingordo in the bloodstock department at Lane's End Farm, have joined the team at Gainesway.

A native of Rochester, New York, and a Lexington resident since 2004, Tugel has been named the director of stallion sales and recruitment. He has also served in management roles at Hill 'n' Dale Farm and Paul's Mill.

"We're excited about adding Sean to our team," said Brian Graves, Gainesway's General Manager. "He has established a wide network of relationships with breeders and owners through his reputation built on honesty and horsemanship. He brings a depth of experience from both the farm and the racetrack, which will be a great benefit to our clientele."

Said Tugel: "From the beginning of my career, I've been lucky to work and learn from some of the best horsemen and women in our industry. Gainesway has an unbelievably rich history in the Thoroughbred industry and Mr. [Antony] Beck's passion for the sport and future of the farm is infectious. I look forward to giving our existing clients and new clients an extended reach to help them with all of their bloodstock needs."

In addition to her more recent work at Lane's End, Gibson also has close ties with Coolmore, having worked for the Australian branch of the stud in the Hunter Valley. She later relocated back to Kentucky and worked for Ashford Stud for an additional 3 1/2 years. Gibson will primarily focus on Gainesway's sales and seasons.

"I'm thrilled to join the Gainesway family," said Gibson. "I've been very fortunate to work at some of the top Thoroughbred farms in the world and Gainesway is no exception. It's my pleasure to build on the strong existing relationships Gainesway already has with their breeders and look forward to helping any new clients see that Gainesway's passion for the industry is above all others."

DIODORO FINED $3,500 FOR TRIO OF CLASS 4 POSITIVES AT OAKLAWN by T.D. Thornton

Robertino Diodoro, the leading trainer at the 2020 Oaklawn Park meet by wins and the season's third-highest purse-earnings conditioner, had two winners and a fifth-place horse disqualified via a trio of Aug. 31 stewards' rulings that cited prohibited use of two different Class 4 substances detected in post-race testing.

The three individual horse rulings did not impose any fines upon Diodoro. However, a separate fourth ruling docked Diodoro $3,500 for failing to meet the "absolute insurer" requirements of a trainer licensed by the Arkansas State Racing Commission.

The disqualified horses and affected races that will have purse redistributions are:

Adheretome (Paynter), who won her third consecutive race when finishing first in a Mar. 19 $25,000 claimer and subsequently tested positive for the prohibited substance triamcinolone acetonide.

Moment (Uncle Mo), who won a $25,000 waiver-claimer Apr. 3 and subsequently tested positive for the prohibited substance methocarbamol.

Weekend Madness (Include), who ran fifth in a Mar. 1 $25,000 maiden-claimer and subsequently tested positive for the prohibited substance triamcinolone acetonide.

Triamcinolone acetonide can be given intra-articularly to horses for treatment of arthritis. Methocarbamol is a relaxant used to treat exercise-related muscle problems.

It was not immediately clear if Diodoro would be appealing the rulings.

KY DOWNS TO ENABLE DONATIONS TO GRAYSON-JC RESEARCH FOUNDATION

Officials at Kentucky Downs have announced that the track will be promoting support of the Grayson-Jockey Club Foundation during its upcoming meet by enabling owners to donate a percentage of prize money or a flat fee per starter to the organization.

Owners can direct the horsemen's bookkeeper to allocate funds from their accounts to Grayson through InCompass Solutions' Track Manager system, and paper forms will be available for owners to fill out in the racing office. Kentucky Downs is kicking off donations with a lead gift of $2,500.

“Our sponsorship days for Grayson have been great successes in the past, and we are pleased that we can continue to support an organization that funds such important work on behalf of horses,” said Ted Nicholson, senior vice president and general manager of Kentucky Downs. “I encourage all those who will be competing at Kentucky Downs to consider contributing to Grayson for the benefit of our equine athletes and hope that other racetracks join this effort.”

“We thank Kentucky Downs and their horsemen for recognizing the importance of equine research, even in the midst of a pandemic,” said Jamie Haydon, president of Grayson. “We appreciate the commitment that the Kentucky Downs team has shown toward promoting equine health.”

TALAMO EARNS ELLIS PARK RIDING TITLE

Joe Talamo, recently relocated from the West Coast, won his first jockey's title on the Kentucky circuit after riding 20 winners at Ellis Park's Runhappy Summer meet which concluded Sunday.

“It feels really good,” said Talamo, who won a race both Saturday and Sunday to pull out of a tie with Rafael Bejarano. “Obviously Bejarano didn't ride the last couple of weeks, so that definitely helped quite a bit, in all honesty. But more than anything, I was just really happy that we got into some nice barns and outfits and won on some really nice 2-year-olds this meet that I'm really excited about in the coming months. I think quite a few of them have a bright future.”

Talamo continued, “I really have to thank all the owners and trainers who supported me this meet, gave me good opportunities. Obviously [agent] Jake [Romans] did a great job. Hopefully we can keep the momentum going.”

Brad Cox and Ken McPeek tied for the meet's leading trainer title with 10 wins apiece. Cox won Ellis titles in 2015 and 2018 and McPeek was winning his first title at the Henderson oval.

“We had a great meet,” McPeek said. “We had a lot of horses who came into it perfect. I liked the distance 2-year-old races, and I think we even had one win going short. Overall, the team did a great job. We brought up some from Florida to run, so it was a great summer. It's a fun meet.”

Cox came on top in the money title with purse earnings of $450,261.

“I was happy with the meet,” Cox said. “It's a great place to start a lot of young horses, to get them going. Whether they won or not, at least we got some races into them and the meet offered a lot of options as far as turf and dirt. The place has been extremely good to us, and we think a lot of Ellis Park. We're able to stable there, and it's a big part of our operation for sure. It's a good meet, and we're looking forward to bigger and better things to come.”

The Haughey family's PTK was the leading owner at the meet with six wins from 23 starters.

“My amazing mom, our P, actually passed away unexpectedly in late March,” Kaitlin Haughey said in an email. “PTK was her baby, and we know she must be proud of this achievement. Winning the Ellis Park owner's title is really a testament to all the many people and horses who keep PTK functioning on a day-to-day basis.”

STABLEDUEL CONTEST TO RAISE AWARENESS FOR AFTERCARE EFFORTS

StableDuel has teamed up with Thoroughbred Aftercare Alliance and Retired Racehorse Project to raise money and awareness for both organizations through its app during the month of September.

Owners of off-track Thoroughbreds are invited to share a picture or video of their Thoroughbreds on social media showcasing “something cool” they do with the hashtag #PlayRaceAdopt. They will then be entered to win a prize pack from the three organizations, including a saddle pad, riding clothing and more. Two winners will be selected and announced each week.

“We are so excited to partner with StableDuel this month and to introduce their innovative approach to racing/gaming to a new audience,” said Jen Roytz, Executive Director of the Retired Racehorse Project. “For so many equestrians who ride off-track Thoroughbreds, the love and admiration they have for the breed either stems from an interest in racing or is the catalyst for it. StableDuel's user-friendly approach provides a fun and affordable way for fans to learn and experience more about the sport.”

Through its app, StableDuel offers fans the opportunity to participate in daily contests at racetracks around the country. Its normal brand slogan is #PlayRaceWin.

In addition to the social media contest, the StableDuel app will offer a weekly contest that will raise money for both TAA and RRP. Each Sunday, players can enter the Charity Contest with a $5 entry and play the game to win the usual cash prizes. StableDuel will donate its proceeds to each charity.

“StableDuel is passionate about giving back to the industry that our business is built on and we know during tough times, organizations have had to cancel many of their normal ‘money raising’ events. We are excited to do our part and help bring attention and money to aftercare,” said Bri Mott, Director of Marketing at StableDuel.

Governor Goteven, an 18-1 upsetter on debut May 29 at Santa Anita, became her sophomore sire (by Midnight Lute)'s first black-type winner when capturing the local California Thoroughbred Breeders' Association S. Aug. 1 and was made the second choice to stay unbeaten here. Leading narrowly through a sharp :21.96 quarter, the homebred lost the lead to her pace rival on the latter half of the turn, but battled back soon after straightening for home to regain command. Scooting clear into the final furlong, she went unchallenged from there to score convincingly. Favored I'm So Anna was up late for second. Click for the Equibase.com chart or VIDEO, sponsored by Fasig-Tipton.

TILTED TOWERS (g, 4, Atrides--Rich Love, by Not For Love), off the board in his first two outings, graduated over course and distance last out Aug. 15 and was dismissed at 18-1 in this first go against winners. Tracking dueling leaders from third past a :22.44 quarter, the gelding pounced three wide at the head of the lane, swept to the fore inside the sixteenth pole despite failing to switch leads and edged away to a one-length upset. Pacesetting Silardi (City Zip) completed the exacta. The winner's dam, a $70,000 purchase while in foal to Bolt d'Oro at Keeneland January, has a juvenile Frosted Filly named Easy On the Sugar and a yearling colt by the same sire. She produced the aforementioned Bolt d'Oro foal, a filly, Feb. 4 before returning to Frosted. Let go at 16-1 here, the dark bay stalked from second through splits of :24.81 and :51.32. Drawing on even terms passing the quarter pole, she took charge entering the lane and kicked clear before holding sway from Viazar (Tapizar) to graduate by three-quarters of a length. ALTHEA GIBSON (f, 3, Grazen--Hey Cowboy, by Bertrando) was runner-up when unveiled July 5 at Los Alamitos and again here 26 days later. Made a narrow 13-5 favorite in this turf bow, the homebred dictated terms through a :22.95 quarter, skipped clear into the stretch and held off late-running All Star Heat (Heatseeker {Ire}) by a half-length. The winner, named for the tennis great who was one of the first to break the sport's color barrier, is out of a half-sister to these connections' GSW/GISP Enola Gray (Grazen). She has a juvenile full-sister named Iva Toguri, a yearling full-sister and a weanling full-brother. Her dam was bred to Tough Sunday this spring. CLOSING REMARKS (f, 2, Vronsky--Orange Cove, by Unusual Heat) showed some early gas when drilling a half-mile from the gate over the local dirt in :47 2/5 (2/56) Aug. 3 and was given a 71-10 first-out chance. Traveling at the fence as part of the second flight past a :22.71 quarter, the chestnut steadied a bit off heels nearing the stretch and split horses in the two path after turning for home. Taking charge just inside the furlong grounds, she scooted away to best After Midnight (Gervinho) by 2 1/4 lengths. start and got shuffled back to last of a five-horse group past a :22.96 quarter. Tipping into the clear three-sixteenths out, he gradually wore down favored Lil Richards Bello (Richard's Kid) in deep stretch to prevail by a head. After an inquiry, the runner-up was placed last for interference with Zero Down (Square Eddie), elevating longshot pacesetter Tough to Break (Coil) into the exacta. DONCASTER A WEATHERVANE IN TEMPESTUOUS TIMES

Sale alum & 2020 G1SW Golden Horde | Scoop Dyga

By Chris McGrath

DONCASTER, UK--Well, this is the day when perhaps we'll start to know. Only perhaps, mind. Each auction is a market in its own right and, besides, everyone has over recent months become accustomed to such wild fluctuations in outlook that the world can look a very different place between breakfast and dinner, never mind between the opening session of the yearling sales season, at Doncaster on Tuesday, and its conclusion two months hence.

All that said, the opening skirmishes of the Goffs UK Premier Yearling Sale are bound to be treated as a barometer for what lies ahead. During these uniquely challenging times, vendors and consignors will watch the early returns with far more than even their customary trepidation. Equally, the likelihood of "a buyer's market" will not assuage the anxieties of core clients such as trainers, nervously awaiting orders, or pinhookers, who have to gamble on a return of economic confidence as soon as next spring.

So while the whole community has demonstrably been at pains to hold its collective nerve and work together, not least the rival sales companies, it is only when the gavel comes down that we can begin to know whether we have merely been helping each other to rearrange the furniture on the Titanic; or have actually managed to board a serviceable lifeboat, with a functioning motor and plenty of buckets. THE WEEKLY WRAP: WHAT HOLLIE DID NEXT

By Emma Berry

It has been both a good week and a bad week for women in British racing. Hollie Doyle has already featured in this column on several occasions this season but when her achievements make the evening news bulletin on BBC Radio 4, then it's worth revisiting the subject of this fast-rising jockey.

When lockdown started, and racecourses in Europe were shuttered for at least two months, it was Doyle's partner Tom Marquand who grabbed the headlines with his Group 1-winning rides in Australia. Marquand is still 10 wins ahead of Doyle in the abridged Flat jockeys' championship which started in June, and they are both some way adrift of leader Oisin Murphy, but within a top-five pack which also includes William Buick and Ben Curtis. However, Doyle wasn't idle while Marquand was wintering in Australia, and she had already notched a decent tally before racing was called off. She now only needs another five wins to record her second consecutive century in a calendar year. Cont. p7

For the little it may be worth, the ambience on the sales grounds on the eve of the sale seemed positive. The consensus was that there were more prospectors, relatively speaking, than has been the case at sales staged in other sectors since the lockdown. Nobody was foolhardy enough to be making predictions, and the ongoing fidelity of the Maktoums--perennial mainstays of the industry--is being monitored with more angst than ever.

But perhaps there was something auspicious about the change in the weather: horses had been unloaded over the weekend into a bitter north wind, like a sadistic downpayment of the coming winter. On Monday, they were being displayed in the kind of perfect late-summer weather--high, slow clouds occasionally filtering warm sunshine--that could only be more flattering to cricket on the green than it was to the shimmering flanks of a meticulously groomed yearling.

At the best of times, Henry Beeby approaches the sales season with a candid paranoia about picking up any kind of infection that might compromise his resonance from the rostrum. As a friend said to the Goffs CEO: "You must be delighted: nobody's touching you, everyone's washing their hands the whole time--and nobody thinks you're weird anymore!"

But the pandemic has been a rollercoaster to challenge even Beeby's trademark dynamism.

"An ex-colleague, who has retired, rang me up recently and said: 'I bet you'd like a bit of foot-and-mouth!'" Beeby says. "And I said: 'Well, I'm not sure I'd like it. But yes, by comparison, having seemed an absolute nightmare at the time, foot-and-mouth now seems like the mildest of inconveniences.' When we moved a sale, someone said: 'At least you've given us certainty.' And I replied: 'In the COVID world, there is no such thing as certainty.'" Cont. p3

That clearly extends to the next two days. While it would clearly be unfair to invite public commitment to any specific number, even in private it is presumably difficult for the Goffs management to agree what might pass as a tolerable loss of momentum after the relentless bull run of recent years. In broad brush-strokes, however, Beeby explains that the accountants will be measuring the year against an established "worst-case scenario."

"I'll be quite open," Beeby declares. "Our financial year is Apr. 1 to Mar. 31 so, if there could be such a thing, I suppose from that point of view it happened at the right time. It meant we could recalibrate all our budgeting for the year. Rather than base it on the last couple of years, we said: 'What is the worst year we have had, in terms of ring turnover, in recent memory?' In Ireland, it was 2010; in England, 2013. So we worked everything backwards from there: if we can hit those targets, having worked out our costs to a break-even position, then we can just tread water and hopefully move forward again after COVID."

Past graduate Fev Rover, winner of the G2 Prix du Calvados
 Scoop Dyga

Beeby remarks that last year's Irish turnover of around €123 million matched almost precisely the business done in 2007, having slumped to €45 million in 2010 after the financial crisis. In other words, a perfect U-shaped recovery had been completed. What the whole global economy is craving now, of course, is a much narrower, steeper "V" revival.

"It does put everything in perspective," Beeby reflects. "Normally, you're deeply upset if your sale hasn't grown by at least inflation. But now it's a question of leading with the clearance rate, because our primary focus--going into every sale--is to deliver liquidity to the market, to let the vendors sell their horses for a price they can accept." "The Land Rover Sale was down 36%. In a normal year, that would have me virtually suicidal, though actually, compared to its competitors, it wasn't too bad. But the clearance rate on day one was 84%. Slightly less on the second day, but it was a question of just keeping the wheel turning, keeping the market going, keeping the liquidity, helping people through their cycles. Because of course a yearling is only a yearling once, and same with your 3-year-old store, or your breeze-up horse.

"So what it needs from us, and from our clients, is adaptability, flexibility, reactivity. It's about not being afraid to act quickly, to make quick decisions; but equally to be unafraid of saying: 'No--we need to change it again.'"

And Beeby speaks warmly of how the industry, as a whole, has stepped up to the plate. He is also perfectly aware that a lot of people looked to the sales houses for a lead. He stresses that Goffs and its principal rival Tattersalls already tend to work together, in the interests of their clients, more routinely than people may realise.

"We are competitive, of course we are, but this year in particular it's been a question of putting that to one side and helping each other," Beeby says. "Because we know we're in it together. There was a period of a week or 10 days when I think I must have spoken more to [Tattersalls chairman] Edmond Mahony than some of my colleagues. We're swimming in a very small pool, most of the clients are mutual clients, and in various categories--be it the breeze-ups, be it stores, be it yearlings--most major vendors sell in all places. So it just makes enormous sense to co-operate and co-ordinate and harmonise."

The toughest nettle to be grasped, perhaps, was the decision to transfer the Orby and Sportsman's Sales here to Doncaster from Co Kildare.

"The Orby used to be called the Irish National Yearling Sale," Beeby notes. "It's a major event in Ireland. The modern-day Goffs was set up in 1975 to provide high-class facility in Ireland for Irish breeders, so it was a big decision to move. But aren't we lucky that we had this complex here? First of all, prior to 2007, it wouldn't have been as easy because D.B.S. [Doncaster Bloodstock Sales] was a separate entity; and prior to 2008, we were across the road with 290 stables that weren't to a high enough standard for these horses, and certainly the Orby and Sportsmans. So we're very lucky that we are served by two such high-class sales facilities. And largely people have said: 'That makes sense, let's do it.'"

No market, of course, can sustain perennial growth. Nobody could have anticipated quite what it was that eventually broadsided the bloodstock bonanza, but everyone always knew that cycles are inevitable. In our industry, moreover, too many sectors are too interdependent for the headline figures to show "pure" gain. Many Thoroughbreds are sold many times over: in utero, even, and certainly as foals, yearlings, breezers, horses-in-training, breeding stock. And then everything starts over. But an apparently booming yearling market, for instance, always raises the stakes for the breeze-up sector. In turn, that will often mean that even a corresponding boom in the 2-year-old market is illusory; that margins have remained pretty stable.

Certainly pinhookers here are treading warily. "We have seven months for everything to turn round," said one. "But we don't even know what things will look like in seven days."

Another, who had actually come out ahead from the breeze-up sector's delayed calendar, was hoping that these initial yearling exchanges may be particularly cagey, saying: "If they do wait and see, then I'm hopeful I might get one or two early on. But nobody knows what's going to happen. If we had another lockdown of racing, then we're all in trouble. But we're here. That's a start!"

And it is in these times, when the soil seems thinnest, that the seeds of subsequent fortune will often be sown.

"Absolutely," says Beeby. "There will be great opportunities. These horses were bred in pre-COVID times, when things were going really well, and there are some beautiful horses here."

As detailed by colleague Kelsey Riley in yesterday's edition, moreover, Premier Sale graduates have been excelling even in the constricted programme contrived after lockdown.

As ever, they have been doing so where the emphasis is on speed; but they have been doing so at the highest level, with consecutive wins in both the GI Commonwealth Cup and GII Norfolk S. at Royal Ascot. Already nine graduates of last year's sale have won stakes.

Beeby feels that the bloodstock market, so far as it has been tested, has so far stood up surprisingly well at a time when owners have been deprived of their customary adrenaline at the racetrack; and when prizemoney dividends have made even less sense than usual of the investment demanded of them.

That gives him "quiet hope" for the next two days.

"There's going to be a market here," he says with a shrug. "Quite what it is, remains to be seen. But it's the old cliché. All you can do is your best. We are a very resilient industry. And why is that? It's because for most of us, it's not a job, it's our life; it's what we live and breathe. Even if we wanted to, most of us probably couldn't do anything else. I certainly can't: I've done this for 38 years, don't want to do anything else, and am certainly not qualified to. And I daresay that's true of most of us here. So what do you do? You make hay when the sun shines. You have a good time, you make the most of it. And when things go badly, you knuckle down and make sure you get through it.

"There was a time, before the breeze-up sales, when the previous year we had already turned over £46 million--and this time it stood at zero. But what's been heartening has been the calmness of so many people. There's never really been a sense of panic, which you could have understood. People have said:

Henry & Harry Beeby | Goffs UK

'Just give us something to aim for.' And even though sometimes we've had to change even that, there has just been that feeling that we have to keep the wheel turning. People have been prepared to knuckle down and work together, put their normal differences or individual ambitions to one side. That's been refreshing.

"We have to keep trying, to keep as much normality as we can in an incredibly abnormal world. And I suppose someday we'll look back and say: 'Do you remember 2020?'"

He gives a wry grin. He knows how few of us will do so in tones of nostalgia. But even though his father, DBS stalwart Harry, will be missing for the first time since 1964, he will be avidly following proceedings on Beeby's mother's "machine".

"So the message," concludes Beeby, "is really to keep calm and carry on."

The first of 423 lots catalogued over two sessions enters the ring at 10 a.m. on Tuesday.

THE WEEKLY WRAP

Judging by Saturday's performance, she could easily do that in one day. Jockeys are currently restricted to riding at just one meeting per day—a COVID-inspired rule which some hope will remain in place—but Doyle has been making the most of her full books of rides. On Saturday, she set a new record for a female jockey in Britain when winning five of Windsor's nine races, including the two stakes races on the card. Especially pleasing for Doyle was doubtless the fact that she bagged a second Group 3 win aboard Extra Elusive (GB) (Mastercraftsman {Ire}) for Imad Al Sagar, with whom she recently signed a retainership. It is said that the Lord rested on the Sabbath, but that wasn't the case for Doyle, who followed up her five-timer 24 hours later with a hat-trick at Yarmouth.

It is fully understandable that female jockeys wish to be referred to simply as jockeys, and there should of course be no distinction between the two sexes. That ridiculous old argument of women not being strong enough has thankfully been consigned to the dustbin by a string of eminently capable riders.

But it is a sad fact that Doyle is the only female in the top 50 in the British jockeys' table. Nicola Currie, Josephine Gordon and Hayley Turner all make it into the top 70, and at a certain stage in recent years, each was very much flavour of the month. It should also be said that the problem of dwindling rides is not one faced solely by women—plenty of young male apprentices have struggled to make that leap into riding as a professional.

The fact that women represent only 9% of the top 100 jockeys riding in Britain and 13% in Ireland shows that there is still much room for improvement and encouragement. Thankfully for those following behind her, Hollie Doyle isn't just politely knocking on the door, she's charging through it with a battering ram.

Trouble at The Jockey Club

From the statements issued over the weekend by the Jockey Club and its erstwhile group chief executive Delia Bushell, who resigned her post on Sunday, it is hard to ascertain which is the aggrieved party in what is undoubtedly a sorry tale for racing, whatever the truth may be. Indeed, for the second time in 24 hours, a racing-related story was reported in the wider media, though for a far more negative reason.

Bushell's resignation came after an independent barrister appointed by the Jockey Club apparently upheld allegations made against her by a colleague of bullying, racist remarks and the sharing of offensive material. A sub-committee of three of the Jockey Club board members, referred to as stewards, determined that the review's findings should result in disciplinary action against Bushell, including for gross misconduct.

In effect, she has jumped before she was pushed, but Bushell is clearly not prepared to go gently into what would certainly be a very dark night for her future career if the allegations against her remain unchallenged. Instead, she issued a stinging resignation letter which included counter-bullying claims against the Jockey Club as well as referring to the barrister in question ignoring "evidence of collusion by a number of male witnesses, all senior executives in the Jockey Club, both ahead of the filing of the grievance and during the investigation process itself."

Bushell, a former managing director of BT Sport who also held several senior roles with the broadcaster Sky, became the first female head of the Jockey Club in September 2019 and acknowledged the potential difficulties faced by racing.

"The years to come will be critical for the sport, as we embrace the opportunities and challenges of innovating for fans and racegoers, appealing to new and more diverse audiences, broadening revenue streams, and driving inward investment," she said at the time of her appointment.

Nobody could have foreseen the even greater challenges posed by a global pandemic, or indeed that turmoil within British racing's most prestigious organisation, which oversees 15 racecourses and the National Stud, would lead to such a premature and controversial departure.

Delia Bushell | The Jockey Club

In its former role as racing's rulemaker, the Jockey Club, established in 1750, did not allow women to hold training licences until 1966 or to ride against men in races until the 1970s, a situation admittedly not out of keeping with the more general societal attitudes of that time.

It is concerning however to note in Bushell's resignation letter her comment regarding her former employer as a "male-dominated organisation that has a troubling history of ignoring serious complaints against senior men and which seeks to discredit and ostracise anyone challenging its status quo."

It seems likely that when more details of this story eventually come to light, it will be in a court of law. Hopefully we might also find out how the details of this matter, which really should have been confidential between employer and employee, have come into the public domain.

Cox Provides First for Many

Ballylinch Stud gave an important helping hand to Lope De Vega (Ire) in his first season with runners when his son Belardo (Ire), who was bred by the stud, became his sire's first Group 1 winner in the Darley Dewhurst S. of 2014.

Belardo, who raced initially for Prince Faisal, was bought by Godolphin while he was still in training and is now at Kildangan Stud with his own first runners in action. But it is Ballylinch which is once again playing a part in the success of a young stallion, with Belardo's first group winner, Isabella Giles (Ire), having been bred at the stud from the G3 Laundry Cottage Stud Firth of Clyde S. winner Majestic Dubawi (GB) (Dubawi {Ire}). The 12-year-old mare was bought by Ballylinch Stud from Rabbah Bloodstock for €260,000 at Goffs in 2015.

Isabella Giles was also continuing a great season for the juveniles representing Clive Cox's stable. A week earlier, the trainer had sent out Cobh (Ire) to win the Listed Stonehenge S. and become the first stakes winner for Belardo's fellow freshman sire Kodi Bear (Ire), who was also trained by Cox. This followed the G2 Richmond S. victory of Supremacy (Ire), who was in turn the first group winner for this year's leading first-season sire Mehmas (Ire).

Cox has also won this season's G2 Coventry S. with Nando Parrado (GB) (Kodiac {GB}), who was sent off at what now seems an extraordinary price of 150-1 and subsequently finished runner-up to Campanelle (Ire) (Kodiac {GB}) in the G1 Darley Prix Morny.

Important Test for Yearling Market

Today (Tuesday) sees the start of the European yearling sales season, a little over two weeks late, and in Doncaster rather than Deauville. A congested autumn calendar has become even more condensed than usual owing to the reshuffling necessary to facilitate the ever-changing coronavirus quarantine restrictions.

Despite great flexibility shown by sales houses and vendors, it remains impossible for buyers and/or agents to get to all the sales in the coming weeks even with most of the Irish sales having been moved to the UK. People returning to Britain following Arqana's postponed Select Sale (Aug. 9 to 11) are still required to undergo 14 days of isolation.

What has become evident following the latest round of horses-in-training action at Tattersalls last week is that buyers are increasingly willing to bid online—though it is certainly less unsatisfactory to do this for horses with racing form rather than young, untested yearlings. Cont. p9

At the Tattersalls August Sale, 60% of all lots offered received bids via the internet bidding platform: 79 horses were sold this way, amounting to 1.6 million gns of the sale's total turnover of 8.43 million gns. The underbidders on a further 93 horses in the sale were also online rather than at the sale in person.

The other more notable factor of the last two sales at Tattersalls in July and August has been the remarkably high clearance rate of above 90% for each. This can be construed as both good and bad news. On the one hand, demand remains strong for horses trained in this region. On the other, a high number of the better horses offered in these catalogues were sold to race on abroad, primarily in the Middle East, on top of a fairly steady flow of privately purchased horses throughout the season. This is nothing new, but it certainly feels like it is happening more than ever, particularly when prize-money has plummeted further still in Britain since the resumption of racing after lockdown. Simply, for many owners of British-trained horses rated in the 70 to 100 bracket, the rewards are far greater if you sell rather than continue to race, even successfully.

It's no secret that yearling vendors are approaching the coming weeks with trepidation, a situation exacerbated by rumours of a potential reduction in spending by the Maktoum family. It is also fairly likely that we haven't seen the worst of the repercussions for racing from the desperate and ongoing scenario that is COVID-19. Over the next few weeks a picture will begin to be painted which may not be finished until this time next year.

But, as we have seen in the past, the bloodstock business remains a remarkably resilient industry. The breeze-up and horses-in-training sales of this year have so far held up better than most people expected, though there has of course been a downturn from what has been a fairly buoyant market since bouncing back from the global financial crisis of 2007-2008. Let's hope that the yearling sales can follow suit.

GRIMTHORPE CONFIRMS ENABLE, LOGICIAN WILL NOT FACE EACH OTHER IN SEPTEMBER S.

Juddmonte's champion Enable (GB) (Nathaniel {Ire}) and Classic hero Logician (GB) (Frankel {GB}) will not run against each other despite both being entered in the Sept. 5 G3

OXTED ONE OF 15 ENTERED FOR BETFAIR SPRINT CUP

Roger Teal's Oxted (GB) (Mayson {GB}), who won the G1 July Cup in the colours of Stephen Piper, Tony Hirschfield and David Fish, is one of 15 standing their ground for the upcoming G1 Betfair Sprint Cup on Sept. 5.

"All seems good--fingers crossed, we'll get there in one piece," said the conditioner. "I've had a quick look at the entries. I was watching them come in, and it's what was expected. If the ground tightens up it would help no end. I have tried him twice before on an easier surface, and he hasn't run to form, but I don't think it was the ground. There were other reasons. It's not that he has to have the ground rattling fast--but if it was good to soft, it'd be perfect."

Since his victory in the July Cup, Oxted had an ulcer removed from the back of his throat and Teal remains confident the procedure would not mar his horse's chances. Cont. p10

“He had a little wind up after Newmarket,” he said. “He had an ulcer on the back of his throat. We had that removed. He was scoped after the July Cup, so he must have run with it. It was a simple procedure.”

Hollie Doyle, who rode a five-timer at Windsor on Saturday, has the call aboard G3 Phoenix Sprint S. hero Glen Shiel (GB) (Pivotal {GB}) for trainer Archie Watson. It will be Doyle’s first ride in a British Group 1.

Doyle told Sky Sports Racing, “I’m really looking forward to riding Glen—he’s been a flag-bearer for the yard really. He keeps on surprising us. He’s improving with age and he’s got quicker the older he’s got, which is strange. He’s going the right way. He’s an old legend. The ground is the key to him really, and he’ll get his ground at Haydock and a stiff enough six [furlongs]. I’m hoping for a good run.”

Others entered include G1 Diamond Jubilee winner Hello Youmzain (Fr) (Kodiac {GB}), who won the 2019 edition of the Haydock Sprint Cup, as well as his stablemates Brando (GB) (Pivotal {GB}) and Queen Jo Jo (GB) (Gregorian {Ire}). All three are trained by Kevin Ryan.

James Fanshawe saddles 2018 winner The Tin Man (GB) (Equiano {Fr}) and Archer’s Dream (Ire) (Dream Ahead). G1 Commonwealth Cup S. winner Golden Horde (Ire) (Lethal Force {Ire}) for Clive Cox and G2 Hungerford S. winner Dream Of Dreams (Ire) (Dream Ahead) are also slated to line up, among others.

KAMEKO POINTING TO QEII

Classic winner Kameko (Kitten’s Joy), who landed the G1 QIPCO 2000 Guineas in June, will start next in the G1 Queen Elizabeth II S. on British Champions Day, Oct. 17. The Qatar Racing colourbearer saluted in the G1 Vertem Futurity Trophy S. on the all-weather as a juvenile and won the Newmarket Classic by a neck on June 6. Since then, he has rolled a trio of fours in the July 4 G1 Investec Derby, July 29 G1 Qatar Sussex S. and the Aug. 19 G1 Juddmonte International S. Trainer Andrew Balding is undeterred by the reversals.

“He’s great—he’s just having some down time, and hopefully we’ll head to [the] G1 QIPCO Champions Day for the QEII,” Balding told Sky Sports Racing. “I just feel like we’ve been learning as we go along, and I probably should have had a better idea at the beginning of the season what his best trip is.

“He’s a horse with a lot of speed and a lot of class, and I think a mile is right for him this season. He hasn’t run a bad race all season, but it’s just been frustrating since the Guineas. In a conventional year, things might have panned out better for him, but that’s where we were through no fault of his own. He’s a high-class horse, and I’d love to have a go at Ascot if the ground is all right.”

Successful over much this distance in his Aug. 17 debut at Royal Windsor last time, Bahrain Pride reappeared to garner this black-type bow and maintain his unbeaten record with relative ease. Racing under a firm hold in a handy fifth after edging right from the outside stall at the break, he tanked to the front hard on the steel at the quarter-mile marker and kept on powerfully under final-furlong rousting to comfortably outpoint G3 Molecomb S. third Internationaldream for a career high.

"The ground was soft at Windsor and I'd imagine it was fairly tacky ground today, but I actually think he'll be a better horse on better ground," said trainer Ed Crisford. "We were worried about the [outside] draw as Ripon can be tricky for an inexperienced horse. He did look a bit inexperienced, but I was impressed by the way he quickened up. He did it nicely and I'm delighted with that performance. We'll probably head for the [G2] Mill Reef S. next and, hopefully, he's a nice horse for the future."

Bahrain Pride, half-brother to a yearling colt by Showcasing (GB), is the first of two foals out of an unraced half-sister to Listed Prix Herod victor Temps Au Temps (Ire) (Invincible Spirit {Ire}) and G3 Ballyogan S. and G3 Anglesey S. runner-up After (Ire) (Danehill Dancer {Ire}). Cont. p12

LOVE IS GOLDEN (IRE) (c, 2, Golden Horn {GB}--Holy Moon {Ire} {SW-Ity, $161,048}, by Hernando {Fr}), who ran last of eight in his Aug. 7 debut over this trip at Sandown last time, occupied a forward role in second after the initial exchanges here. Easing to the front with three furlongs remaining, the 9-1 chance was rowed along approaching the two pole and kept on well under mild rousing in the closing stages to comfortably hold Intello Boy (GB) (Intello {Ger}) by 1 1/4 lengths. Becoming the 10th scorer for Listed Premio Terme di Merano victress Holy Moon (Ire) (Hernando {Fr}), the May-foaled bay is a half-brother to seven black-type performers including G1SW distaffers Sea of Class (Ire) (Sea the Stars {Ire}), Charity Line (Ire) (Manduro {Ger}) and Final Score (Ire) (Dylan Thomas {Ire}). He is also kin to G2 Oaks d'Italia and G3 Premio Regina Elena (Italian 1000 Guineas) heroine Cherry Collect (Ire) (Oratorio {Ire}), G2 Derby Italiano runner-up Back On Board (Ire) (Nathaniel {Ire}), a yearling colt by Camelot (GB) and a weanling colt by Sea the Stars (Ire). Scrubbed along at halfway, the 22-1 outsider laboured into fourth entering the final furlong and found an array of late gears to swamp Charlie Fellowes (Ire) (Swiss Spirit {Ire}) by 1 3/4 lengths nearing the line. From the family of MGISW sire Storming Home (GB) (Machiavellian), she is the second of two foals and first runner produced by a half-sister to the multiple stakes-placed duo Muharaaj (Ire) (Iffraaj {GB}) and Jedha Man (Fr) (Dandy Man {Ire}). GSA BACKING CASTELVECCHIO & SUPER SETH

Castelvechio | Bronwen Healy

By Paul Vettise

First-season sires rarely figure in the mating plans of Jonathan Munz's GSA Bloodstock operation, but this year it will be heavily supporting two of its own with Castelvechio and Super Seth featuring prominently.

The Victorian-based Munz has around 100 broodmares spread across New South Wales, Victoria and New Zealand and TDN AusNZ chatted with his Bloodstock Manager Dean Hawthorne about plans for the 2020 season.

GSA has retained interests in the Group 1 winners Castelvechio, who stands at Arrowfield Stud, and the Waikato Stud resident Super Seth and their starts will be enriched with quality from GSA.

"We've got shares in those two horses and retained 20% in Super Seth when he was sold so there will be 15 mares going to him and we've got 20% of Castelvechio so we'll be sending 10 mares to him," Hawthorne said. "We've also got a decent share in Pariah who is in his third season and we'll be giving him good support as well. His foals are looking very good.

"They will all get good numbers before we start using the proven sires. Apart from our own, we don't use first-season sires, we do on the odd occasion but really prefer to wait and see."

Combined Effort

Locking in breeding plans for GSA's extensive broodmare band is a major team effort.

"Jonathan does his pedigree research and we make sure type matches to type. We obviously have records of our past foals and how they have turned out so if a mating hasn't worked we don't do it again," Hawthorne said. "We sit down three or four times a year and thrash out the matings between us. The mares are predominantly based in the Hunter Valley with Bhima Thoroughbreds and we have 14 mares in partnership with Arrowfield that we bought a couple of years ago. The Victorian base is at Glenelg Park with Danny Swain and in New Zealand they are at Haunui Farm with Mark Chitty."

Among the mares to visit Super Seth is the G1 New Zealand Thoroughbred Breeders' S. winner Perfect Fit (NZ) (Elusive City {USA}).

"She's a lovely mare going to him and we've got a mare called Twenty One Times, who is a half-sister to Another Dollar (winner of the G3 Premier's Cup and Group 1-placed) booked to him," Hawthorne said.

The G3 National S. winner Vivi Veloce (More Than Ready {USA}) is another to visit Super Seth, who will also serve Amerindia (GB) (Dubawi {Ire}), a 150,000 gns (AU$286,500) purchase by Hawthorne at the Tattersalls December Mares Sale.

"Amerindia is a half-sister to the dam of Lucky Vega, who won the G1 Phoenix S.," he said. "She is a mare that has really bounced into prominence with that pedigree update."

Among the mares GSA has in partnership with Arrowfield are The Broken Shore (Hussonet {USA}), Shoals (Fastnet Rock), Omei Sword (High Chaparral {Ire}), Fenway (High Chaparral {Ire}) and Abbey Marie (Redoute's Choice).

Redoute's Choice's half-sister The Broken Shore was a $1.9 million purchase from the Teeley Dispersal at the Magic Millions National Broodmare Sale. Her first foal was the multiple Group 1 winner Shoals, followed by her three-time winning sister Tides. Their brother Groundswell was sold for $2.3 million and has won and placed in the G1 Caulfield Guineas.

"The Broken Shore will be going to Written Tycoon and Shoals has had her first foal by I Am Invincible. She's a good filly and she's going to Written Tycoon as well," Hawthorne said.

The G1 Vinery Stud S. winner Fenway will visit I Am Invincible and is due to foal to Snitzel and Omei Sword, winner of the G2 Silver Shadow S. and runner-up in the G1 Golden Rose S., has produced an I Am Invincible filly and will make a return visit in 2020.

Super Seth | Waikato Stud

“Lucky Raquie is empty and she will also be going to I Am Invincible and Zurella is in foal to Snitzel and is going to Fastnet Rock,” Hawthorne said.

Brescia (NZ) (Fastnet Rock), the dam of the G1 All Aged S. winner and Waikato Stud-based sire Tivaci, is due to foal to Dundee (NZ) and will be going back to him at this stage.

The Dam of Prague

“Purely Spectacular, the dam of Prague, will be foaling to Snitzel and will go back to him to keep that Redoute’s cross going,” Hawthorne said. “Abbey Marie has dropped a filly by Dundee and will be going to Pierro. Over the years we’ve also accumulated some mares by Galileo out of England.

“One of them is Puppeshow and she is a full-sister to Tiger Moth, who was second in the G1 Irish Derby, and she’s in foal to Snitzel and going to Written Tycoon.”

GSA will also continue to purchase suitable mares for another high-profile colt they have an interest in, the dual Group 1 winner King’s Legacy (Redoute’s Choice).

“We’ve got 25% in him and he will be going to stud next year so we will be accumulating mares to send to him as well,” Hawthorne said.

Trained by Peter and Paul Snowden, King’s Legacy was successful in last season’s ATC Sires’ Produce S. and Champagne S. He has trialled twice ahead of the G2 Run To The Rose S. and will then take aim at the G1 Golden Rose S.
